Clandestine Voyage to a Shadowy World

WASHINGTON, D.C. — George Bush, since he is the director of the CIA, might be called the nation's No. 1 spy, and his most recent escapade should provide a fine example to his men of how to do things.

Bush disclosed at Thursday's luncheon of the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he had managed to travel to and through three European countries recently without exposure by local or American press.

During the course of his trip, Bush said, he talked with some of his agency's personnel, and found the morale high despite secret agency's recent publicity.

Patty's Health Problems Multiply

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst, with legal problems that include a possible 35-year prison sentence, now has health problems that seem to grow worse the more doctors look at her.

Now recuperating from emergency surgery for a collapsed right lung, Miss Hearst is said to be underweight, and suffering from malnutrition and a possible liver ailment.

In addition to all this, the newspaper heiress and convicted bank robber may face additional surgery for a "bleb" on the lung that collapsed.

Would Bare Hearst Testimony

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Attorneys for Steven Soliah insisted that federal prosecutors bare in court what Patricia Hearst may have told them about her former lover's alleged role in a fatal bank robbery.

Defense lawyer Sheldon Otis said "reliable sources" informed him Miss Hearst has talked with Justice Department investigators and told them, "Mr. Soliah was not in the bank on April 21, 1975."

Otis told U.S. District Judge Philip C. Wilkins on Thursday he wanted a hearing called to disclose what the newspaper heiress had told prosecutors and Wilkins instructed him to file written briefs today before making a decision.

U.S.-Greek Accord Criticized

WASHINGTON — American and Greek negotiators hope to have a draft of a comprehensive defense cooperation agreement ready to send Congress within four to six weeks.

But one congressional leader of the pro-Greek faction, Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., already has rejected the new accord and said it will not soften his opposition toward a plan to provide $1 billion to keep U.S. bases in Turkey.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios Thursday initiated an interim agreement establishing principles that will form the basis of a treaty to replace all previous defense arrangements between the two countries.

New Plan for Lebanon Peace

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syria and Palestinian guerrillas today agreed on a new plan to enforce a cease-fire and end the fighting in the Lebanon, Damascus Radio said.

The agreement came as a choking sandstorm from the Sahara whirled through the countryside, effectively ending the latest round of fighting that left 107 persons dead and 160 wounded.

More than 17,200 have died in a year of civil war.

Damascus Radio said Syrian President Hafez Assad and Yasser Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, reached the seven-point agreement after lengthy talks in the Syrian capital.

Auto Industry Layoffs Down

DETROIT — For the first time in two years, indefinite layoffs in the U.S. auto industry will fall below the 50,000 mark next week as General Motors resumes second shift operations at two California assembly plants.

But the nation's "Big Three" automakers warned Thursday a strike by the United Rubber Workers next week could cripple car production. They said there are enough tires in stock or in transit for a week of production before the effects of a rubber strike would be felt.

An Ailing Pope Paul VI Re-enacts Way of Cross

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The bells of Rome's 500 churches fell silent as the center of Roman Catholicism marked Good Friday, the historical day of Jesus' death on the cross.

Altars were bare and sacred images were draped in mourning purple in Roman Catholic churches throughout the world for the only day of the year when mass is not celebrated.

Church bells will not ring again until midnight mass on Easter Sunday to announce the Resurrection.

The planned climax of the most solemn day of the Christian calendar was Pope Paul VI's traditional carrying of a light wooden cross in a torchlit Way of the Cross procession against a backdrop of pagan Rome.

More than 100,000 pilgrims and an international television audience of millions annually watch the ritual as it is enacted at the Colosseum.

Despite the painful arthritic condition of his knees that makes walking difficult, the 78-year-old Pope has maintained the last stations of the cross, re-enacting the steps to the Crucifixion.

The Pope also carried out the Holy Thursday rite recalling Jesus' washing of the feet of the Apostles at the Last Supper.

Walking somewhat stiffly, the Pope put on a white apron, poured water from a silver pitcher on the bare right foot of each of 12 seminarians, wiped it with a linen towel and kissed it.

The 12, two from various Catholic Western rite and 10 from various Catholic Eastern Churches, sat on a raised bench in the Basilica of St. John's in Lateran so the Pope would not have to bend to his task.

In a homily delivered to 20,000 persons in the cavernous church, the Pope prayed "for all men suffering and thirsting for truth, justice and peace but with eyes clouded by their unfulfilled search. He asked them to listen to Christ's appeal: 'Come to me, all you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest.'"

On Saturday night, the Pope will celebrate Easter Eve Mass in St. Peter's Basilica. On Sunday, he will celebrate an open air Easter Mass on the steps of the largest church in Christendom and then deliver his blessing to the city of Rome and the world.

NY Revamps Esopus Flow

Better Control of Water from Schoharie is Good News for Fisherman

NEW YORK CITY — Steps are being taken voluntarily by New York City to better control the flow of its reservoir water through the Shandaken Tunnel, according to the text of a letter released today.

The city's Environmental Protection Administrator Robert A. Low revealed the new policy as described in a letter from the EPA's Abraham Groopman, assistant commissioner, to the State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC).

The basic suggestions contained were to operate the Shandaken Tunnel so as to deliver no more than 400 million gallons of cold water per day to the Esopus Creek between the Shandaken Tunnel and the Ashokan Reservoir.

The move is designed to avoid fish kills and improve fishing in the creek, according to the city's EPA.

Groopman, a native of Woodbourne, was designated by Low to serve as permanent liaison between the city and state DEC in matters concerning the operations of the Shandaken Tunnel and Esopus Creek.

The letter was in response to recent suggestions by the state DEC or releases of reservoir waters.

Specific procedures include: 1) Notifying the DEC of the city's plans to start, stop, increase or decrease the flow of water from the Schoharie Reservoir to Ashokan Reservoir via the Shandaken Tunnel and Esopus Creek.

2) Wherever possible, give notice not less than 24 hours in advance.

3) Deliver no more than 400 million gallons per day during the period from June 1 through Oct. 31 each year, "except at those times when it is deemed necessary by this department for water supply operations or conservation."

4) When possible increase the flows in steps of 40 million gallons per day and decrease the flow in steps of 20 million gallons per day.

Groopman explained in his letter that "this method of stepped changes represents a monetary expenditure by the city for additional manpower."

The assistant commissioner and chief engineer of the Bureau of Water Supply, EPA in New York City, Groopman added: "... in the event of a reported fish kill in the Esopus Creek that might be attributed to the operation of the Shandaken Tunnel, DEC should notify the City Department of Water Resources immediately so that we can mutually participate in field investigations."

The suggestions were originally incorporated in an Oct. 6, 1975 letter from Deputy Chief Engineer in charge of watersheds George Mekenian of the city to the state DEC's Alfred Hulstunk, special assistant to the commissioner.

In that letter Mekenian states, "The Esopus Creek, between the Shandaken Tunnel portal and the Ashokan Reservoir into which it flows, is celebrated as a high class fishing stream, especially for trout, and is therefore heavily fished. It is recognized by many that the high quality is due primarily to the beneficial effects of the significant volume of cold water that is added to the low warm natural flow during the summer and early fall by the operation of the Shandaken Tunnel as part of New York City's water supply."

KSC Ballot Line-up For Board Election

KINGSTON — Ballot positions for the Tuesday, May 4 school board election have been announced.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Len Cane has drawn the top position among the five candidates seeking two posts on the board.

Present board member Ronald Meyer, who seeks another term, drew the second position, retired IBM engineer, Harold Van Allen of Hurley has the middle position.

Fourth place on the ballot went to Ulster County Conservative Party Chairman William Jackson and former Board President Joseph F. Feraca drew the last position.

Voting will take place from noon to 9 p.m.

The five candidates are seeking posts being vacated by veteran school board member Mrs. Evelyn Corsonnes who is not seeking reelection and Meyer, who is making another run for his post.

Cane sought election to the board last year and will try again. He feels the key issue in the election is the continuance of quality education at an affordable cost.

Meyer, an employee of American Telephone, believes that quality education can be maintained by keeping neighborhood schools.

A Hurley Heights resident, Van Allen feels the taxpayer must be recognized as an important factor in the ultimate solution to education of the students.

Jackson has taken a strong stand against building new school facilities, feeling it is the wrong time to increase indebtedness.

Feraca is relying on his past record of achievement as president of the board and chairman of the personnel committee to restore him to the school board. He is running because he is concerned about the present "bickering" which is impeding solutions.

At Minnewaska

Volunteers Battle Blaze

LAKE MINNEWASKA — A careless camper is thought to be the cause of a fire Thursday that destroyed an estimated 250 acres of woodland in the Minnewaska State Park and threatened, for a time, the massive Minnewaska Mountain House.

Despite persistent overnight rain, the fire continues to smolder today, although conservation officers have declared the blaze "definitely under control."

"Some stumps and snags are still burning now," said a spokesman at the Region III headquarters of the Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, "but we have a good line around the area and we don't anticipate any further trouble."

The fire broke out shortly before 10 a.m. Thursday on the west side of the Minnewaska Ridge. By the time the first fire-fighters arrived, some 50 acres were ablaze.

The fire spread quickly after that, and by early afternoon close to 200 acres were involved.

At the height of the firefighting effort, more than 150 volunteers — armed with rakes, shovels, and portable water tanks — fought to halt the fire's advance. Most of the effort was spent trying to establish a fire break in the path of the advancing fire, but other volunteers were kept busy extinguishing "hot spots" that flared up in areas already charred by the flames.

But efforts to bring the fire under control were reportedly hindered by a shortage of volunteers. At one point, officials rushed into New Paltz and recruited about a dozen high school students to help fight the fire. One of the students said that some nearby mountain climbers were asked to help out, but they refused.

Although eight area fire companies had equipment at the scene, some could not send a full complement of volunteers because of the ever-present danger of brush fires breaking out in their own communities.

It took a combination of hard work and good fortune to eventually bring the blaze under control late Thursday afternoon. The biggest blessing was a rain shower that began around 3 p.m., which helped to dampen the tinder-dry areas and slowed the fire's advance.

The fire break that volunteers had sought to establish all afternoon was finally formed on the west side of a small stream that runs along the base of the ridge. For a time, it was feared that fire would travel up the ridge to the Minnewaska Mountain House if the flames were allowed to jump the creek.

The center of the fire was about six miles off Route 44-55, and volunteers had to be trucked over narrow dirt roads to reach the inferno. Because of the area's isolation, much of the firefighting was done by hand.

The workers on land received some airborne assistance Thursday in the form of two state police helicopters and a private agricultural spray plane that dumped thousands of gallons of water on the burning woodland. The helicopters, hovering above Lake Minnewaska, filled large containers with water and then flew to the fire area. The two large craft formed a constant shuttle between the lake and the fire throughout the afternoon.

Most of the volunteers left the area early Thursday evening when the fire was brought under control, but conservation officers and DEC personnel remained at the scene throughout the night dousing dozens of hot spots that flared up over the 250 acre area.

The last serious fire at Minnewaska occurred in 1964 when some 1,500 acres of woodland were destroyed. In 1947, more than 15,000 acres were destroyed in a major blaze.

Ulster Appoints Levy New Chief Constable

TOWN OF ULSTER — Town of Ulster Town Board has appointed well-known Kingston detective Meyer Levy as chief constable of the six-man police force.

Levy will assume his new duties as administrative officer Monday replacing Chief Fred Schmidt who will remain on the force. Levy retired from the Kingston Police Thursday.

Credited with saving the life of a fellow police officer in 1959 while a member of the Kingston Police Department, Levy is also active in the Shomrin Society, having served as president of the DUSO (Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange) segment of the national society. The organization is comprised of more than 8,000 police and public safety officers of the Jewish faith who are directly involved in law enforcement.

Levy joined the Kingston Police Department in 1950 and has been a member of the detective division for a number of years.

A ledge gave way and Crespin fell into the pool. Levy risked his own life to hold Crespin until help arrived. The report of the two boys was a mistake and they were later found.

Levy served in the U. S. Navy as a radioman from June 1943 to April 1946.

Warning On Fires

ALBANY, N.Y. — The National Weather Service today warned of tinder-dry conditions in much of New York State, no surprise for firemen who have begun the spring ritual of chasing brush fires.

The weather service said there was a "high fire danger" in the state, particularly in southeastern portions.

The service reported that less than a tenth of an inch of rain has fallen at its Albany Airport station since April 2. Humidity less than 30 per cent on several days has combined with gusty winds, the weather service said, to make "ideal" weather for grass fires.

'Secret Trip' Pleases Bush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dropping his cloak either by slip or design, CIA Director George Bush reports having made a secret trip to three European countries and finding his agents prepared to carry on despite recent publicity.

Speaking without a text, Bush with seeming relish told a luncheon of the American Society of Newspaper Editors meeting Thursday that he had traveled to three European countries without being exposed by the local or American press.

"I've just come back from one trip, which we managed to keep secret, around three different countries in Europe and had occasion to visit some of our people," he said. "And some of them in a climate where names have been published."

It was a reference to publication in Europe and the United States of some names, street addresses and even telephone numbers of alleged CIA agents in various world capitals.

Last winter an Athens newspaper published the name of the CIA station chief in Greece — Richard S. Welch — and he was shot and killed by unknown gunmen outside his Athens home two days before Christmas.

"Really, they are living a risk," Bush said of the overseas agents. "And it's wrong. It's wrong that they have to be subjected to that. But they understand the climate of the times and they are perfectly prepared to unselfishly serve their country."

In a recent address to the Harvard Business School, Bush said foreign intelligence agencies that previously collaborated with the CIA were "holding back" and some agents were resigning because of investigative disclosures.

Despite this, Bush said

Thursday, "there is a fantastic reservoir of discipline in the CIA ... morale is A1."

During a question and answer period, Bush said he "might or might not have" secretly met singer Frank Sinatra in February, as a press report claims, but had "no comment" that intelligence matters were discussed.

The Boston Globe said Thursday that Sinatra volunteered his services to the CIA on grounds he knows many important people, including the Shah of Iran and the British royal family, and "wanted to do his part for the country."

Sinatra's agency, meanwhile, issued the singer's statement responding to published reports that Robert F. Kennedy while attorney general had blocked an investigation of possible Sinatra connections with the Mafia:

"I read the report about how Bobby Kennedy protected me from investigation by government agents and now realize that after five grand jury subpoenas, two IRS investigations, which probably utilized about 30 men, and a couple of subpoenas to congressional committees, if you have a close friend in high office you don't need any enemies," it said.

A Darling Model

Ms. Haskell was used as a model before her father announced senate hearings concerning alleged wrong doings in the ski resort's expansion on national forest land. The ski resort is owned by Howard H. (Bo) Calloway, former campaign manager for President Ford. (UPI)

He Could Be Anywhere

TAUNTON, Mass. (UPI) — The closing chapter in the attempt of Allan Chadburn to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a tiny sailboat may have been written by his wife.

Mrs. Natalie Chadburn apparently has given up hope that her husband, who set out alone in an eight-foot sailboat to Portugal more than one year ago, has survived.

The executors of Chadburn's estate filed his will in Taunton Probate Court this week on behalf of Mrs. Chadburn. But officials said Thursday there is some doubt whether the will can be executed.

Mrs. Chadburn, 28, lives with her two children in Somerset. She had "no comment" when asked if her allowing the will to be executed meant she had abandoned hope for her husband's return.

Chadburn, 28, set sail on April 9, 1975, from Nauset Harbor in Orleans. His objective was to cross 3,000 miles of ocean in his sailboat, The Dream, to Porto De Leixoes.

Registrar of Probate James B. Kelley Jr., said "there is a problem" with the will written Oct. 29, 1973, more than a year before Chadburn set sail.

Chadburn's green-and-white craft, which resembled a miniature submarine, was sighted just once since he set sail, by a New Bedford fisherman about one week from the time he left.

Patty Hearst Has More Problems

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst is being treated for malnutrition and examined for a possible liver ailment while hospitalized for a collapsed lung.

Her doctor said Thursday that the 22-year-old newspaper heiress might need surgery for removal of a bleb, a bubble-like blister, from her right lung.

Miss Hearst, convicted of bank robbery charges and awaiting transfer to a federal correctional facility for a 90-day psychiatric evaluation prior to sentencing, was transferred from the San Mateo County Jail to Sequoia Hospital Tuesday night after she complained of chest pains and breathing difficulties.

Dr. Donald Rowles, a chest specialist, said his patient was in fair condition but was experiencing pain because a tube inserted through her ribs and into the right lung. He said the bleb was unusually large and there was still the possibility of another rupture, which would entail a new tube for drainage.

He said there also might be a need for further surgery for removal of the bleb.

Doctors disclosed that Miss Hearst weighs 90 pounds — 15 pounds below her normal weight. They said a preliminary examination indicated the possibility of a liver problem.

In a related development, Marin County District Attorney Bruce Bales said in San Rafael, north of here, that there would be no charges filed against her for the August 1974 bombing of two unoccupied sheriff's patrol cruisers.

Bales said that Miss Hearst told federal investigators three persons were involved in the bombing. He said he would grant her immunity to present evidence against the trio.

The prosecutor also said: "She's been convicted of serious federal offenses, and she faces serious state charges. It would be useless for me to prosecute her when it wouldn't aggravate her sentence at all."

Reports persisted that Miss Hearst was telling investigators all the details of the "missing year" in her odyssey with the Symbionese Liberation Army. During her bank robbery trial she refused to discuss what happened between the April 1974 holdup and her arrest in September 1975.

The reports also said she was giving the information in an effort to win a lenient sentence from U.S. District Court Judge Oliver J. Carter.

Freed from Car, Condition 'Poor'

SAUGERTIES — A 17-year-old West Camp girl was listed in poor condition today at Benedictine Hospital following a one-car accident Thursday night in the Town of Saugerties.

According to Saugerties police, Maria Ferricane was trapped under the dashboard of her car for more than an hour before she was freed by police and rescue workers. She was transferred to Benedictine Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service, and was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A passenger in the car, 14-year-old Anna Vigale, suffered injuries to her elbow and hand. She was treated at Benedictine.

Saugerties Town Police said Miss Ferricane was driving her was held in lieu of $1,000 bail pending arraignment in village court today.

Police said that they were called to investigate a domestic quarrel at the Mill Street address at about 4:50 p.m. Thursday. Authorities said that when the officers arrived at the scene, Babula was in the midst of an argument with his mother.

Police arrested Babula initially on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was also charged with harassment for allegedly shouting obscenities at the police officers.

According to police, the arresting officers were escorting Babula to the patrol car when he allegedly took a swing at one of them. He missed and smashed the windshield of the police car. He was charged car northeast on Blue Mountain Road when the car left the road and smashed into a tree. The accident occurred about 9:20 p.m. Thursday.

Injured in Crash

A Staatsburg woman, meanwhile, was reported in "stable" condition at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie today following a two-car accident Thursday on Route 9 in Staatsburg. Mary Jane Maronge suffered a broken arm, wrist, elbow and leg in the crash.

The accident occurred at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday when a car operated by Thomas M. Wood, 31, of Hyde Park skidded on Route 9 and collided with the Maronge vehicle. Wood was treated at Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck for head lacerations and an injured right leg. Rhinebeck State Police investigated.

Various Charges

An 18-year-old Ellenville youth was charged with disorderly conduct, harassment, resisting arrest and two counts of criminal mischief Thursday following a domestic quarrel and an altercation with police officers.

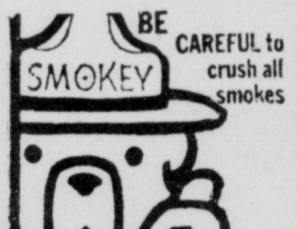

Ellenville Village Police said Robert Babula of 8 Mill Street

with criminal mischief. Later, police said Babula allegedly ripped a toilet seat off the wall in his jail cell and smashed it on the floor. He was charged with a second count of criminal mischief.

"He appeared somewhat boisterous," said a police spokesman today.

The city of Fort Worth, Tex., never was a fort. It took its name from a cavalry camp where, in 1849, Maj. R.A. Arnold and a troop of dragoons kept eye on the Indians.

The cannibalistic Karankawa Indians are said to have attacked, killed and eaten four of pirate Jean Lafitte's men at Galveston, Tex., in early 1821.

Scala Considers Resigning Labor Post

SAUGERTIES — County Legislator Charles Scala, R-Dist. 3, who was recently appointed one of five members to serve on the county's Labor Management Committee, said he is seriously considering resigning unless the attitude of one member, Legislator Louis M. Klein, D-Dist. 6 improves.

Feeling his effectiveness on the Labor Management Committee is "seriously hampered by the presence of Klein," Scala said Klein is "more interested in being a publicity seeker on his own behalf than in being an effective legislator."

Referring to numerous press releases Klein has issued in recent months, Scala said that "the county-wide campaign to discredit every move of the Republicans can only lead to more people being turned off by politics and a lessening rather than a strengthening of the quality of candidates who accept the challenge of running for office."

In a letter to Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, Scala said "the feeling of mistrust that I have towards Klein leads to an extremely unhealthy atmosphere of carefully weighing every word that is said because Klein is very adept at twisting every word to his own devious advantage."

Suggesting that Klein is "constantly flailing away at windmills instead of developing proposals," Scala said "this deception seems to be the major preoccupation of the Democrats in Ulster County as opposed to being constructive and working for the best interests of the residents of the county."

Scala said that "many people have indicated a distressingly low opinion of politics and these Democratic antics certainly will do nothing to restore the faith of the public in our elected officials or political parties."

"A county-wide campaign to discredit every move of the Republicans can only lead to more people being turned off by politics and a lessening rather than strengthening of the quality of candidates who do accept the challenge of running for public office," Scala

What's In A Bottle?

KINGSTON — "Sticks and stones will break my bones but....." A bottle of human excrement?

Imagine the wonderment when members of the Ulster County Probation Department found that such a bottle had been tossed through a closed window of the department headquarters recently.

An assault on the dignity of the department rather anyone in particular, the bottle did no harm other than to break the window it passed through in the rear of the building, wounding Superintendent Kenneth Whispell told the Freeman that it was an isolated incident and that vandalism of county buildings has been on the downswing rather than increasing of late.

KINGSTON — A final tally of the results of the Republican Primary in the 25th Congressional District last week has been made available by the Board of Elections. The Ford slate emerged victorious over the Reagan slate by a vote of 4,699 to 3,058. Results show that Edward Kelly received 836 votes, Lynn Mulvaney 800; Thomas A. Johnson Jr., 775; Ethel L. Block, 774; Richard DeLorenzo, 759 and John W. Hanes, 755. Reagan slate returns show that James Whelan received 574; Patricia Peck, 511; Edmund P. Riely, 509; John J. Nash, 507; Victor B. Coster, 502. Primary Day voting proved to be one of mass confusion due to the makeup of the ballots with GOP voters having the toughest time figuring out which delegates were supporting which presidential candidate. Unless the voter knew ahead of time, there was nothing on the printed ballot to inform him or her. The confusion centered on the fact that the law provides different rules for each party. While the Democrats may list the name of the presidential contender favored by the delegates on the ballot, the GOP may not and both GOP slates were merely listed as "uncommitted." There was confusion too in that there was only one Republican Primary in Ulster County in the 25th Dist., while there were Democratic primaries in all three congressional districts.

WHITA Demands School Site Probe

KINGSTON — We've Had It Taxpayers' Association (WHITA) of Ulster County, Inc. is pursuing the matter of land acquisition by the Kingston City Schools Consolidated, among other actions approved at this week's meeting of the board of directors.

WHITA has asked the State Commission of Investigation to further investigate the entire matter of land acquisition with the Sabino and Delaware Avenue high school sites by the Kingston district, and is supplying details to the commission, according to a release.

The taxpayers' group asserted that it "regards that Superintendent (Louis) Salzmann continues to refuse WHITA the right to examine the details of expenditures made through the site acquisition fund. WHITA feels that Superintendent Salzmann is violating the Freedom of Information Act."

It is the group's contention that the acquisition fund has expended more than $600,000 and faces more than $200,000 more in legal claims.

In other moves, WHITA stated support of the concept of neighborhood schools and opposition to the closing of Edson School; announced it will hold a candidates' night for those seeking a spot on the Kingston board of education; announced "concern with the recent actions of the Ulster County Legislature increasing taxes and failing to reduce expenditures"; is looking into the reduction in state police protection mandated by state budget cuts; and discussed a "large number of legal suits being brought against the board of education, the City of Kingston, and local townships for reduction in real estate assessments which could bring about increased taxation and further hardship to homeowners."

Witchcraft Practice Is Changed

MORGANTON, N.C. (UPI) — Joann Denton, accused of accurately predicting a death, faces a $500 fine and up to six months in jail if convicted of violating North Carolina's "witchcraft law."

Mrs. Denton was charged under the statute Wednesday after a complaint by Kathrin Carpenter, 22, who claimed Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Ramsey, 38, on March 20 that she would die on April 10.

When Mrs. Ramsey's body was found on that day, police said several pills and a suicide note were also found. There has been no formal ruling, however, on whether the death was suicide.

"I believe it (the prediction) worked on her nerves," Mrs. Carpenter said of her mother. "She just kept taking pills and taking pills to calm herself down."

"I think this lady should be stopped because it works on your nerves to be told when you are going to die and when the day comes, it really gets to you," she said.

Sixty-five of North Carolina's 100 counties have the so-called "witchcraft laws" which prohibit the practice of phrenology, palmistry, fortune-telling or clairvoyance.

'Mike' Changes Jobs

Meyer 'Mike' Levy, one of the most popular and a hard working detective in the Kingston Police Department, is changing hats this week. He's retiring from the city force to take over as chief in the Town of Ulster.

Ulster's gain in obtaining the services of Levy is Kinston's loss. His rapport with this city's residents has been excellent. He has done a professional job, often without fanfare and has always been available to do that something "extra" which separates the ordinary worker from the better ones.

Levy will give that much needed professionalism to the Town of Ulster and we congratulate Supervisor Carmine Sabino and the board for hiring a capable person like Levy. They couldn't have made a better choice.

A Worthy Project, but . . .

Dear Editor:

My question is why didn't you put any information in your paper about Zena School's booth at the Bicentennial School Exhibit? Our whole school worked very hard on the project and you didn't even mention a thing about it.

Our school is almost never mentioned in any of the Kingston City Schools' projects. Most Kingstonians don't even know we belong to the Kingston City School district.

I would appreciate it if you would mention us a little more often. All of us at Zena are tired of being left out!

Sincerely,
Kerrin Moriarity

***

Dear Editor:

I'm in Mrs. Wallace's fifth grade class from Zena School and I would like to ask why the Zena School projects at the armory were not mentioned in your article in the Sunday Freeman on April 11? It seems to me all of your emphasis was on the past.

My class and Mr. Gross' class worked very hard to construct a domed city of the future and it took a morning for the Glee Club to video tape their performance!

I hope in the future we are more noticed!

Sincerely,
JOANN ATTENWEILER

Editor's note: We agree with Joann and Kerrin that the Zena School exhibit, like all of the exhibits, was well done. Unfortunately, with an armory full of exhibits, our photographers did the best they could. If an exhibit was missed, it was only because there were so many excellent ones.

Not Imposing Beliefs

Dear Editor:

In my letter of March 24, 1976, I was not trying to impose Christian principles on anyone nor to convert "non-believers in our midst" as Mr. Harding suggests in his letter of April 6, 1976.

I was only trying to bring out a part of Pope Pius XII statement: "the explanation of the universe and of mankind is forced within the narrow limits of materialism or rationalism, and new education systems are sought after which cannot but produce a sorrowful harvest in the intellectual and moral life of the nation."

I did not suggest mandatory religious education.

I did not suggest the Lord's Prayer. I did suggest a Proper Prayer Amendment.

The 16th Amendment made federal income tax legal. It is so high most people are forced to send their children to public school.

We had prayer in our public schools - it was taken out. I ask for a religious liberty to be given back to our children. Prayer is not only a Christian principal. I feel religious instruction should be part of a child's formal education experience.

How can you maintain a reasonable standard of morality, but keep morality out of public school?

What rationale is behind appropriating funds towards a . . . Health curriculum, such as we now have in Kingston High, which teaches "developing your own values." This is direct opposition to my religious beliefs.

Mr. Harding, your real worry should be universal secularizing of the education of the young.

Jesus Christ composed the "Lord's Prayer". It is addressed to "our Father Who art in Heaven."

Irving Berlin wrote "God Bless America". I think they are both great prayers.

The Ninth Amendment to the Constitution states: "The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

This means simply, that the Constitution does not pretend to have listed all the specific rights the people have or had before the Constitution and its Amendments were adopted. The courts must therefore consider such claims of right on their merits instead of arguing "if the Constitution had intended to give these rights to the people, it would have done so."

I don't consider others minorities, I consider all, my brothers and sisters.

Acted With Dignity

Dear Editor:

The Onteora School Board has had to take a lot of guff in the conduct of its hearings against Superintendent Marlow and it has behaved with dignity and extraordinary courage in its efforts to dispell the unhealthy academic smog overhanging our district.

Despite the repeated anonymous telephoned threats of bodily injury to themselves and their families and violence to their households if they pursued the hearings and attacks in public and in the press, they continued to labor without compromise to get at the truth.

The time is long overdue when we members of the Onteora School District raised our voices in their defense. We urge all concerned citizens to sit down now and write the Commissioner of Education Ewald Nyquist, at the department of education, Albany, New York, to examine the evidence of this case carefully and with impartiality so that a proper disposition can be made as soon as possible.

More Important Things

Dear Editor

A West Hurley Father....
There was a vote on the West Hurley Recreational Park and it was voted NO!! So why all the crying about something that's been decided against.

Let's start thinking about more important things like creating more jobs in the area. Most people are struggling to meet their monthly bills, food, clothing, etc. After all you have the reservoir for fishing and boating and the mountains for camping. Also there are numerous State trails for hiking.

We as parents should make our own recreation with our children. Because the fact is most children would love to have their parents take an active interest in them and participate with them in family fun and recreation. Instead of buying children all the expensive toys - 10 speed bikes, mini bikes, snowmobiles etc.; why not give a little of your time to your children?

What it all boils down to is make your own fun!

Let's learn again how to use the God given talents to think of ideas to have fun.

Sincerely,
HERMINIO RIVERA
West Hurley

April Fool Fun

Dear Editor

My compliments on your April 1 issue. I truly enjoyed the many tongue-in-cheek (I hope) articles. It's always a pleasure to receive pleasure whilst reading a newspaper these days.

By the way, I was going to write you sooner but I've been busy thinking of organizing a Procrastinator's Club in the vicinity. I've just never gotten around to it. Maybe tomorrow?! Keep up the good job, please.

Sincerely,

As the Mails Bog Down

WASHINGTON — The Postal Service has told Congress and the White House to go blow it out the other ear. Either more money will be forthcoming or the mailman will stop coming. There will be no economies, no increased efficiency, no effort to live within any budget save that which the Postal Service draws up for itself.

We have had this sort of thing before. The Pentagon does it. The Washington Post's Mike Causey has written of the time that the National Park Service forced Congress to put aside thoughts of a budget cut by closing the elevator in the Washington Monument. But the Postal Service is another matter.

Historically, no part of the Federal government has been so closely associated with Congress as the old Post Office Department. For the best part of two centuries it was a congressional patronage preserve, an extension of every member of Congress' personal political organization.

No more. Control has so completely slipped away that not long ago a group of congressmen went to Federal court to try and stop the closing of hundreds of rural post offices. The resort to the courts is an inadvertent confession of absolute powerlessness.

This isn't the first time members of Congress have had to go looking for outside help to get the executive branch to do its bidding. During the Nixon years the courts were used to force the Administration to stop impounding moneys appropriated by Congress and to spend them as the law required. When Nixon was driven from power, we were told that the unconstitutional poltergeist had been exorcised and checks and balances between the branches had been restored.

It appears now that impounding has continued and that, in general, congressional powers of oversight have grown irrevocably feeble. In the case of the Postal Service the Ford White House can't be blamed. The Administration has tried to resist the Postal Service's demands as much as Congress has. Neither has been able to do much.

The bureaucratic class has a life and a power base of its own. Neither the White House nor Congress can assemble the force necessary to intrude on a structure like the Postal Service to reorganize it so that it will perform its tasks at something like a reasonable level of costs.

Outside of a very unsatisfactory, occasional recourse to the courts, Congress is left with nothing more than the threat of committing an act of legislative violence. It can abolish the Postal Service or at least abolish its monopoly in hopes that it can discipline its own legislative creation with private enterprise competition.

That threat, like the power of the purse, is so strong it scares the members of Congress more than it does the agencies and departments it might be used against. Congress has no practical way to legislate against the simplest abuses it daily cries to the heavens in anger over. A man like William Proxmire has made a career of surprising bureaucrats misusing government limousines, but what does it accomplish save to make the Wisconsin senator popular with the millions who understand as well as he that Washington's offices are filled with loafers, wastrels and petty thieves.

Congress might be described as a kennel of watchdogs of the Treasury, but these ferocious Fidos keep digging up the same corrupt, bureaucratic bones over and over again. To what purpose? So that we can watch a worthless, super-grads, civil service shlepper wiggle for 90 seconds on the nightly news?

Clearly Congress hasn't got the power to compel the sort of reorganization that would at least force these hateful wimps who man the agencies of government to devise new ways to steal from and exploit the working and producing part of the population. Could Congress regain that power? Theoretically yes, but practically no.

Even to recapture some influence over the Postal Service would require disbanding the public corporation Congress set up just a few years ago to run the mails. Public corporations, which characteristically develop the double-shelled, institutional protections of both the CIA and General Motors, can't be controlled by anyone from the outside. But Congress also lacks the power to see that its will is done in more old-fashioned parts of the government like Commerce and Labor.

To reassert itself in any significant manner could not be done without bringing the budget-making function back from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue to Capitol Hill. When Congress gave up its power to put the Federal budget together from start, it gave up the most important part of its powers of initiation and organization. That process began in the First World War. The Bureau of the Budget, now expanded to the even more powerful Office of Management and Budget by Nixon, was established in the Harding Administration. How can Congress find the force or the political support to push over such old institutional stones?

Rather, the direction is for Congress to continue to weaken itself. President Ford has wisely said he's going to veto the bureaucracy didn't have enough leverage on Capitol Hill now.

For the near future you can expect the mail service to get worse, but be consoled. We still have Senator Bill to pull bureaucrats out of the back seats of those chauffeured limousines.

Letter to Four Daughters

Dearest Girls: This is hello and farewell. A kiss on the wind. Mother and I will be traveling in a week. We'll be home in May. As usual, I will make copies of this and send them to the four of you, although the reason why escapes me. We seldom get a letter back.

All of you got a passing grade in writing home for money. Or to relate a problem. I am convinced that all children should be born at the age of 21, working.

You know I love all of you, deeply, devotedly, forever. What I resent is that all of you had to grow up and flee the nest. Once, when Grandma Bishop was celebrating her 50th wedding anniversary, she sighed and said, "I wish you were all two-years old again." Too late, I understand what she meant.

Like here is predictable. I write a column; write a scene of an autobiography; hack my way around a golf course; take mommy to dinner and a movie. We return home asking each other what the story was.

We read in bed. It's a hell of a honeymoon. In the morning, we watch Mike Douglas. In the afternoon, it's Merv Griffin. Charlie Chan plays with his rubber cruller on the rug. I could tell you more, but I doubt if you could stand the excitement.

Kathi came home on spring break from Florida Atlantic University. She gets her bachelor's degree in June. She is more beautiful than ever - really - and is one of those students who flogs herself to perfection. When she gets less than an A-minus, little bubbles of foam appear on her lips and she mumbles naughty words about the faculty.

Gayle spent a week in the hospital, trying to track down an abdominal pain, or is it abominable? The pain has subsided but she can't afford the hospital bill. She'd like to have her pain back.

Karen and Paul have bought a house. It's somewhere in Palm Beach County near where they teach. The proper time to buy a house is when you're young and can't afford it. The mortgage is the size of the anchor on the Andrea Doria. But, what the heck? They're criminally happy

The Cautious Lover

WASHINGTON — The late Howard Hughes, once one of Hollywood's most publicized playboys, consorted with women of rare beauty and international reputation. Yet he was really a cautious lover, secretly shy, who conducted elaborate surveillance of his women before making romantic advances.

The incredible details have been hidden for a quarter of a century behind the tight screen he drew around himself. We have partially unmasked the rich recluse as part of a larger investigation into his tangled financial-military-CIA ties.

We discovered, astonishingly, that in the '40s and '50s he turned his social life into a multimillion-dollar operation. He would go after a woman with the same methods he might seek to take over a corporation.

At least 100 women who struck his fancy were brought under electronic and physical surveillance. Among them some of the world's most glamorous women, including Elizabeth Taylor, Sophia Loren, Ava Gardner and Janet Leigh.

The billionaire hired a private detective named Gerald Chouinard to spy on the lovelies. Because Hughes was hard of hearing, he couldn't get Chouinard's name straight. So the detective finally adopted the name Mike Conrad.

For 18 years, Conrad handled secret projects for Hughes, including the romantic espionage. The billionaire followed the surveillance reports closely. Once, he suggested Conrad could keep a closer watch on actress Elizabeth Taylor in her second-floor Hollywood apartment by setting up an observation post on a telephone pole across the street.

Another time, Hughes was eager to date actress Janet Leigh and had her followed wherever she went. The surveillance reports enabled Hughes to surprise her with opportune visits. It happened so often, she told us, that she finally realized it "wasn't a coincidence anymore."

Finally, she asked Hughes outright why he didn't "just ask me out." Hughes promptly asked and she accepted, with the provision that her parents go along. The four had a pleasant dinner at the Sportsmen's Lodge.

Not until later did she learn about the surveillance when Hughes "showed me the reports."

A number of famous actresses had Hughes' watchdogs on their trail. He arranged for Ava Gardner to be followed to a bullfight in Tijuana; Anne Bancroft was tailed for a brief period; Hughes even planted a spy aboard a fishing yacht to observe Jean Peters and her husband Stuart Cramer on their honeymoon. Later, the actress divorced Cramer and married Hughes.

The tall, lean, heavy-lidded billionaire would also take a sudden fancy to an unknown girl whom he might spot in a car or whose picture he might see in a magazine. More than once, he ordered his investigators to trace the license plates of a car carrying a pretty girl. Once, he searched for a girl who appeared in cap and gown on a Life magazine cover.

Perhaps Hughes' most extravagant romantic escapade occurred following a

Miss Universe contest. He was captivated by so many of the beauties that he actually set up a special company, called Black Gold Productions, to arrange dates with him for a dozen finalists.

He kept a photographer on 24-hour call to photograph the women who stirred his interest. Once, the photographer flew all the way to Italy to shoot pictures of Sophia Loren. Hughes always wanted close-ups of the girls without makeup. Then the negatives would be printed untouched and would be rushed to the waiting Hughes.

If he liked what he saw, he might offer the girl a movie contract. Sometimes, he had a career in mind for her; other times, he had more personal designs.

She would be flown to Hollywood with her family, her belongings and sometimes her furniture. While waiting to meet Hughes, she would be rushed through a round of acting, singing and dancing lessons and beauty appointments.

Each woman had a chauffeur-driven car to whisk her around Hollywood and to escort her to lavish dinners at the best night spots. All the while, Conrad and his investigators would check out the women carefully. They were usually instructed to locate any boy friends and get rid of them.

When Hughes got around to it, sometimes after several months had passed, he would call the girl. Sometimes he would profess to be in another city, although he might be just down the corridor.

He would promise a visit but would not appear. This would be followed by other calls until the girl's anticipation would build up.

He used other little tricks to win over a romantic prospect. On occasion, for example, he would buy her a dog and arrange for the dog to be stolen. Then he would find the dog and triumphantly return it to her.

But slowly, Hughes began to shun the women he once pursued. The last decade of his life was spent, ironically, as a celibate.

Footnote: Our associate Bob Owens tracked down Mike Conrad in Thousand Oaks, Calif. The detective refused to discuss his work for Hughes but confirmed the incidents we had dug out. Conrad also confirmed that Hughes had spent about $2 million to spy on beautiful women.

"One!"

evenings cooking. She cannot resist a genuine bargain, and almost bought a $1,500 Chinese rickshaw for $500.

Her closet has been full of clothes for 10 years. Idly, I wondered how she managed to fit the new "bargains" inside. I went to the utility room for a hammer. Skirts, dresses, gowns and coats hang from the rafters. They look new to me. She says they are all "old."

Well, so am I. She keeps an empty hanger for me. The cooking is a problem because she now cooks for two. A roast beef looks gray on the third day. We never have a loin of pork or a ham unless we expect visitors!

She still bakes. If a piece of orange cake is left over, the dog gets a shot at it. She has trained Charlie Chan to eat sliced tomatoes and marinated cucumbers. He now thinks he's a people.

There, I have caught up on my correspondence. I admonish you girls to study these words of wisdom. Remember, if you write you're right.

Failure of 'Soft Approach'

The flap over Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's alleged statements to Admiral Elmo Zumwalt that the U.S. has become "second best" to the Soviet Union may be re-awakening the country to the unpleasant reality that the Communists intend to encircle us by promoting one nibbling action after another. But Admiral Zumwalt, who I believe is speaking the truth about his conversations with Kissinger, has a long way to go in his patriotic proselytizing if he hopes to convince Congress that all is not well with the defenses of the Republic.

So many of our Senators and Representatives are the victims of the illusion that the Soviet Union can be persuaded to work for "peace through law" that only the most dramatic voter pressure can possibly change things on Capitol Hill. How, for example, can people be brought to counter the soft defeatist propaganda that is put forth by the unofficial organization called Members of Congress for Peace Through Law? This group, which is "steered" by Senators Edward Brooke, Edmund Muskie, Mark Hatfield, Charles Mathias Jr. and Philip Hart among others, is for so many things that sound reasonable on their face that it is like coming out against mom and apple pie to challenge them.

The Peace Through Law advocates want to work for a world reduction of armaments. They want a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty. They want arms control impact statements on major new strategic weapons systems. They would like to save billions on Pentagon expenditures. They want to negotiate a new Panama Canal treaty that will make the best of all possible worlds, providing safety in transit, cheap inter-ocean fares, and recognition of Panamanian sovereignty that will not take away from U.S. responsibility to keep things running.

The trouble with this soft approach to world problems is that Communists are only interested in turning it against us. The Peace Through Law Senators and Representatives have apparently never read Stalin and Lenin on the "colonial question." From the very beginning the Communists have pushed an ambitious program of filling in the vacuum caused by the West European and American "retreat from empire." "Neutrality" is only understood in Moscow as a ruse. The idea is to encircle the capitalist West with a whole outer world that is committed to socialist cooperation with the Marxist drive for hegemony.

We can have peace, but it won't come through the spread of "law." It will be by surrendering every last bit of territory right up to the continental limits of the U.S. The worst of it is that the Members of Congress for Peace Through Law would leave us bereft of the arms necessary to defend our own continental freedom.

Look at the amendments that various Peace Through Law advocates have tried to attach to defense budget authorizations. Senator George McGovern has tried to cut all appropriations for the B-1 bomber. Senator Edward Kennedy has attempted to eliminate funds for 50 spare Minutemen II intercontinental ballistic missiles. Senator Mike Gravel doesn't want to provide money for any further anti-ballistic missile development, he wants to cut 200,000 of the 300,000 U.S. troops abroad, and he would like to ban the formation of three new U.S. Army combat divisions. Senator William Hathaway has proposed the elimination of funds for the sea-launched cruise missile.

In the House Representative

Robert Leggett wants to cut back on the Trident submarine program, and Representative Les Aspin hopes to put an across-the-board ceiling on defense spending in general.

Most of the Peace Through Law amendments have not gone through. This country hasn't been totally deprived of its senses. But the failure of key legislators to find out what the Marxist exploitation of the "colonial question" is all about keeps us from pursuing a policy of nerving up our allies abroad and awakening our citizens at home to the tough realities they face.

Admiral Zumwalt's formula for redemption is simple: Let's start telling the truth about the way things are. His quarrel with Henry Kissinger is not that our Secretary of State is pessimistic. Kissinger's real failure is that he has never chosen to tell Congress or the people the reasons for his pessimism. If we don't know why we are Number Two, we will never get back to a position of equality, let alone recovering the only safe status of being Number One.

Sizing Up All The Customers

WASHINGTON — There was an intriguing article in a recent issue of Cue magazine about Joseph Ferrari, manager of the posh Palm Court in the Plaza Hotel, who is one of New York's most skilled sizer-uppers.

Joseph, as everyone calls him, says that when a customer walks in he can tell in two or three seconds "where he comes from, what he wants to be, what he pretends to be, whether he is with his wife or girlfriend. From a few items I can tell the status, origin, idiosyncrasies and the image people want to project."

When I came down here I asked my friend, Paul Delisle, maitre d' at the famed Sans Souci restaurant, whether he could size up people like his counterpart in New York.

"But of course!" Paul replied. "Except that here the people tend to be somewhat more exotic."

"Exotic?" I exclaimed. "In Washington?"

"Certainly," Paul said. "Take for example that table over there by the wall. The man facing us obviously works for the CIA. He is well-dressed, but the boutonniere in his lapel is a fake. That flower is undoubtedly a bug, attached by a wire on the inside of his jacket to a recording device, which appears as a slight bulge in his pocket."

"Fantastic! Any more?"

"I noticed when he sat down that he was fumbling for his pipe, forgetting for an instant that it wasn't there. Since most CIA men smoke pipes, they are careful not to do it in public for fear it will give them away."

"I'm impressed. Who are those other people with him?"

"Let's see. The man with his back to the wall has a round well-fed face, horn-rimmed glasses, cigar, loud tie, loud jacket, loud voice, and he's ordering a second double martini. His wrist watch is bugged, incidentally. I could tell from his walk when he came in that he was once a construction worker. So I would say that he is a public relations man for a labor organization, probably the building trades union."

"Interesting combination."

Who is the third man?"

"Mmmmmmm. He's obviously wearing a wig. Dark glasses. False moustache, slightly crooked. He's even got fake teeth — a cheap set, probably bought in a novelty store. See how one part of his upper lip keeps getting caught whenever he smiles? It's a terrible disguise. I'd say he was a foreign spy, possibly Bulgarian. That hearing aid is undoubtedly a bugging device."

"But what would those three...?"

At that moment a beautiful woman came in, pointed to the very table we were discussing, and was seated by Paul.

"This is becoming fascinating!" I said. "What can you tell me about her?"

"Expensive perfume," Paul said. "Probably Chanel No. 5. Almost regal posture. An Yves Saint Laurent dress. Her bugging device is buried in the cleavage, by the way. Slight Spanish accent. Unusual muscles. Callouses on her hands, inside her elbows, and behind her knees."

"How do you know all that?"

"I noticed when I seated her," Paul replied modestly.

"What do you make of it?"

"Only one thing. She is a very successful circus trapeze artist."

I gave a low whistle. "Paul, that's amazing! But why would a CIA man, a spy, and a trapeze artist all be lunching together?"

"I haven't any idea," Paul answered with a shrug. "To find that out you would have

Ford Considers His Mate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is in no rush to indicate his choice of a vice presidential running mate.

"I have to get nominated myself first," he teasingly responds when asked the question, which is often.

If he has his way, Ford probably will not make a firm decision until after he has nailed the top spot on the Republican ticket himself and after he has surveyed the political scene. Like any politician, Ford will pragmatically weigh one factor — who can do the most for him in the vote-getting field.

He also undoubtedly will be taking into consideration whether he needs a heavy hitter who is popular in the South, or whether he has been pushed to the right too much himself in the contest with conservative challenger Ronald Reagan and needs some political bolstering on the moderate or liberal side.

The vice presidency has often been a plum for the incumbent to dangle. The classic case is Franklin D. Roosevelt who promised the vice presidential nomination to many, particularly in 1944, and got a lot of people mad at him. In the end, the Democratic pros talked him into choosing a relatively nationally unknown — Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri.

President Lyndon B. Johnson also played games with the vice presidency in 1964, leading many to believe they were the front runners, while Johnson-Humphrey signs were being painted in the basement of convention hall in Atlantic City, N.J. at LBJ's behest.

When he finally told Hubert H. Humphrey that he was the one, he reminded him, "You're only going to be a messenger boy around here."

Ford has ticked off a number of names of men who would be attractive running mates. They include Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, Sens. Howard Baker, Tenn., Edward M. Brooke, Mass., Charles E. Percy, Ill., William Brock, Tenn., Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and former Texas Gov. John B. Connally among others.

Ford also has mentioned one woman, Housing Secretary Carlo Hills, for the No. 2 spot, but no one would make any bets on that.

And Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has ruled himself out of the running with Ford's acquiescence.

Some of Ford's Texas pundits are speculating that Connally has tried to strike a deal with Ford for the vice presidency. Connally is playing it cool and says he is remaining "neutral" in the crucial Texas primary where he could swing heavy weight with Texas conservatives.

It appears certain that Ford will not select an unknown, but rather a national figure who would enhance his ticket.

The day may come when vice presidential hopefuls have to run on their merits in primary bids themselves. But old politics still being what it is, vice presidents still are the choice of the presidential candidate, and what it gets down to in many ways is that one person selects the future President.

Since 1945, three vice presidents have acceded to the presidency because of death, assassination and resignation.

But few presidential candidates seem to take into consideration that their running mates may wind up in the White House and therefore should be highly qualified to assume that awesome position.

New Era in Israeli-Arab Relations

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Arabs of the West Bank have made it clear they want an end to Israel's military occupation and the creation of a Palestinian state.

The decisive victories by Palestinian nationalists in Monday's municipal elections across the occupied territory signaled the start of a new era in relations between Israel and the 650,000 Arabs of the West Bank.

It may be the start of an era of confrontation between occupier and occupied or it may be the beginning of a far-reaching dialogue between Israel and the Arabs who lost their lands when the Jewish state was born 28 years ago.

Some sources close to the Israeli government expressed concern that the militant gains in the balloting may ignite the explosive West Bank — scene of more than two months of anti-Israeli unrest.

But other knowledgeable Israelis said the emergence of a nationalist leadership in most major towns of the region may provide a bridge for a dialogue between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The informants said the new nationalist leaders may be able to convince Israel to ease its opposition to the birth of a Palestinian state and get the PLO to modify its refusal to recognize the Jewish state.

"It won't happen overnight," one of the sources said. "It may take a long time, maybe even 10 years or more. But the elections add a new ingredient to the whole problem and I wouldn't be surprised if it leads to a new solution."

The Jerusalem Post recently said it was better for Israel to meet "relatively extreme Palestinian nationalists across municipal executive desks rather than in terrorist confrontations."

Both Israel and the PLO said they could live with the new leadership on the West Bank — although Israel's response indicated a grudging acceptance of the inevitable.

In an apparent awareness of the new times at hand, the Israeli government kept troops out of West Bank towns during the voting and let local Arab policemen keep order.

Some Arab leaders had blamed the presence of Israeli troops for the deaths of six youths during a violence-marred strike two weeks ago to protest the takeover of Arab lands in the northern Galilee region.

The first possible source of confrontation appeared to be over Israel's insistence that the new leaders limit their roles to municipal affairs and the victors commitment to the creation of a Palestinian state.

Peres warned that any person who tried to use his municipal office for political purposes "would be making a mistake and will not be able to be a good mayor."

But Dr. Hatem Abou Ghazaleh, a Nablus physician who won a council seat with a pro-PLO campaign, vowed to fight any Israeli attempt at "legitimizing the occupation" of the West Bank, captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War.

Rehab Work May Disturb Water Service

KINGSTON — Water service to residents and businesses of the uptown Kingston area may be disrupted at times during the next three months because of on-going rehabilitation work on a major 16-inch water main that serves that area.

The work involves installation of seven new 16-inch valves underneath portions of Clinton Avenue from Liberty to Greenkill Avenues, on Greenkill Avenue from Clinton to Washington Avenues and on Washington Avenue from Greenkill to Lucas Avenues.

According to Edwin T. Radel, administrative assistant of the Kingston Water Board, every effort will be made to minimize the impact of the water main shutdowns. He said the water will be shut off minutes before workmen begin to remove a section of the main, and then will be turned on immediately after the new valve is installed.

Radel said the entire procedure should take no more than an hour and a half under ideal circumstances; a maximum of three hours if the workmen encounter problems. Residents of that area, therefore, would be without water service for a maximum of three hours for one day only.

The work, said Radel, will be performed during daylight working hours whenever possible, so that residents will not be without water during dinner time or evening hours.

Not all of the residents of the uptown area will be affected by the shutdowns, said Radel, because the water main itself actually serves only a few people. Those individuals or businesses that will be affected will be notified in advance.

Perhaps even more significantly, the main that is being repaired supplies the uptown fire hydrants with water for fire-fighting purposes. When portions of the line are shut down this summer, there will be no hydrant water available for fire emergencies.

Radel said that is the major reason why the work will be performed as quickly as possible. He said the city police and fire departments will be notified in advance when any portion of the water main is disrupted.

The rehabilitation work represents the first major project undertaken with funds from Community Development. In addition to the installation of new valves, the entire main will be cleared of sediments that have built up over the years, and a cement mortar lining will be applied to prevent future sediment buildup. The overall effect of the project will be vastly improved water pressure for that area of the city.

By necessity, the work will involve several large excavations on Washington, Clinton and Greenkill Avenues. To avoid unnecessary traffic problems, the Water Department has requested residents to bypass that area whenever possible.

The work is being performed by Spiniello Construction Co. under a contract awarded by the Common Council. The heavy construction work began earlier this week.

Quilt Display at UCCC

STONE RIDGE — An exhibition titled "Image of the American Quilt" will be presented by the UCCC Department of Visual Arts May 2-28. Highlight of this exhibition of 75 quilts will be an Ulster County Bicentennial Quilt honoring one of New York State's 10 original counties.

On display in the College Visual Arts Gallery, the Ulster County Bicentennial Quilt incorporates 42 pictorial blocks, each of which depicts places and events of historic or scenic interest and represents 350 years of growth and development within the county. Forty-two women of diverse backgrounds, ranging in age from 20 to 79, planned, designed and worked together creating a "community" quilt in the manner of an old-time "Quilting Bee" reflecting a community of spirit so vital to the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

This project was conceived and coordinated by Ruth Culver, who teaches Quilting in the Continuing Education Program at Ulster County Community College.

Additional quilts will be exhibited also: a historic Centennial Quilt, a Star of Bethlehem, an applique Album Quilt and a Crazy Quilt. There will be several applique quilts and dozens of patchwork quilts all of which are of antique vintage. Among the remaining quilts on display, will be several new patchwork and unusual new contemporary design quilts.

The exhibit will feature also a "Story Book Quilt" with 20 blocks, each made by a different person, including three men.

An opening reception to meet the artists will be held Sunday, May 2 from 2-4 p.m. in the Visual Arts Gallery. The gallery, located in Vanderlyn Hall at Ulster County Community College, is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and on selected weekends.

During the show, a new "Presentation" quilt will be set up for visitors who will be invited to try their hand at quilting.

DAR Booklet Features Saugerties Homes

Down through the years a great deal has been written about stone houses in Old Hurley, New Paltz and Stone Ridge. Few realize that more than 60 stone houses of assorted ages are still "home" to families in the Saugerties Township. As many as eight generations have been sheltered by some of these historic structures.

Saugerties had its first settler in 1663 when legend has it, the "Little Sawyer" bought land from the Indians and started a saw-mill near the Hudson River on the lower Sawkill Creek. Other settlers followed, some even before the American Revolution, built their homes and laid a foundation for life in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Life

The houses of native bluestone and limestone still stand their and fireplaces of cobblestones taken from creekbeds still intact.

It took a great deal of work to gather information about the Township's stone houses. It was a project undertaken by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, Saugerties Chapter.

In celebration of America's Bicentennial, DAR members voted to preserve local history by publishing a booklet about the stone houses complete with pictures and text. Chairman was Mrs. Chester B. Glunt, DAR historian. On the book committee were Mrs. Carroll Nieffer, regent, Mrs. David C. DeForest, vice regent, Mrs. Lewis Gaylord, sketches, Mrs. John Lowther, Mrs. Albert Tice, Mrs. Herbert Hommel and David C. DeForest of the Christian Myer Society, photographer.

Gov. Thomas Dongan was granted 197 acres of land in 1686 in what is now West Camp. It was deeded to John and Thomas Faulerton in 1690 and later sold to the Philipse family. In 1742 a house was built on the site by John William Dederick and in 1951 was sold to John Dimmler. Today the beautiful structure, which once was listed as a post office and blacksmith shop, is owned by Donald Hanzi. It is still called the "Dederick House."

Lanigan House, which is now the home of Joseph Muscarella on Glasco Turnpike, was built about 1700. Originally, the house was a fort and still has a ladder leading to the loft. There is even an old cemetery on the property. The Edmund Osterhoudt House in Glasco was built in 1819 on the Flatbush Road (Route 32). Owned now by Hal Purdy, it still represents the hardness of early settlers.

Mynderse Schoonmaker House, owned today by the Edwin B. Bond family, is located on Spaulding Lane. This stone house was originally built on land received by Mynderse Schoonmaker as a grant from Queen Ann in the early 1700's. The Schoonmaker family continued to live in the house until the 1850's when the southern portion of the lane was purchased by Charles Spaulding, consisting of a tract of land extending east to the Hudson River, south to Glasco and west to what is now Route 9W. Cornelia Vanderpoel purchased the northern portion.

The former Schoentag's Colonial Tavern, now owned by David and Beatrice Bright, used to be an old meeting place; the Cornelius Persen House in Katsbaan built during the early 1700's used to be the meeting place for Patriots during the Revolutionary War; property now known as "Stroomzeit," is located on the Hudson at Malden where Major Dan Wolven resided before the Revolution. The British burned his house but it was later rebuilt. It is said that Benedict Arnold also stayed there.

Old Stone Houses of Saugerties are richly steeped in history and played an important part in this area's development. Some of them have been designated as Historic Landmarks by the Ulster County Landmarks Commission. A copy of the DAR Bicentennial issue, "The Old Stone Houses of Saugerties Township" may be obtained by writing to: Ruth Glunt, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, Saugerties Chapter, Saugerties, N.Y. Cost is $2.75, if mailed, $2.50 if purchased in a book store.

Arts Councils Exchange Ideas

New Paltz — Three county arts councils exchanged information and ideas at a special meeting here recently. Representatives attended from Ulster, Dutchess and Sullivan Counties.

Patricia Yaeger, reporting for the Ulster County Council for the Arts, outlined the scope and services of the local organization. Carol Premezzi announced Ulster's annual meeting on April 24 at SUNY in New Paltz is open to all interested persons and the all-day meeting will feature workshops on grants, dance and theatre workshops with emphasis upon prop and costume problems and many other features of value to those concerned with advancing arts activities in this area as well as works by individual artists.

James Jacobs from the Sullivan County Council on the Arts reported on a Summer Festival sponsored by the Sullivan Community College with which the Council is closely allied. The Mid-Hudson Opera Group is planning to produce a native Indian play and asks assistance from other Councils.

John Berg of the Dutchess Arts Council reported he is trying to establish new priorities in which the arts will have a higher position with political and service groups in their county. Mrs. Evelyn Stevenson, president, has met with several groups such as the Junior League and League of Women Voters who have expressed interest in cooperating with the work of the Dutchess Arts Council.

The next meeting of the tri-county group will be called by the Sullivan Arts Council.

First Kingston Montessori School Seeking Students

KINGSTON — A new Montessori pre-school and kindergarten, the first in Kingston, is actively seeking parents of young children for fall registration. Montessori and Montessori oriented materials will be employed in the program along with more traditional nursery school practices such as block building, cooking, arts and crafts and dramatic play.

Detailed information about location, tuition and open house programs may be obtained from the school director, Robert Murphy, Vanderbilt Lane, Hyde Park.

The goal of the school, according to Mr. Murphy, is to create the very best living and learning environment possible for young children. This environment will be designed to help liberate the creative power in every healthy child, to help each child become confident, independent and self-reliant, and in the process develop a healthy self-image and love for learning. Every aspect of the school situation will be planned to provide the widest possibilities for success and accomplishment in the child's first school years.

Walkathon for World Hunger Set for May 1 at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — The Second Annual Walkathon for World Hunger will be held Saturday, May 1 at 10 a.m. The event will step off from the parking lot at SUNY and all proceeds will be earmarked for the United Nations World Food Program (Food and Agriculture Organization).

Last year more than 100 walkers, bicyclists and joggers completed the 21 mile loop and more than $3,200 was raised by the Walkathon.

From all indications, this year's hike promises to be even bigger in numbers. Registration will take place at the starting point from 10 a.m. to 12 but sponsor sheets should be completed prior to May 1st.

The UN Food Program works with local people in the most acute famine-stricken nations and only at the request of their governments. Most of the money is given to food network building. This would include rural development projects such as irrigation and farming methods and nutritional feeding programs for children rather than direct food allocations. When UN teams leave, local people take over and continue to implement the programs. The aim is to enable native people to overcome hunger by means which they determine beneficial with a view toward long-range effects on economic, social and cultural development.

Walkathon sheets with complete instructions may be obtained at the Student Christian Center, churches, community locations or on campus.

A World Hunger table is set up twice a week on campus, Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Humanities, and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Student Union Building.

PAW Offers 'Special' For Easter Weekend

WOODSTOCK —To delight area youngsters and adults on this Easter weekend, Performing Arts of Woodstock is offering a special holiday attraction in "Reynard the Fox." Easter vacation performances will be staged on Saturdays, April 17 and 24 at both 3 and 7:30 p.m. and on Sundays, April 18 and 25 at 3 p.m. matinees. All performances will be in Woodstock Town Hall.

Translated from the French play by MarieLouise Roelants, "Reynard the Fox" is being directed by Michael Cruickshank, who has acted with Rochester's Blackfriars Inc., written and directed nine one-act plays of his own, and staged many adult classics.

The founder of a children's theatre in Brockport, he produced his own script, "The Magic Stone," there; later restaged it for summer stock in Naples, where he directed for three years before coming to Woodstock in 1975. He has since appeared in the acting cast of several Performing Arts productions and directed a children's show at the Joan Ysengrin, the Wolf; and Paul Washington as Reynard the Fox. Completing the cast are Scott Gagnon as Reverend Epinard, the Hedgehog; Bryce Mainieri as Noble, the Lion; and Hillary Weing as Lendore, the Marmot.

Special costumes have been designed by Elaine Kugler and Adna Karns, and PAW veterans are in charge of staging, lights, sound and backstage crew.

"Reynard the Fox" could well launch a children's wing to round out the theatre fare it offers as a year-round resident company, says PAW. Ticket reservations and additional information can be obtained by calling Edith LeFever through her Woodstock telephone directory listing. Seats will also be available at the door of Woodstock Town Hall on the afternoons and evenings of performances.

Weekend

Gordon Theatre of the Woodstock Playhouse. For "Reynard the Fox," Cruickshank has both designed the sets and directed the cast.

It is a cast that includes seven young people: Hiliard MacDonald as Ticelin, the Crow; Michelle Norden as Brun, the Bear; Ken White as

MICHAEL CRUICKSHANK, who is directing "Reynard the Fox," an Easter vacation entertainment for children.

Gala Weekend In Rosendale

ROSENDALE — A gala Bicentennial Weekend is being planned for June 12 and 13 in Rosendale with a parade scheduled for the 13th at 3 o'clock.

Jim McNamara and Dick Glazer are general co-chairmen of the celebration committee.

Janczek, finance; Jim DiStasio, trophies; Ray Temple, parade route and decorations; Loretta Doolittle and Ruth Gheer, publicity; Peach Williams, security.

Helen and John Banach are in charge of the fair which will include tables for antiques, arts, crafts, flea market and food.

Participants in the parade are encouraged to have floats depicting an American Heritage theme. Trophies will be awarded.

'The Gazebo' Is Coach House May Production

KINGSTON — A combination of mirth and murder sparks "The Gazebo," the next attraction of Coach House Players. The melodramatic farce takes over the stage of J. Watson Bailey School on May 6, 7 and 8 at 8:30 p.m.

"Gazebo" sends a television mystery-writer spinning through a ludicrous series of murderous events. In the cocky belief that his ability to spin homicidal webs so skillfully for the homescreen qualifies him to commit a perfect murder, he plots to do away with an unsavory gent who's trying to blackmail his wife. And accomplishes just that through an elaborate check-list of clues he must conceal. But perfection eludes him and he forgets one thing. The crime is committed in the dark, the body is sealed away in the foundations of a new gazebo...but the wrong man may have been done in by the nonlight of the moon. In the rib-tickling romp that follows, the sale of the gazebo by the wife threatens to expose the corpus delicti.

Wendell Scherer, a Coach House veteran, will star as the TV writer who learns it's easier to write about murder than commit murder most foul. Kathy Eberhardt will play his decorative spouse, who remains unaware of his nefarious deed. Currently directing "The Gazebo" in rehearsal is George Quartell.

OVER THE BAR goes Saint Joseph's School student Lorine Wolfe as Mrs. Madeline Labriola stands by. The primary department of the Kingston school demonstrated gymnastic skills during a special evening program on April 12. Parents attending saw an agile performance of floor and bar exercise; also heard Mrs. Labriola explain the school's physical education program.

FOR THE JOSEPH BERARDIS it was an occasion to be remembered. More than 100 guests, fellow employees and relatives were on hand recently to honor Berardi at a retirement dinner in Kingston, as he retired from his long-time employment at the local Brigham School. The dinner was hosted by the local Civil Service Employees Association. Mrs. Gerry Bailey was in charge of arrangements and music was provided by "The Misfits."

Heart Attack! How Others Can Help

As we grow older we have our blood pressure checked, try to eat foods with fewer calories and less cholesterol, exercise moderately and do other things which might delay a heart attack so that we can live longer. But people do have heart attacks. If we know what to do at the scene, will it keep a stricken victim alive those few precious minutes until a doctor or rescue squad arrives?

This important question hit home when my wife and I learned that a small oxygen tank and mask are locked up in a cabinet in each of the laundry rooms on the 15 floors of the highrise building where we live.

After reading the instructions on the tank and seeing a demonstration of how to administer oxygen should someone have a sudden heart seizure, we thought we knew everything and were well prepared if that emergency should face us.

That is, until we watched a local Public Broadcasting System television program one night as three doctors demonstrated what to do for a person in those first few minutes of a heart attack. We learned application of oxygen was useless if the stricken person wasn't breathing.

We think we now know how to use heavy pressure on the chest portion of the body and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to first get the victim breathing regularly and then use the oxygen mask. We want to know more and want our neighbors also to know and are arranging for a life-saving demonstration for the other condominium owners in our building. Such demonstrations can be arranged through a local Heart Fund Association, the Red Cross, a medical society, a doctor of the local fire department, which usually operates the emergency rescue ambulance.

Although my wife and I are in comparatively good health, people in our age group possibly are more susceptible to coronary seizures. We realized there were important things to put in order in case one of us was suddenly hit by a heart attack.

The key to the oxygen equipment cabinet now hangs on a nail in the guest closet which is closest to the entrance door to our apartment. We know the first thing to do is call our local fire department to speed the rescue ambulance to our home. But how did we list this phone number? Under H for Hallandale, where we live; F for fire department; E for emergency? And since we have three phone extensions but only one personal address-phone book, it probably wouldn't be near the phone extension we would be using in an emergency.

We hope we're now much better prepared. Taped to the inside of the closet doors in the rooms where we have the phone extensions, written in large numbers and letters, are the phone numbers for the fire department rescue squad, our family physician and the hospital with which he is associated, a friend in our building who is a practicing physician in another field of medicine, and a close friend living five miles away, who retired from a cardiology practice and continues with coronary research in South Florida.

All of us can hope and pray that we won't have a sudden heart attack and the rescue ambulance won't be delayed in a heavy traffic jam. Our community has one main street, usually heavy with traffic most of the day and night and plans are underway to equip motorcycle sidecars with the necessary equipment to enable a paramedic to ride the sidewalks when he can't cut through the maze of traffic.

A physician friend visiting a nearby condominium rushed to the side of a man who had had a heart seizure and was immediately joined by six other men, all in the older age bracket. They had taken life-saving instructions from the local Red Cross and were qualified enough to have kept the stricken man alive until the ambulance rescue squad arrived.

Rather than just lying around in the sun they had banded together to form their own life-saving rescue team for the hundreds of neighbors in their large apartment complex. And this should be a good, encouraging example for others to get together to lend a helping hand in saving a life. It's the best example of the "Good Neighbor Policy" we know.

Sore Throat Can Be Treated

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very worried about my 3-year-old son. He has a very bad sore throat. I took him to the doctor and he told me he has quinsy.

I would appreciate it if you would explain what that is and what causes it. The doctor told me my son inherited it from me. As a child I had frequent sore throats and weak tonsils. I try to take the best care of my children's health as I can.

My son became sick on Monday and on Tuesday he was a little worse. He said his throat did not hurt. Then Wednesday morning he tried to eat his breakfast and he couldn't swallow, so I took him right over to the doctor. How can a child get that sick so fast and not complain? I feel very helpless and bewildered. I asked the doctor and he just said it was a bad sore throat and that he hadn't seen such a case in years.

DEAR READER — The term quinsy is used for the development of an abscess around the tonsil as a complication of a severe sore throat, usually a strep throat. The tissue around the tonsil area is fairly loose and an abscess can form and become quite large. It may produce severe swelling of the neck. Certainly it's enough to cause difficulty for a child in swallowing.

The usual nature of quinsy is to cause a sudden change in illness just as you described. The child may be getting along very well with an ordinary sore throat and then have a sudden marked swelling of the throat, difficulty in swallowing, fever and evidence of severe illness. Just keep in mind that it is simply an abscess and it is caused by an infection. It can be treated and it is not that dangerous today because of the treatments which are available.

This was once a dreaded and fairly frequent complication of strep throat but since strep throats are largely controlled today with antibiotics it is seldom seen. That's why your true that some people seem to be more resistant to infections than others but the exact reasons for this are not always clear.

For more information on sore throats and colds send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 3-1, The Cold, Flu Group. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

THERE IS a wide variety of questions, comments and other things in my mailbox. Recently I received a printed statement from one of the readers which was short, simple and full of wisdom. It read as follows, "Don't be afraid to ask stupid questions. They're a lot easier to handle than stupid mistakes."

I'm inclined to agree and such a philosophy is certainly important where health is concerned. A simple question can sometimes solve important problems that have far reaching effects on one's life and health.

I think your colum is pritty good. I don't always agree with your ansers but then nobody is perfekt. I shur got to give you a lot of credit. It takes a lot of guts to tell people what to do becuz you no what happens to people who stik there nose in other people's bizniss. — "F IN ENGLISH"

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that men who are bald at an early age have a very low sex drive. Is that true? — GOING WITH ONE

DEAR GOING: Not necessarily. Just because there's chrome on the dome doesn't mean there's no power under the hood.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing from my hospital bed where I have been confined for three weeks. I'll be here for at least another three weeks for treatment, but that's not my problem.

My problem is a relative who comes to visit me nearly every day. I never saw that much of her when I was well, and she aggravates me. She always brings me bad news and the worst kind of gossip. If I have other visitors while she's here, she doesn't let anybody else talk. She is a very loud and overbearing person. And she's an authority on everything.

She asks questions that are none of her business, such as: "How much does it cost to stay here and how much is covered by insurance?" Then she ends up by telling me that most people go home sicker than they were when they came to the hospital because there is so much disease around there.

Also, she said, "You aren't really sick at all; it's all in your head."

Abby, how can I keep that woman out of here? I don't want to put a "Do not disturb" sign on my door because I like company—but not her! What can I do? —TRAPPED IN THE HOSPITAL

DEAR TRAPPED: Enlist the help of your nurses and/or your doctor. Ask them to please tell the woman that her visits are upsetting and she is not to come again.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped (26 cents) envelope.

Unlucky the One Who Dines Alone

For a long time, single travelers and single diners have been screaming about discrimination.

I've never had to put up with the extra charges of making a trip as a single, but I've certainly experienced the inequality of eating alone.

I am led beyond the "PLEASE WAIT FOR HOSTESS TO SEAT YOU" sign, down past the "NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR LOST ARTICLES" racks, beyond the "KEEP CLEAR OF SWINGING DOOR" and into a twilight zone that is void of laughter, voices, or for that matter any other human sounds. There, at a table the size of a coaster, I am seated between a sign that reads, "DAMES" and "EMPLOYEES ONLY."

This would be amusing were it not for the fact that one evening I actually had a woman emerge from "DAMES,"

drop a dime in my saucer and say, "You're almost out of soap, dear."

There are a lot of myths surrounding the single diner that I'd like to get out of the way today:

Single diners eat to get it over with and just love to sit at a counter and stare at six three-day-old cream pies in a fly-specked mirror. False.

The person who eats alone usually does so between Mondays and Thursdays. Those who come on weekends do so to make trouble. False.

The lone diner likes nothing better than to be coupled with a perfect stranger with whom she has nothing in common who keeps staring at her like she hired the matchmaker from "Fiddler on the Roof." False.

If a restaurant gets a reputation for sitting single people at the window, in full view of other people, it could mean in a few years you'll be having single people bussed into your neighborhood. False.

Maybe it's my imagination, but people react condescendingly to a person who dines alone. One man approached my table one night and said in a loud voice (like I only read lips), "Is anyone sitting in this chair?"

I looked at the empty chair a full minute, then said,

"There was, but he died waiting for service."

He took the chair away from the table, returned in a few minutes and said, "You don't need your salt and pepper, do you?" I shook my head. Then he whispered, "Do you always eat alone?"

"Only when I'm lucky," I whispered back.

Old or New, Yankee Stadium Is Still Greatest

By Ira Fushfeld

NEW YORK—It is still Yankee Stadium. Oh, the poles are gone and so is most of the world famous hanging facade—save for that bit adorning the bleacher-length scoreboard. And the fences are shorter and higher and the seats are fewer. But when you sit and watch a ballgame this summer in Yankee Stadium—the hallowed yard in the Bronx which re-opened Thursday—you'll feel like it's the old park all over again.

"I think it's the prettiest ballpark I've ever seen," was the way Mickey Mantle described it.

"It really hasn't changed that much," he continued, sitting at a table in the Yankee clubhouse after the New Yorkers had successfully inaugurated their home with a come-from-behind 11-4 victory over Minnesota before 52,613 delighted fans. "They've got the hairdryers and mirrors and lights in each locker stall and the facade is gone and the fences are in a little. But it isn't that much different."

What did he think when he trotted onto the new field for the first time during impressive pre-game ceremonies honoring famous Yankee Stadium personalities of the past?

"Whenever I go out there and people are cheering for me like they did it's kinda hard to think. It just chills you," Mickey said softly. "One thing I remember doing was looking up at where the facade used to be in the upper deck in right field. I don't think anyone will ever hit one over that."

the mid-60's, a skyrocket which hit the top of the stadium and was still rising, was considered the closest thing to a fair ball ever being hit out of Yankee Stadium.

Mickey did look longingly at the shorter outfield fences. The deepest part of the park—the famed "Death Valley"—is just 430 feet compared to the old 471. And the dead center marker is just 417 feet away.

"I would have been better off in this park," Mantle said. "I hit all my long drives to center field."

It didn't take the baseball world long to see the difference between the old and new "Death Valley." The first ball hit in the new stadium Thursday was a hit-run homer by Minnesota's Dan Ford, a healthy blast over the 430 sign, but a long out, or at worst a double or triple, in the old stadium.

What makes the new stadium so similar to the old is its basic shape. Although the dimensions are different, it does not take on the cookie-cutter mold of most new parks. Rather, the characteristic design of the stadium enables the long-time Yankee fan to feel right at home.

The monuments no longer are in dead center field, but instead are behind the shortened fence in left center. The Yankee bullpen borders the visitors' pen in center. Auxiliary scoreboards now hang off the first and third base mezzanines rather than from the bleacher walls. Only the right field bleachers are for fans. And the main scoreboard is a three-paneled job, the center of which will eventually be capable of showing replays (it was out of order Thursday).

The historic re-opening went off as scheduled, despite a protest outside the park by members of a South Bronx organization angered over the stadium's alleged $100 million price tag (to be paid by the financially-plagued city), and despite a walkout by stadium ticket takers.

The Yankees brought back some of the great names of the past to help them celebrate the day. Yankee stars Mantle, Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra, Billy Martin, Elston Howard, Whitey Ford, Don Larsen, and Bobby Richardson were there—the latter to deliver the invocation. From the football world came Giant greats Kyle Rote and Frank Gifford and from the Baltimore Colts, winners of the historic sudden death game at the stadium, were coach Web Ewbank and line man Jim Parker.

The Notre Dame-Army football series

was marked by quarterbacks Johnny Lujack and Arnold Tucker. Joe Louis represented boxing.

And from the distant past, members of the 1923 Yankee team that opened the original stadium Oscar Roettger, Hinky Haines, Joe Dugan, Waite Hoyt and Whitey Witt were on hand.

Special honored guests were Mrs. Babe Ruth and Mrs. Lou Gehrig, former Postmaster James Farley, long-time Yankee clubhouse man Pete Sheehy, restaurateur Toots Shor, and the Voice of the Yankees Mel Allen.

Also present were Govs. Carey and Byrne.

It was a day baseball fans in New York had been awaiting eagerly and they weren't disappointed. The weather was perfect, the stadium was beautiful and the Yankees won going away.

Yankee Stadium is back in business.

A Day of Confusion At the Ball Park

NEW YORK—Yankee Stadium notebook . . . There was the characteristic amount of confusion surrounding any opening day when Yankee Stadium was re-inaugurated Thursday.

No one seemed to know where anything was. Reporters bounced into each other looking for the route from the field to the press box and then down again to the clubhouse. Vendors couldn't find their way out once the game had ended. Special policemen didn't know where to get dressed.

If you're planning on going to Yankee Stadium this season, leave early and figure on getting home late. Traffic is a mess and finding the parking lots isn't easy. After the game, exiting and then getting on the highways is a super chore. No help is in sight until the surrounding access roads are completed. That shouldn't be in time for this season . . .

"Did you find your way around," Yogi Berra asked. "You sorta need a road map, don't you?"

We asked one back at Yogi. What does Billy Martin have him doing on the bench? "Loafin," he grinned . . .

"I don't think Ford's homer would have gone out in the old park, but he sure hit the bleep out of the ball," said Elston Howard, referring to Dan Ford's 430 foot-plus HR in the first inning. "When I was playing that was just a routine out."

view seats. Members of the press were dismayed to find home plate blocked off by a two foot ledge from those sitting in the first row of the press box. Phil Rizzuto did most of his announcing standing up.

The press didn't have it easy before the game either. Many of us, including some of the better known New York City TV people, cooled our heels for upwards of two hours waiting for press credentials to be issued. That plus a crowd of fans looking for the celebrities to enter the park, caused quite a traffic jam in front of the press gate.

Biggest roar from those watching the big-wigs enter, by the way, was reserved for non other than Howard Cosell . . .

The opening day attendance of 52,613 was largest for a Yankee home opener since 54,826 paid on April 19, 1946.

Players on the Yankee roster today who were with the club when the old stadium closed its doors on September 30, 1973 are Sparky Lyle, Dave Pagan, Rick Dempsey, Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles, Fred Stanley, Otto Velez, Roy White, and the disabled Ron Blomberg.

Blomberg undergoes surgery today to repair bicep tendonitis. Dr. Frank Jobe will hold the knife at Catinella Valley Hospital in Inglewood, Calif.

The Yankees say good seats are still available for the final two games of the series with Minnesota, Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Yogi Berra, Joe Louis, Mickey Mantle and Joe DiMaggio Are the Center of Attraction.

Dave Kingman Continues Torrid Hitting

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dave Kingman continued his torrid hitting streak Thursday when he drove in five runs with a pair of homers—including a three-run ninth inning blast—to power the New York Mets to a 10-8 victory over the Chicago Cubs, breaking a three-game losing streak.

Kingman's game-winning hit followed singles to Del Unser and John Milner and climaxed a five run comeback. It was his third homer in two games against Chicago and his fourth of the season.

Kingman's first homer came after a walk to Milner in the second inning.

Skip Lockwood, the fourth Met pitcher, hurled 2 2-3 innings to even his record at 11, while Tom Detmore suffered the loss, his initial decision.

The Cubs took a 7-2 lead after the third inning when they scored three in the second and four in the third.

Steve Swisher doubled one run in the second and Dave Rosello followed with a two-run homer, the third of his career.

Chicago added four runs in the third when Thornton singled in two runs following a single by Rick Monday and walks to Bill Madlock and Morales. Trillo then drove in Morales with a single. An error and sacrifice fly by Swisher accounted for the seventh run.

But the Mets pecked away and tied the game in the seventh at 7-7 when Del Unser doubled and scored on John Stearns' single.

Milner's single, two walks and a pinch single by Joe Torre brought in a run in the fourth and three came in the sixth on Bud Harrelson's double, singles by Benny Ayala and Wayne Garrett, a walk to Felix Millan and Ed Kranepool's two-run single.

The Cubs had grabbed a onerun lead in the seventh when pinch hitter Joe Wallis' forced Dave Rosello at second base as Manny Trillo scored the go-ahead run.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Chicago White Sox ambushed Boston 8-4 and California whipped Kansas City 5-1.

Over in the National League, Pittsburgh routed St. Louis 9-3, Montreal downed Philadelphia 8-5, the New York Mets outslugged the Chicago Cubs 10-8 and Atlanta drubbed Cincinnati 10-5.

White Sox 8, Red Sox 4

Buddy Bradford slammed out a homer, two doubles and a single and drove in three runs to pace a 13-hit White Sox attack. Brian Downing also drove in a pair of runs for Chicago, one on a solo homer in the second. Bart Johnson, with the aid of four innings of shutout relief from Clay Carroll, gained the win.

Angels 5, Royals 1

Nolan Ryan, showing no ill effects from his off-season shoulder surgery, scattered four hits and struck out nine to gain his first win of the season for the Angels. Bruce Bochte knocked in two runs for California with a third inning single.

Pirates 9, Cardinals 3

Al Oliver and Willie Stargell drove home four seventh inning runs with back-to-back homers off Cardinals' relief ace Al Hrabosky. Oliver's homer was a three-run shot and sealed the fourth straight Pirates' win.

Expos 8, Phillies 5

Tim Lincecum's two-run double highlighted a six-run Expos' fourth inning and Mike Jorgensen added a two-run homer as Montreal dealt the Phillies' Jim Kaat his first National League loss. Woody Fryman hurled 5 2-3 innings for the win.

Braves 10, Reds 5

Off-season acquisitions Ken Henderson and Lee Lacy drove in three runs apiece in helping the Braves hand the Reds their first loss of the season. Henderson had three hits and singled home two first inning runs, while Lacy singled home two runs in the fourth.

When Two Joes Met

NEW YORK (UPI) — He almost went unnoticed, alone at the back of the press box, dressed in an immaculate business suit, a hand on the guardrail.

Then a huge black man walked over and laid a muscular arm on his shoulder. The two men exchanged smiles, and Joe Louis, the former heavyweight champion, sat down next to his friend, Joe DiMaggio.

Through the first inning played at the new Yankee Stadium Thursday, DiMaggio was motionless. His eyes never left the field and his expression, as always, never betrayed his thoughts.

Except once, when young Willie Randolph, the Yankees' new second baseman, let a throw from his catcher go into center field.

Then DiMaggio, who began his career with the Yankees two years after Babe Ruth ended his, allowed his lips to tighten and turned down the corners of his mouth.

A half hour before, he had loped gracefully onto the field to the roars of 53,862 fans.

Fathers nudged their unbelieving sons, who knew DiMaggio only from coffee commercials, and tried to explain how no one had ever played the game like this gray-haired man.

It was the first chance for Yankee fans from both generations to see the new

Those Last Three Holes

By UPI

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) — "Man, those last three holes," a damp Hubert Green sighed. "It was like a light hurricane in your face."

"It was very wet and the course really played long. My hands were so cold I was glad to get in."

That's the kind of weather the elite field of 22 faced Thursday in the first round of the $225,000 Tournament of Champions sponsored by Mutuel of New York.

Green, a skinny 6-1, 165-pounder who was the tour's 1971 Rookie of the Year, managed to put together a 3-under-par 69 in the wind and rain for a two-shot lead over defending champion Al Geiberger, Australian Bruce Crampton and veteran Don January.

The 6,855-yard La Costa Country Club course is one of the tour's toughest layouts even when the weather is nice. But Thursday's unseasonably sour conditions—the worst weather in the eight-year history of the T of C since it moved here from Las Vegas, Nev.—kept all but four players from breaking par.

"But it's still better than playing in the sunshine at Tallahassee," cracked Green, referring to the Tallahassee Open where the rest of the tour is playing this week.

"At the Masters last week, I tried to hit the ball high off the tee. I hit it low here and didn't miss a fairway all day. It wasn't a very enjoyable round, though. It was a lot of work."

Ray Floyd, who breezed to an eight-shot victory at the Masters last weekend, had the worst round of the day, a 6-over 78.

Green, 29, didn't play that well last week at Augusta. He was in contention after two rounds with a 71-66, but finished with a 78-77 for 19th place.

However, he notched three straight victories in March, the first man to win three in a row since Johnny Miller did it in 1974.

Green began this week as the tour's No. 2 money-winner with $134,556 behind Hale Irwin's $136,174.

"House that Ruth Built" since the completion of a three-year, $100 million renovation project. Many paid $40 for box seats that normally sell for $5.50.

The stadium did not please everyone. South Bronx community groups, who felt the money would have been better spent on social programs, staged a march and demonstration outside the stadium.

Rep. Herman Badillo, D-N.Y., compared Mayor Abraham Beame to the Roman emperor "who built the Colosseum to divert the people," and he called for a boycott against the stadium. But the protests were drowned out in the banter between those with tickets and those who wanted them.

Bob Eastwood: A Gallery?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Bob Eastwood might draw a gallery today for the first time in his little-reported pro career because he jumped ahead of the big names in the $80,000 Tallahassee Open golf tournament Thursday to lead the first round by one shot.

While most of the spectators made up "Arnie's Army" to watch Arnold Palmer shoot a 71 in the opening round, Eastwood carved a pair of 33-stroke nines out of the hilly Killearn Country Club course for a sparkling 6-under-par 66.

The only "name" player close to him is South African Bob Charles, who fired a 68 to tie with six others for third position in the field, which will be trimmed to the low 70 and ties after today's second round.

Tied for second with 67s in the first round were a pair of comparative unknowns, Lon Hinkle and Lynn Lott. Hinkle said it was his best tournament start in the four years he has been on the tour, nine weeks of which was lost recently to recover from a broken finger.

Among some of the more publicized players, John Mahaffey, who lost the U.S. Open last summer to Lou Graham in a playoff, shot a 69, and Bob Murphy landed in the same 71-shooting group as Palmer. Larry Ziegler became a victim of Killearn's slick greens and carded a 77.

Dave Kingman of the Mets displays mighty swing that has accounted for four homers to date including a 600-footer. (UPI)

Leafs Finally Topped Flyers

By United Press International

The Toronto Maple Leafs fought unsuccessfully for three years against Philadelphia. Thursday night they battled the Flyers again—and this time they prevailed both on and off the scoreboard.

Toronto edged Philadelphia 5-4 as the Flyers handicapped themselves with a Stanley Cup playoff record 28 penalties. The Leafs incurred only one penalty, giving them numerous defensive situations on which they fully capitalized to beat the defending Cup champions for the first time since Mar. 14, 1973.

The fight-filled game featured 163 minutes in penalties, with the tone set from the opening minutes with the Flyers' Dave Schultz getting a major and Toronto's Kurt Walker getting a major and game misconduct for fighting.

Referee Dave Newell went on from there to hand out three more game misconducts to Leafs' players.

In the penalty-marred second period, the Flyers' Don Saleski allegedly struck Toronto policeman Art Malloy with his stick and city police said after the game they may press assault charges.

Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry, who has launched a crusade against on-ice violence, said he may view the game film in light of police allegations and decide if any legal action is warranted.

"It was a minor miracle that we won," said Toronto Coach Red Kelly. "We played well and they played well and the way they performed out there was their usual style and we expected that."

Toronto got first period goal from Scott Garland and Claire Alexander and three more in the second period by Errol Thompson and Ian Turnbull 27 seconds apart and Stan Weir and all five came on power plays.

Meanwhile, Flyers goalie Bernie Parent, who could have played the first two games of the best-of-seven quarterfinal series in a rocking chair, must have felt like he was in an electric chair. The two-time Most Valuable Player of the playoffs faced 52 shots, including a barrage of 27 in the middle period.

Toronto goalie Wayne Thomas had an easier time, seeing only 28 shots, but he failed to stop Bobby Clarke, Gary Dornhoefer, Jim Watson and Bill Barber.

Philadelphia still leads the best-of-seven quarterfinal series, 2-1 in games.

Elsewhere in third-game quarterfinal action, the New York Islanders earned their first victory against Buffalo 5-3. Montreal extended its series margin to 3-0 with a 2-1 victory over Chicago and Los Angeles won its second straight against Boston, 6-1.

Islanders 5, Sabres 3

Billy MacMillan and Billy Harris scored 35 seconds apart in the third period as New York won its first home ice victory over Buffalo in 11 games. Harris also scored the opening goal as he and Jude Drouin gave the Islanders a 2-0 lead. J.P. Parise also scored for New York while Gil Perreault, Don Luce and Rick Martin tallied for Buffalo. The Sabres lead the series, 2-1.

Canadiens 2, Black Hawks 1

Guy Lafleur scored only 13 seconds from the end of the game from just outside the crease to give Montreal a commanding 4-0 lead in the series. After a scoreless first period Yvon Lambert scored for Montreal in the second session. Pit Martin tied the score with 2:11 to play, only Chicago's second goal in the three games.

Kings 4, Bruins 4

Marcel Dionne broke a 3-3 tie early in the first period with his third goal as Los Angeles won its second straight over Boston after an opening game loss. Insurance goals by Don Kozak and Bob Nevin capped the Kings' three-goal onslaught. Dionne's three goals gave him five in the last two games. Mike Murphy also scored for the Kings while the Bruins got goals from Dallas Smith, Gregg Sheppard, Brad Park and Don Marcotte.

Mariners 5, Roadrunners 1

Kevin Devine and Brian Moranz each collected a goal in the final two minutes of the first period to lead San Diego past Phoenix, squaring the opening round playoff series at two games apiece.

Chris Changes Tactics

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — No. 2-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had to change her usual tactics of serve and rally for a come-from-behind, 46, 6-2, 6-4, victory over unseeded and unheralded Sue Barker of England Thursday night in the $150,000 Virginia Slims tennis championship tournament.

Top-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia earlier had breezed to an easy, 6-2, 6-2, win over Francoise Durr of Phoenix. Barker, who will celebrate her 20th birthday in her home town of Fingleton, Monday, upset Virginia Wade, also of England, 7-5, 7-6, Wednesday night in a marathon match that lasted until 2 a.m. Thursday.

Barker played an aggressive game and scored several points with her powerful and blistering forehand. She said her upset win over Wade had given her confidence.

Evert was slow to react and was caught out of position for Barker's sizzling forehand smashes several times. "I feel too relaxed when I start a match here," said Evert. "I have to get behind before I can get psyched up. I think I'll have to get psyched up for my next two matches if I'm going to do well."

After losing the first set, Evert rallied to take the second set 6-2 when she put pressure on her rival. She successfully played away from Barker's blazing forehand. Barker was also her own undoing when she became over-anxious and began to miss some easy shots.

Evert began to mix up her attack late in the second set with dinks, short crosscourt shots, drops and change-of-pace rallies. She took a 3-0 lead in the final set and held off a rally to clinch the match.

Evert and Barker are playing in the Orange Division of the round robin setup along with Wade and Rosie Casals of Sausalito, Calif. Goolagong and Durr are joined in the Gold Division by Martina Navratilova of Beverly Hills, Calif., and Marita Redondo of National City, Calif. Casals remained in contention by beating a tired Wade, 6-1, 7-6.

The seven "special" events on the schedule should attract the most attention. The special events draw some of the top competitors in the world and Ehrhart believes he has the best group ever this year.

The top special is the 800 meters, featuring runners who recorded the top three times in the world last year—Kenyan Mike Boit, Rick Wohlhuter and Mark Enyeart. They are the top contenders for the gold medal at 1976 Olympics in Montreal this summer.

Boit, who competes at Eastern New Mexico, was third in the 1972 Olympics and holds the national collegiate records at 880 yards (1:45.7) and 800 meters (1:43.8).

Wohlhuter, who runs for the Chicago Track Club, holds the world record at 880 yards (1:44.1) and Enyeart, from Utah State, is the NCAA champion in the 880.

World record holder Harvey Glance of Auburn will be featured in the 100-meter dash, along with Ivory Crockett and Hasely Crawford, the 1975 NCAA champion in the 100-yard dash. Glance tied the

The 1976 Relays also will feature a wife-husband combination. Fran Larrieu, the nation's top woman distance runner, will defend her Drake Relays title in the women's mile. Husband Mark Lutz will run in the special 400 meters.

Prominent among the missing is Charlton Eshizeulen, the Nigerian who won the long jump and triple jump at the 1975 Drake Relays. Eshizeulen was suspended from the Illinois track team for disciplinary reasons.

Major Rules Changes Next Season in ABC

KINGSTON—Major changes in American Bowling Congress regulations were outlined to members of the Kingston Bowling Association's Board of Directors this week by Robert Lynch, Eastern Field Representative of the ABC.

The new rules deal with such subjects as hardness of bowling ball surfaces, bowling lanes equipment not meeting ABC standards, appeal procedures in local leagues and transfer of bowlers on team rosters within a league.

Lynch stressed that next season a bowling ball can be declared illegal in tournaments or for high score purposes if it does not meet the requirement of being "not less than 72 durometer D". Pro shops will have to be equipped with the necessary testing equipment.

The hardness of the bowling ball surface has become a subject of surveillance following the illegal practice of chemically "soaking" balls a couple of seasons ago to hold the lanes better.

ABC Rule 4 deals with the procedure to be taken by individual bowlers and leagues to resolve the issues of bowling establishments not properly functioning or meeting ABC standards, Lynch said.

Leagues that cannot resolve with the proprietor or management the question of equipment may now take their grievance to the local association, which in turn may report it to the ABC if no resolution is reached.

Under such circumstances, the ABC will investigate the complaint and submit a written request for compliance. If the request is not executed, and a second complaint is forthcoming in writing to the ABC, the certification of the lanes will be lifted, Lynch said.

The ABC has also moved to settle once and for all the sticky problem of bowlers transferring from one team to another within the same league. The transfer will have to be approved by the captains of both teams involved and at least two thirds of the league's board of directors. In the past, Lynch pointed out, many leagues adopted rules which did not permit a bowler to return to the previous team during that season. ABC has declared the latter part of the rule illegal.

The ABC has also ruled that in the future all 20 pins on any set of lanes must be uniform in weight and experience.

New Fish Regulations Set for Esopus Creek

OLIVE—New fishing regulations designed to improve the brown trout fishery in a section of the Esopus Creek have been announced by the Region III office of the Department of Environmental Conservation.

Beginning April 30, anglers fishing the section of the Esopus Creek between the Five Arch Bridge and the Ashokan Reservoir in the Town of Olive will be required to use artificial lures or flies, and will be permitted to keep only three trout per day, 12 inches or longer.

The regulations, according to the DEC, are being implemented on a three-year experimental basis to determine if they do, in fact, improve the brown trout fishery in that section of the stream. The Department intends to monitor the affect of the regulations on the fishery through an angler census and annual stream surveys.

The program part of a comprehensive study project proposed for entire Ashokan Reservoir-Esopus Creek system designed to address fish management needs.

Additional information can be obtained from Michael Gann, acting regional fisheries manager for Region III at New Paltz.

Talk Football

MONTICELLO—Monticello school district voters will have the opportunity to vote on a proposition that would restore football to a school system that has been without it since the 1930s when the district holds its annual balloting May 12.

If the voters give their approval — they will have to approve both the proposition calling for the sport's return and the proposed $8.1 million 1976-77 budget, which has the $20,000 needed to get the program started — the district will work into football over a six-year period.

The plan is to begin the program at the seventh-grade level, advancing it a grade level each year; the purpose is to make sure that when Monticello finally begins its varsity program, the athletes will have had the same amount of instruction and experience as the competition.

John McAuliffe contributed 21 points and 19 rebounds. Ray Lindhorst was top man for Scrimmage with 23 points and 12 rebounds. Steve Peruso rimmed 21 points, Ron Thomas 17 and A. J. Murphy 13.

McCune Holds PBA Lead

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Don McCune of Munster, Ind., held on while other previous leaders faltered in the first match-play round of the Professional Bowlers Association $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions Thursday night.

McCune pushed his 32-game total pinfall to 7,184, 25 pins better than Billy Hardwick of Louisville, Ky., now in second with 7,159.

Rounding out the top five were Jim Godman of Lorain, Ohio, 7,144; George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., 7,106 and Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., 7,090.

McCune has spilled 7,064 actual pins and picked up 120 bonus pins for winning four of his eight match games.

McCune, consistently among the leaders for the last three rounds, still was cautious about his chances as only 180 pins separate the top 15 bowlers.

"When the field is this close," he said, "even if you shoot a big score and lose, you won't lose ground. Of course, it's nicer to win with the big scores."

Hardwick charged all the way from 17th to second by winning seven of his eight match games.

Godman, the leader entering match play, and Pappas, who had been third, stayed among the leaders by splitting their matches like McCune.

55 games and lost 35 to capture the Esopus Legion Mixed championship by a two-game margin over runnerup Sickler's Delivery.

Marge Bennett posted seasonal highs for the women with 234 and 563. Larry Decker's 631 and Butch Whittaker's 257 were tops for the men. Three Brothers Big Brown Eggs carried off both team highs with 848-2504.

KHS Girls Win Opener

HYDE PARK—Kelly Pirro, with relief help from Coleen Hughes, pitched Kingston High an opening 16-14 victory over Roosevelt High in the DCSL girls volleyball league.

Roosevelt built up a 10-5 lead before Kingston exploded for 11 runs in the fifth and sixth innings, then held off Roosevelt after four runs were scored in the bottom of seventh. Hughes got the third out with the tying run on second in the last inning.

Kingston collected 19 hits, three by Kelly Pirro, who knocked in four runs for the Tigers. Ertha Burris slammed a homer and five Kingston players collected two hits apiece. Monica Cruise, the centerfielder, accounted for four of the nine Roosevelt hits. "Roosevelt's strong showing proves that the DCSL softball league is going to be tough this year," said Coach Pat Burke of Kingston. "They weren't touted too highly but surprised us." Lori Eaton played a fine all-round game for the winners.

Tigers In Tennis Sweep

KINGSTON—Kevin Boyd defeated Lee Jacobson 11-9 in the No. 1 singles and Kingston High went on to zip Spackenkill High 5-0 in a DCSL tennis match.

Joe Argulewicz and Jim Contino won the No. 2 and No. 3 singles, respectively by identical 10-7 and Contino beat May Carter 10-7.

In the doubles, Red Smith and Garth Galyon teamed for a 10-7 triumph over Jeff Waldman and Kathe Blumberg and Matt Klein and Jeff Van Demark stopped Mark Enrich and Jackie Corrigan 10-5.

"Those Spackenkill girls were tremendous," said Coach John Hunter of the Tigers. "They have to be about the best in this part of the country."

In the No. 1 singles, Boyd fell behind 5-1 before pulling his game together.

These Shows Deserve a Look

NEW YORK (UPI) — Documentaries lately that rank them with poison ivy and goldenrod in public popularity, but a pair of ABC News Closeups may get better treatment.

April 17 from 10-11 p.m., Eastern time, the topic will be "Medicine and Money," and much of what it says will be a bitter pill of some parts of the medical profession to swallow.
The lay audience may be more interested than in some recent documentaries, however, because its subject matter has distinct relevance today.

It's all very well to talk about doctor-patient relationships that conjure up kindly old doc treating his patients with equal parts antibiotics and tender loving care.

In point of fact, ABC's Frank Reynolds points out early in his narration, medicine is "the biggest industry in the nation with a price tag approaching $120 billion."

Private medical insurance and open-end government spending on Medicare and Medicaid have encouraged spectacular increases in the cost of medical care — in some instances without accompanying increase in the quality of patient care.

Medicine is a money-making business in this country, and some reformers have called for an end to the free-for-service method of payment as one way of bringing profits into line.

The California experience with private industry prepaid health plans seemed to support the idea, but the state's encounter with government planners in which the government foots the bill provides a warning to look before making any legislative leaps in that direction.

Then there's gun control, the subject of an April 20 "Pro and Con" approach to be aired 10-11 p.m., Eastern time.

The network wasn't going to get into the kind of hassle CBS found itself in last fall after an unflattering documentary on hunting. The gun control show has been broken up into two parts — "The Case for Control," with Howard K. Smith as correspondent, and "The Gun Control Hoax," with John Scali correspondent presenting the anti-gun control picture.

Perhaps it's cynical to say so, but it seems as likely as Christmas in July that anyone's mind is going to be changed by this hour after years of national wrangling on the subject.

If you oppose gun control legislation, you'll agree with Scali when he says, "Criminals can always get guns.
What reduces gun crimes is fully enforcing the laws against persons who commit such crimes."

If you favor gun control laws, you'll nod your head when Smith says, "No one is a criminal until he commits the crime. And it is the experience of other nations that with fewer handguns available, there are fewer guns in the wrong hands."

CB Pals Come to His Aid

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The "Old Milwaukee Hustler" is going to get a little help Saturday from his friends, including "Blue Satellite" and "Big Banana." The outcome should be a lot of enjoyment for some children.

The "Old Milwaukee Hustler" is the Rev. Herbert Huebschmann, pastor the last 16 years of the Friedens United Church of Christ here. "Blue Satellite" and "Big Banana" are two of his citizens' band radio buddies, who have come to his aid.

Huebschmann's church is 106 years old but is lacking in the staid conservatism such an old institution might be expected to have. It has given over part of its facilities for a day-care center and sponsors other programs to meet the needs of area residents, many of them elderly.

The CB story started in January when the church, with the help of the city, received a load of playground equipment valued at about $8,000. Huebschmann said.

"One piece just came in today," Huebschmann said Wednesday, "but most of it came in after the first of the year. Swings, buckboards, slides, a choo-choo train climber — it's just beautiful, strong play equipment."

The equipment came to the community church from the city through a federal program — but there were no funds to put it up.

That's where "Blue Satellite" and "Big Banana," among others, came in.

Huebschmann said he has been a CB radio operator for more than a year, about the time a heart attack led him into it, and that he has developed a lot of friends over the airwaves.

"I talked about it on the air and those guys said, 'Don't worry about it. 'What do you mean, don't worry?' I said, 'It is the way Huebschmann relates the conversations."

The gist of it is that on Saturday a bunch of his CB buddies are coming to his

Ullman Back To Bergman

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Liv Ullmann was run through the Hollywood glamor mill four years ago but happily returned to her Norwegian roots, unwilling or unable to play the role of a sex goddess.

Ullmann came to Hollywood as one of Europe's great stars, a veteran of a half dozen films with Ingmar Bergman, the critics' darling.

The blonde Scandinavian was miscast in the calamitous musical version of "Lost Horizon" and "Forty Carats" which bombed completely. Another American-made film, "Zandy's Bride" with Gene Hackman, was a disaster.

Now Liv is back where she belongs — with Bergman.

Together they made such hits as "Cries and Whispers," "Hour of the Wolf," and "Scenes From a Marriage." Liv has done seven pictures for Bergman, winning awards for almost all her performances in them.

If Bergman and Ullmann work on a felicitous basis, it is understandable. They were lovers for five years. Liv bore the director a daughter, Linn, 9.

Although romance has dwindled, the spark of creativity continues to flourish between the two. They recently completed "Face To Face," another ponderous drama which is certain to win Liv an Oscar nomination.

In Hollywood to create interest in the Paramount release, Liv was glowing with good health, beauty and excitement.

"This is the most personal film I've made with Ingmar," she said, "because it is his fears and anxieties that the woman on the screen — Jenny — must live with."

"He understands women better than any director and uses us instead of men to say what he feels. He thinks actresses are braver and don't try to hide as much as male performers."

"Ingmar uses me very freely to express himself because we have known each other so well for 11 years. He is able to pull more from me than any other director. The reason is that he writes the scripts and gives me wonderful material."

Despite Liv's personal and professional independence, she admits there still exists a Pygmalion-Galatea relationship between herself and Bergman.

"There always will be that feeling between us," she said. "It proves to me that two people can grow together and be good on their own as well. We are able to use each other to do our best as creative people."

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, APRIL 17
Your birthday today: This year your creative ability is put to use. You encounter obstacles unless you set up more positive working habits. New contacts diverge into inexplicable ties of varying intensities; existing relationships are strained. Today's natives thrive on confrontations with those of opposing beliefs.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You can opt to play it straight, stick with established plans or risk everything on a deceptively attractive gamble. Avoid buying high-priced items.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Let financial situations ride. Devote time to emotional satisfaction, romantic ventures and good music. Pursue competitive hobbies and light sports, but don't overdo.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Think about what you're saying. Ideas develop into unrealistic projects that are more than you can manage or afford.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can sell almost anything. Just be sure that you're willing to deliver. Take an extra round of precaution by paying more attention to details.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Present a stronger public image of yourself. Write down today's thoughts for future reference. Expenses become unmanageable if you're careless.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Telling the story as it may be hard, but it's worth the embarrassment and critical comment. Once spelled out, there's no room for misunderstanding.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let previous decisions stand. You have problems at work because of lack of cooperation or someone's absence. Take time to meditate.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Promise only what can be done without extensive changes. Apparent bargains prove to be expensive. Stick to your regular shopping list.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today's greatest benefits are intangible. Take time to appreciate how well you are doing. Hold the line against errors.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Confidential deals among friends soon backfire. Don't let suggestions or impatience lead you into matters you're not sure of. Work alone.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Leadership must be gently exercised. Try to set an example; don't gossip and work as hard as you expect others to work.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): An act of generosity probably won't be recognized, but eventually will prove useful. Be selective; don't offer your help to the first takers.

Both vulnerable

East played low and it was up to Pete to decide whether or not to take the trump finesse. The game was match point duplicate and if Pete lost that finesse, West would probably give his partner a club ruff and Pete would be held to his contract. On the other hand if Pete did not take the finesse and it would have wound up making five instead of six.

What did Pete do? He rose with the ace and wound up making five hearts.

Did he refuse the finesse because he was a pessimist? No. He refused it because he wanted it to be wrong. Pete had really underbid his hand. Surely some slam try was indicated after that heart raise. Therefore, Pete reasoned that a lot of pairs would be in a slam which would depend on the heart finesse. Pete would get some points if the finesse were wrong and very few if it were right.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Pessimistic Pete won the first trick with dummy's king of clubs. East played the queen and Pete promptly called for the queen of hearts.

Spada Says Refuse Service Not Interrupted

KINGSTON — Michael Spada of Spada Sanitation, Inc. has disputed a report in Wednesday's Freeman that his firm did not collect refuse from its clients in the City of Kingston earlier this week because of the closing of a landfill in the Town of Plattekill. "We never stopped picking up our garbage," said Spada, "our service was not interrupted." Spada said that the refuse his firm picked up in the city was dumped at the Town of Ulster landfill. Under the new arrangement between private haulers and the city, that refuse will now be taken to the city landfill at Kingston Point. "The garbage that we pick up in the Town of Ulster will be taken to the Ulster landfill," said Spada, "the garbage that we pick up in the city, will be taken to the city landfill."

At present, Spada deals with private individuals in the city to haul their refuse. The firm, however, has been awarded a long-term contract to dispose of residential garbage generated in the city, but that contract has not yet been signed.

Some garbage began piling up in the city early this week because some private haulers — such as Hertel Enterprises, a division of Dutchess Sanitation — didn't have any place to take it since a temporary restraining order signed Friday barred further dumping at the Plattekill landfill site.

City officials indicated Wednesday that none of the private haulers were picking up garbage in the city. Hertel officials have confirmed that they did not collect any garbage Monday or Tuesday. Spada, however, has denied that his firm halted its collection service.

While Ulster Waits, Nassau Gets Boost

ALBANY —While Ulster County is seeking state legislation which would allow it to raise its sales tax one per cent, financially struggling Nassau County received a boost this week when the State Senate passed a bill allowing it to raise its tax too.

The measure passed 42 to 14 and was sent to the Assembly where observers said the real battle would be waged between GOP and Democratic leaders.

Meanwhile Ulster County Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, 101st Dist., declined to say whether he would propose the legislation for Ulster or not. He said he wanted to see the resolution passed here and make sure it provided that the sales tax be directly applied to the reduction of real property taxes.

The Ulster Legislature's measure, which passed 24 to 9, called for precisely that.

The increased sales tax in Nassau County was seen as "the only alternative" to plug that county's $10.8 million gap in the county's $952 million budget.

Ulster County presently has a $1.7 million gap in its $52.6 million budget.

Nassau County's State Sen.

Ralph Marino, R-Syosset, said the added levy, which coupled with the state's four per cent sales tax would take eight cents out of each retail dollar.

However, Democrats led by Sen. Karen Burstein of Queens

claimed the $22 million revenue expected from the additional tax would be used as a war chest for GOP County

Executive Ralph Caso, who must run for re-election next year.

Democrats, noting that the added revenue would be twice the anticipated budget deficit, had asked Caso for some commitment to reduce property taxes by $11 million.

Marino said the sales tax was the only alternative open to the county, with other budget balancing actions including the layoff of another 2,000 county employees or a 64 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation increase in the property tax.

Ms. Burstein charged that Nassau was using garbage in the streets tactics to push through the tax increase. She noted that Nassau "is already the highest taxed county in the state" and said that the county, with a population of about 1.4 million, has 57,263 county employees.

Councilman Wants Probe Of New York City Water Grab

ESOPUS — Town of Esopus Councilman Thomas Johnson has called for an immediate investigation into what he terms "an apparent low-profile water grab" by New York City.

Johnson was apparently referring to a project envisioned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers which would utilize a high-flow skimming station to withdraw water from the Hudson River for distribution throughout the New York metropolitan area. According to the Corps' existing proposal, the water withdrawal chamber would be located either in the Town of Esopus or the Town of Rhinebeck.

Johnson has called for "determined action by area residents to prevent the Hudson Valley from being drained of its essential future water supplies." He specifically praised Ulster County Planning Director Herbert Hekler for the caution he has expressed concerning the project.

"The last bungled attempt at water planning which ended in disaster was made in 1905," said Johnson, "and now, 70 years later we face another disaster in the form of an unquenchable thirst for our water reserves."

"We are fast reaching a point of no return. New York City officials must be made to realize that the Town of Esopus and the County of Ulster will not tolerate any attempt to siphon away our future water resources."

Corps officials have emphasized that the project is still in the planning stages, and that no decision has been made by any government agency to actually undertake the project. The Corps is now undertaking more detailed studies to determine which aspects of the proposal will best meet the region's future water supplies.

Seek Compromise On Education Law

NEW YORK (UPI) — State legislators and school officials hope to achieve a compromise on the Stavisky-Goodman law that might avert a court challenge to the controversial measure.

The statute, which became law when the state legislature overrode Gov. Hugh L. Carey's veto early Wednesday, requires the city to restore some $150 million to the Board of Education budget.

Mayor Abraham Beame has vowed a court fight against the law, which he said would force officials to cut $150 million from other agencies and eliminate "a substantial thousands" of jobs.

The mayor, visibly angry, told reporters he was informed by the city's corporation counsel the new law was "unconstitutional, invalid and unenforceable" and should be resisted.

"We anticipated there would be meetings following passage of the law that would be principally concerned toward the development of amendments," Dr. Robert Christen, vice president of the Board of Education, said Thursday.

Christen, who participated in an unsuccessful weekend effort to forestall the veto override, said, "Certainly, by a week from Monday, people will be working to design changes in the law which will meet essential needs."

Clandestine Voyage to a Shadowy World

WASHINGTON, D.C. — George Bush, since he is the director of the CIA, might be called the nation's No. 1 spy, and his most recent escapade should provide a fine example to his men of how to do things.

Bush disclosed at Thursday's luncheon of the American Society of Newspaper Editors that he had managed to travel to and through three European countries recently without exposure by local or American press.

During the course of his trip, Bush said, he talked with some of his agency's personnel, and found the morale high despite secret agency's recent publicity.

Patty's Health Problems Multiply

SAN FRANCISCO — Patricia Hearst, with with legal problems that include a possible 35-year prison sentence, now has health problems that seem to grow worse the more doctors look at her.

Now recuperating from emergency surgery for a collapsed right lung, Miss Hearst is said to be underweight, and suffering from malnutrition and a possible liver ailment.

In addition to all this, the newspaper heiress and convicted bank robber may face additional surgery for a "bleb" on the lung that collapsed.

Would Bare Hearst Testimony

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Attorneys for Steven Soliah insisted that federal prosecutors bare in court what Patricia Hearst may have told them about her former lover's alleged role in a fatal bank robbery.

Defense lawyer Sheldon Otis said "reliable sources" informed him Miss Hearst has talked with Justice Department investigators and told them, "Mr. Soliah was not in the bank on April 21, 1975."

Otis told U.S. District Judge Philip C. Wilkins on Thursday he wanted a hearing called to disclose what the newspaper heiress had told prosecutors and Wilkins instructed him to file written briefs today before making a decision.

U.S.-Greek Accord Criticized

WASHINGTON — American and Greek negotiators hope to have a draft of a comprehensive defense cooperation agreement ready to send Congress within four to six weeks.

But one congressional leader of the pro-Greek faction, Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind., already has rejected the new accord and said it will not soften his opposition toward a plan to provide $1 billion to keep U.S. bases in Turkey.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and Greek Foreign Minister Dimitrios Bitsios Thursday initiated an interim agreement establishing principles that will form the basis of a treaty to replace all previous defense arrangements between the two countries.

New Plan for Lebanon Peace

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Syria and Palestinian guerrillas today agreed on a new plan to enforce a cease-fire and end the fighting in the Lebanon, Damascus Radio said.

The agreement came as a choking sandstorm from the Sahara whirled through the countryside, effectively ending the latest round of fighting that left 107 persons dead and 160 wounded.

More than 17,200 have died in a year of civil war.

Auto Industry Layoffs Down

DETROIT — For the first time in two years, indefinite layoffs in the U.S. auto industry will fall below the 50,000 mark next week as General Motors resumes second shift operations at two California assembly plants.

But the nation's "Big Three" automakers warned Thursday a strike by the United Rubber Workers next week could cripple car production. They said there are enough tires in stock or in transit for a week of production before the effects of a rubber strike would be felt.

An Ailing Pope Paul VI Re-enacts Way of Cross

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The bells of Rome's 500 churches fell silent as the center of Roman Catholicism marked Good Friday, the historical day of Jesus' death on the cross.

Altars were bare and sacred images were draped in mourning purple in Roman Catholic churches throughout the world for the only day of the year when mass is not celebrated.

Church bells will not ring again until midnight mass on Easter Sunday to announce the Resurrection.

The planned climax of the most solemn day of the Christian calendar was Pope Paul VI's traditional carrying of a light wooden cross in a torchlit Way of the Cross procession against a backdrop of pagan Rome.

More than 100,000 pilgrims and an international television audience of millions annually watch the ritual as it is enacted at the Colosseum.

Despite the painful arthritic condition of his knees that makes walking difficult, the 78-year-old Pope has maintained the last stations of the cross, re-enacting the steps to the Crucifixion.

The Pope also carried out the Holy Thursday rite recalling Jesus' washing of the feet of the Apostles at the Last Supper.

Walking somewhat stiffly, the Pope put on a white apron, poured water from a silver pitcher on the bare right foot of each of 12 seminarians, wiped it with a linen towel and kissed it.

The 12, two from the Catholic Western rite and 10 from various Catholic Eastern Churches, sat on a raised bench in the Basilica of St. John's in Lateran so the Pope would not have to bend to his task.

In a homily delivered to 20,000 persons in the cavernous church, the Pope prayed "for all men suffering and thirsting for truth, justice and peace but with eyes clouded by their unfulfilled search. He asked them to listen to Christ's appeal: "Come to me, all you who labor and are burdened, and I will give you rest."

On Saturday night, the Pope will celebrate Easter Eve Mass in St. Peter's Basilica. On Sunday, he will celebrate an open air Easter Mass on the steps of the largest church in Christendom and then deliver his blessing to the city of Rome and the world.

NY Revamps Esopus Flow

Better Control of Water from Schoharie is Good News for Fisherman

NEW YORK CITY—Steps are being taken voluntarily by New York City to better control the flow of its reservoir water through the Shandaken Tunnel, according to the text of a letter released today.

The city's Environmental Protection Administrator Robert A. Low revealed the new policy as described in a letter from the EPA's Abraham Groopman, assistant commissioner, to the State Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC).

The basic suggestions contained were to operate the Shandaken Tunnel so as to deliver no more than 400 million gallons of cold water per day to the Esopus Creek between the Shandaken Tunnel and the Ashokan Reservoir.

The move is designed to avoid fish kills and improve fishing in the creek, according to the city's EPA.

Groopman, a native of Woodbourne, was designated by Low to serve as permanent liaison between the city and state DEC in matters concerning the operations of the Shandaken Tunnel and Esopus Creek.

The letter was in response to recent suggestions by the state DEC or releases of reservoir waters.

Specific procedures include: 1) Notifying the DEC of the city's plans to start, stop, increase or decrease the flow of water from the Schoharie Reservoir to Ashokan Reservoir via the Shandaken Tunnel and Esopus Creek.

2) Wherever possible, give notice not less than 24 hours in advance.

3) Deliver no more than 400 million gallons per day during the period from June 1 through Oct. 31 each year, "except at those times when it is deemed necessary by this department for water supply operations or conservation."

4) When possible increase the flows in steps of 40 million gallons per day and decrease the flow in steps of 20 million gallons per day.

Groopman explained in his letter that "this method of stepped changes represents a monetary expenditure by the city for additional manpower."

The assistant commissioner and chief engineer of the Bureau of Water Supply, EPA in New York City, Groopman added: "... in the event of a reported fish kill in the Esopus Creek that might be attributed to the operation of the Shandaken Tunnel, DEC should notify the City Department of Water Resources immediately so that we can mutually participate in field investigations."

The suggestions were originally incorporated in an Oct. 6, 1975 letter from Deputy Chief Engineer in charge of watersheds George Mekenian of the city to the state DEC's Alfred Holstrunk, special assistant to the commissioner.

In that letter Mekenian states, "The Esopus Creek, between the Shandaken Tunnel portal and the Ashokan Reservoir into which it flows, is celebrated as a high class fishing stream, especially for trout, and is therefore heavily fished. It is recognized by many that the high quality is due primarily to the beneficial effects of the significant volume of cold water that is added to the low warm natural flow during the summer and early fall by the operation of the Shandaken Tunnel as part of New York City's water supply."

Ulster Appoints Levy New Chief Constable

TOWN OF ULSTER—Town of Ulster Town Board has appointed well-known Kingston detective Meyer Levy as chief constable of the six-man police force.

Levy will assume his new duties as administrative officer Monday replacing Chief Fred Schmidt who will remain on the force. Levy retired from the Kingston Police Thursday.

Credited with saving the life of a fellow police officer in 1959 while a member of the Kingston Police Department, Levy is also active in the Shomrin Society, having served as president of the DUSO (Dutchess, Ulster, Sullivan and Orange) segment of the national society. The organization is comprised of more than 8,000 police and public safety officers of the Jewish faith who are directly involved in law enforcement.

Levy joined the Kingston Police Department in 1950 and has been a member of the detective division for a number of years.

In 1959 he was named "Patrolman of the Year," and received a police citation for his "brave and efficient action in saving the life of a brother officer, John Crespinio, in a downtown quarry. The two had been investigating a report that two boys had been seen entering the cave from which they did not return.

A ledge gave way and Crespinio fell into the pool. Levy risked his own life to hold Crespinio until help arrived. The report of the two boys was a mistake and they were later found.

Levy served in the U. S. Navy as a radioman from June 1943 to April 1946.

At Minnewaska Volunteers Battle Blaze

LAKE MINNEWASKA — A careless camper is thought to be the cause of a fire Thursday that destroyed an estimated 250 acres of woodland in the Minnewaska State Park and threatened, for a time, the massive Minnewaska Mountain House.

Despite persistent overnight rain, the fire continues to smolder today, although conservation officers have declared the blaze "definitely under control."

"Some stumps and snags are still burning now," said a spokesman at the Region III headquarters of the Department of Environmental Conservation in New Paltz, "but we have a good line around the area and we don't anticipate any further trouble."

The fire broke out shortly before 10 a.m. Thursday on the west side of the Minnewaska Ridge. By the time the first firefighters arrived, some 50 acres were ablaze.

The fire spread quickly after that, and by early afternoon close to 200 acres were involved.

At the height of the firefighting effort, more than 150 volunteers — armed with rakes, shovels, and portable water tanks — fought to halt the fire's advance. Most of the effort was spent trying to establish a fire break in the path of the advancing fire, but other volunteers were kept busy extinguishing "hot spots" that flared up in areas already charred by the flames.

But efforts to bring the fire under control were reportedly hindered by a shortage of volunteers. At one point, officials rushed into New Paltz and recruited about a dozen high school students to help fight the fire. One of the students said that some nearby mountain climbers were asked to help out, but they refused.

Although eight area fire companies had equipment at the scene, some could not send a full complement of volunteers because of the ever-present danger of brush fires breaking out in their own communities.

It took a combination of hard work and good fortune to eventually bring the blaze under control late Thursday afternoon. The biggest blessing was a rain shower that began around 3 p.m., which helped to dampen the tinder-dry areas and slowed the fire's advance.

The fire broke that afternoon was finally formed on the west side of a small stream that runs along the base of the ridge. For a time, it was feared that fire would travel up the ridge to the Minnewaska Mountain House if the flames were allowed to jump the creek.

The center of the fire was about six miles off Route 44-55, and volunteers had to be trucked over narrow dirt roads to reach the inferno. Because of the area's isolation, much of the firefighting was done by hand.

The workers on land received some airborne assistance Thursday in the form of two state police helicopters and a private agricultural spray plane that dumped thousands of gallons of water on the burning woodland. The helicopters, hovering above Lake Minnewaska, filled large containers with water and then flew to the fire area. The two large craft formed a constant shuttle between the lake and the fire throughout the afternoon.

Most of the volunteers left the area early Thursday evening when the fire was brought under control, but conservation officers and DEC personnel remained at the scene throughout the night dousing dozens of hot spots that flared up over the 250 acre area.

The last serious fire at Minnewaska occurred in 1964 when some 1,500 acres of woodland were destroyed. In 1947, more than 15,000 acres were destroyed in a major blaze.

KSC Ballot Line-up For Board Election

KINGSTON — Ballot positions for the Tuesday, May 4 school board election have been announced.

Chamber of Commerce Executive Vice President Len Cane has drawn the top position among the five candidates seeking two posts on the board.

Present board member Ronald Meyer, who seeks another term, drew the second position, retired IBM engineer, Harold Van Allen of Hurley has the middle position.

Fourth place on the ballot went to Ulster County Conservative Party Chairman William Jackson and former Board President Joseph F. Feraca drew the last position.

Voting will take place from noon to 9 p.m.

The five candidates are seeking posts being vacated by veteran school board member Mrs. Evelyn Corsonnes who is not seeking reelection and Meyer, who is making another run for his post.

Cane sought election to the board last year and will try again. He feels the key issue in the election is the continuance of quality education at an affordable cost.

Meyer, an employee of American Telephone, believes that quality education can be maintained by keeping neighborhood schools.

A Hurley Heights resident, Van Allen feels the taxpayer must be recognized as an important factor in the ultimate solution to education of the students.

Jackson has taken a strong stand against building new school facilities, feeling it is the wrong time to increase indebtedness.

Feraca is relying on his past record of achievement as president of the board and chairman of the personnel committee to restore him to the school board. He is running because he is concerned about the present "bickering" which is impeding solutions.

Warning On Fires

ALBANY, N.Y.—The National Weather Service today warned of tinder dry conditions in much of New York State, no surprise for firemen who have begun the spring ritual of chasing brush fires.

The weather service said there was a "high fire danger" in the state, particularly in southeastern portions.

The service reported that less than a tenth of an inch of rain has fallen at its Albany Airport station since April 2. Humidity, less than 30 percent on several days has combined with gusty winds the weather service said to make ideal weather for grass fires.

'Secret Trip' Pleases Bush

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dropping his cloak either by ship or design, CIA Director George Bush reports having made a secret trip to three European countries and finding his agents prepared to carry on despite recent publicity.

Speaking without a text, Bush with seeming relish told a luncheon of the American Society of Newspaper Editors meeting Thursday that he had traveled to three European countries without being exposed by the local or American press.

"I've just come back from one trip, which we managed to keep secret, around three different countries in Europe and had occasion to visit some of our people," he said. "And some of them in a climate where names have been published."

It was a reference to publication in Europe and the United States of some names, street addresses and even telephone numbers of alleged CIA agents in various world capitals.

Last winter an Athens newspaper published the name of the CIA station chief in Greece — Richard S. Welch — and he was shot and killed by unknown gunmen outside his Athens home two days before Christmas.

"Really they are living a risk," Bush said of the overseas agents. "And it's wrong. It's wrong that they have to be subjected to that. But they understand the climate of the times and they are perfectly prepared to unselfishly serve their country."

In a recent address to the Harvard Business School, Bush said foreign intelligence agencies that previously collaborated with the CIA were "holding back" and some agents were resigning because of investigative disclosures.

Despite this, Bush said

Thursday, "there is a fantastic reservoir of discipline in the CIA morale is A1."

During a question and answer period, Bush said he "might or might not have" secretly met singer Frank Sinatra in February, as a press report claims, but had "no comment" that intelligence matters were discussed.

The Boston Globe said Thursday that Sinatra volunteered his services to the CIA on grounds he knows many important people, including the Shah of Iran and the British royal family, and "wanted to do his part for the country."

Sinatra's agency, meanwhile, issued the singer's statement responding to published reports that Robert F. Kennedy while attorney general had blocked an investigation of possible Sinatra connections with the Mafia.

I read the report about how Bobby Kennedy protected me from investigation by government agents and now realize that after five grand jury subpoenas, two IRS investigations which probably utilized about 30 men and a couple of subpoenas to congressional committees, if you have a close friend in high office you don't need any enemies," it said.

Patty Hearst Has More Problems

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Patricia Hearst is being treated for malnutrition and examined for a possible liver ailment while hospitalized for a collapsed lung.

Her doctor said Thursday that the 22-year-old newspaper heiress might need surgery for removal of a bleb, a bubble-like blister from her right lung.

Miss Hearst, convicted of bank robbery charges and awaiting transfer to a federal correctional facility for a 90-day psychiatric evaluation, prior to sentencing was transferred from the San Mateo County Jail to Sequoia Hospital Tuesday night after she complained of chest pains and breathing difficulties.

Dr. Donald Rawles, a chest specialist, said his patient was in fair condition but was experiencing pain because a tube inserted through her ribs and into the right lung. He said the bleb was unusually large and there was still the possibility of another rupture, which would entail a new tube for drainage.

He said there also might be a need for further surgery for removal of the bleb.

Doctors disclosed that Miss Hearst weighs 90 pounds — 15 pounds below her normal weight. They said a preliminary examination indicated the possibility of a liver problem.

In a related development, Marin County District Attorney Bruce Bales said in San Rafael north of here that there would be no charges filed against her for the August 1971 bombing of two unoccupied sheriff's patrol cruisers.

Bales said that Miss Hearst told federal investigators three persons were involved in the bombing. He said he would grant her immunity to present evidence against the two.

The prosecutor also said she has been convicted of serious federal offenses, and she faces serious state charges. It would be useless for me to prosecute her when it wouldn't affect her sentence at all.

Reports pursued that Miss Hearst was telling investigators all the details of the missing year in her odyssey with the Symbionese Liberation Army. During her bank robbery trial, she refused to discuss what happened between the April 1971 holdup and her arrest in September 1971.

The reports also said she was giving the information in an effort to win the light sentence in a U.S. District Court judge, Oliver J. Carter.

A Darling Model

Joni Haskell, daughter of Sen. Floyd Haskell, D-Colo., is shown in one of several photographs under consideration by Crested Butte Ski Resort for use in its advertising campaign for next fall. Ms. Haskell was used as a model before her father announced senate hearings concerning alleged wrong doings in the ski resort's expansion on national forest land. The ski resort is owned by Howard H. (Bo) Calloway, former campaign manager for President Ford (UPI).

He Could Be Anywhere

FAUNTON, Mass. (UPI) — The closing chapter in the attempt of Alvin Chadburn to cross the Atlantic Ocean in a tiny sailboat may have been written by his wife.

Mrs. Natalie Chadburn apparently has given up hope that her husband, who set out alone in an eight-foot sailboat to Portugal more than one year ago, has survived.

The executors of Chadburn's estate filed his will in Taunton Probate Court this week on behalf of Mrs. Chadburn. But officials said Thursday there is some doubt whether the will can be executed.

Mrs. Chadburn, 29, lives with her two children in Somerset. She had no contact when asked if her allowing the will to be executed meant she had abandoned hope for her husband's return.

Chadburn, 28, set sail on April 9, 1975, from Nauset Harbor in Orleans. His objective was to cross 3,000 miles of ocean in a his sailboat. The forum is Fort De Lyves.

Register of Probate James B. Kelley Jr. said there is a problem with the will written Oct. 29, 1971, more than a year before Chadburn set sail.

Chadburn's green and white craft, which resembled a miniature submarine, was sighted last once since he set sail by a New Bedford fisherman about one week from the time he left.

MAUNDY THURSDAY SERVICE was an Eastertide celebration attended by many women of the Kingston area and the Reformed Church of the Classis of Ulster. Service, held at Kingston's Fair Street Church, was preceded by the 15th annual "White Breakfast" of the Women's Guild for Christian Service. The breakfast derives its name from the traditional liturgical color associating Christ as the light of the world, is a reminder of the purity of his life which was sacrificed on behalf of the sins of mankind. THE ANCIENT RELIGIOUS FESTIVAL of hope and faith that is Passover has seldom been celebrated with more color and purpose than in these Seder services yesterday at Woodstock's Joyous Lake restaurant. ## Freed from Car, Condition 'Poor'

SAUGERTIES — A 17 year old West Camp girl was listed in poor condition today at Benedictine Hospital following a one car accident Thursday night in the Town of Saugerties.

According to Saugerties police, Maria Ferricane was trapped under the dashboard of her car for more than an hour before she was freed by police and rescue workers. She was transferred to Benedictine Hospital by Saugerties Ambulance Service and was placed in the hospital's intensive care unit.

A passenger in the car, 14 year old Anna Vigile, suffered injuries to her elbow and hand. She was treated at Benedictine.

Saugerties Town Police said Miss Ferricane was driving her

was held in lieu of $1,000 bail pending arraignment in village court today.

Police said that they were called to investigate a domestic quarrel at the Mill Street address at about 4:30 p.m. Thursday. Authorities said that when the officers arrived at the scene, Babula was in the midst of an argument with his mother.

Police arrested Babula initially on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was also charged with harassment for allegedly shouting obscenities at the police officers.

According to police, the arresting officers were escorting Babula to the patrol car when he allegedly took a swing at one of them. He missed and smashed the windshield of the police car. He was charged car northeast on Blue Mountain Road when the car left the road and smashed into a tree. The accident occurred about 9:20 p.m. Thursday.

Injured in Crash

A Staatsburg woman, meanwhile, was reported in stable condition at Vassar Brothers Hospital in Poughkeepsie today following a two-car accident Thursday on Route 9 in Staatsburg. Mary Jane Maronge suffered a broken arm, wrist, elbow and leg in the crash.

The accident occurred at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday when a car operated by Thomas M. Wood, 31 of Hyde Park, skidded on Route 9 and collided with the Maronge vehicle. Wood was treated at Northern Dutchess Hospital in Rhinebeck for head lacerations and an injured right leg. Rhinebeck State Police investigated.

Various Charges

An 18-year-old Ellenville youth was charged with disorderly conduct, harassment, resisting arrest and two counts of criminal mischief Thursday following a domestic quarrel and an altercation with police officers.

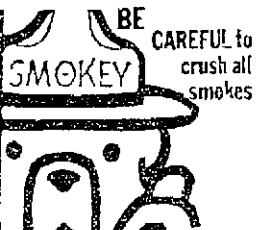

Ellenville Village Police said Robert Babula of 8 Mill Street

with criminal mischief. Later, police said Babula allegedly ripped a toilet seat off the wall in his jail cell and smashed it on the floor. He was charged with a second count of criminal mischief.

He appeared somewhat boisterous, said a police spokesman today.

The city of Fort Worth, Tex., never was a fort. It took its name from a cavalry camp where, in 1849, Maj. R.A. Arnold and a troop of dragoons kept eye on the Indians.

The cannibalistic Karankawa Indians are said to have attacked, killed and eaten four of pirate Jean Lafitte's men at Galveston, Tex., in early 1821.

Scala Considers Resigning Labor Post

SAUGERTIES — County Legislator Charles Scala R Dist 3 who was recently appointed one of five members to serve on the county's Labor Management Committee said he is seriously considering resigning unless the attitude of one member, Legislator Louis M. Klein D Dist 6 improves.

Feeling his effectiveness on the Labor Management Committee is seriously hampered by the presence of Klein, Scala said Klein is more interested in being a publicity seeker on his own behalf than in being an effective legislator.

Referring to numerous press releases Klein has issued in recent months, Scala said that the county wide campaign to discredit every move of the Republicans can only lead to more people being turned off by politics and a lessening rather than strengthening of the quality of candidates who are opposed to being constructive and working for the best interests of the residents of the county.

In a letter to Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago R Dist 8 Scala said the feeling of mistrust that I have towards Klein leads to an extremely unhealthy atmosphere of carefully weighing every word that is said because Klein is very adept at twisting every word to his own devious advantage.

Suggesting that Klein is constantly flailing away at windmills instead of developing proposals, Scala said this deception seems to be the major preoccupation of the Democrats in Ulster County as opposed to being constructive and working for the best interests of the residents of the county.

Scala said that many people have indicated a distressingly low opinion of politics and these Democratic antics certainly will do nothing to restore the faith of the public in our elected officials or political parties.

A county wide campaign to discredit every move of the Republicans can only lead to more people being turned off by politics and a lessening rather than strengthening of the quality of candidates who do accept the challenge of running for public office. Scala

What's In A Bottle?

KINGSTON — "Sticks and stones will break my bones but a bottle of human excrement!"

Imagine the wonderment when members of the Ulster County Probation Department found that such a bottle had been tossed through a closed window of the department headquarters recently.

An assault on the dignity of the department rather anyone in particular the bottle did no harm other than to break the window it passed through in the rear of the building owned by Superintendent Kenneth Whispell told the Freeman that it was an isolated incident and that vandalism of county buildings has been on the downswing rather than increasing of late.

Results of GOP Race

KINGSTON — A final tally of the results of the Republican Primary in the 25th Congressional District last week has been made available by the Board of Elections. The Ford slate emerged victorious over the Reagan slate by a vote of 4,699 to 3,058. Results show that Edward Kelly received 836 votes, Lynn Mulvaney 800, Thomas A. Johnson Jr. 775, Ethel L. Black 771, Richard DeLorenzo 759, and John W. Hanes 755. Reagan slate returns show that James Whelan received 774, Patricia Peck 761, Edmund P. Rely 709, John J. Nash 607, Victor B. Coster 602. Primary Day voting proved to be one of miss confusion due to the makeup of the ballots with GOP voters having the toughest time figuring out which delegates were supporting which presidential candidate. Unless the voter knew ahead of time there was nothing on the printed ballot to inform him or her. The confusion centered on the fact that the law provides different rules for each party. While the Democrats may list the name of the presidential contender favored by the delegates on the ballot the GOP may not and both GOP slates were merely listed as uncommitted. There was confusion too in that there was only one Republican Primary in Ulster County in the 25th District while there were Democratic primaries in all three congressional districts.

WHITA Demands School Site Probe

KINGSTON — We've Had It Taxpayers Association (WHITA) of Ulster County Inc. is pursuing the matter of land acquisition by the Kingston City Schools Consolidated among other actions approved at this week's meeting of the board of directors. WHITA has asked the State Commission of Investigation to further investigate the entire matter of land acquisition with the Salmo and Delaware Avenue high school sites by the Kingston district and is supplying details to the commission according to a release.

The taxpayers group asserted that it regards that Superintendent (Louis) Salmo continues to refuse WHITA the right to examine the details of expenditures made through the site acquisition fund. WHITA feels that Superintendent Salmo is violating the Freedom of Information Act.

It is the group's contention that the acquisition fund has expended more than $600,000 and faces more than $200,000 more in legal claims.

In other moves WHITA stated support of the concept of neighborhood schools and opposition to the closing of Edison School announced it will hold a candidates night for those seeking a spot on the Kingston board of education announced concern with the recent actions of the Ulster County Legislature increasing taxes and failing to reduce expenditures is looking into the reduction in state police protection mandated by state budget cuts and discussed a large number of legal suits being brought against the board of education the City of Kingston and local townships for reduction in real estate assessments which could bring about increased taxation and further hardship to home owners.

Witchcraft Practice Is Changed

MORGANTON, N.C. — John Denton accused of accurately predicting a death faces a $300 fine and up to six months in jail if convicted of violating North Carolina's witchcraft law.

Mrs. Denton was charged under the statute Wednesday after a complaint by Kathryn Carpenter 22 who claimed Mrs. Denton told her mother Mrs. Dorothy Elizabeth Ramsey 48 on March 20 that she would die on April 10.

When Mrs. Ramsey's body was found on that day police said several pills and a suicide note were also found. There has been no formal ruling however on whether the death was suicide.

I believe it (the prediction) worked on her nerves, Mrs. Carpenter said of her mother. She just kept taking pills and taking pills to calm herself down.

I think this lady should be stopped because it works on your nerves to be told when you are going to die and when the day comes it really gets to you, she said.

SIXTY FIVE of North Carolina's 100 counties have the so called witchcraft laws which prohibit the practice of phrenology, palmistry, fortune telling, or clairvoyance.

'Mike' Changes Jobs

Meyer 'Mike' Levy, one of the most popular and a hard working detective in the Kingston Police Department, is changing hats this week. He's retiring from the city force to take over as chief in the Town of Ulster.

Ulster's gain in obtaining the services of Levy is Kinston's loss. His rapport with this city's residents has been excellent. He has done a professional job, often without fanfare and has always been available to do that something "extra" which separates the ordinary worker from the better ones.

Levy will give that much needed professionalism to the Town of Ulster and we congratulate Supervisor Carmine Sabino and the board for hiring a capable person like Levy. They couldn't have made a better choice.

A Worthy Project, but . . .

Dear Editor:

My question is why didn't you put any information in your paper about Zena School's booth at the Bicentennial School Exhibit? Our whole school worked very hard on the project and you didn't even mention a thing about it.

Our school is almost never mentioned in any of the Kingston City Schools' projects. Most Kingstonians don't even know we belong to the Kingston City School district.

I would appreciate it if you would mention us a little more often. All of us at Zena are tired of being left out!

Sincerely,
Kerrin Moriarty

***

Dear Editor:

I'm in Mrs. Wallace's fifth grade class from Zena School and I would like to ask why the Zena School projects at the armory were not mentioned in your article in the Sunday Freeman on April 11? It seems to me all of your emphasis was on the past.

My class and Mr. Gross' class worked very hard to construct a domed city of the future and it took all morning for the Glee Club to video tape their performance!

I hope in the future we are more noticed!

Sincerely,
JOANN ATTENWEILER

Editor's note: We agree with Joann and Kerrin that the Zena School exhibit, like all of the exhibits, was well done. Unfortunately, with an armory full of exhibits, our photographers did the best they could. If an exhibit was missed, it was only because there were so many excellent ones.

Not Imposing Beliefs

Dear Editor:

In my letter of March 24, 1976, I was not trying to impose Christian principles on anyone nor to convert "non-believers in our midst" as Mr. Harding suggests in his letter of April 6, 1976.

I was only trying to bring out a part of Pope Pius XII statement: "The explanation of the universe and of mankind is forced within the narrow limits of materialism or rationalism, and new education systems are sought after which cannot but produce a sorrowful harvest in the intellectual and moral life of the nation."

I did not suggest mandatory religious education.

I did not suggest the Lord's Prayer. I did suggest a Proper Prayer Amendment.

The 16th Amendment made federal income tax legal. It is so high most people are forced to send their children to public school.

We had prayer in our public schools - it was taken out. I ask for a religious liberty to be given back to our children. Prayer is not only a Christian principal. I feel religious instruction should be part of a child's formal education experience.

How can you maintain a reasonable standard of morality, but keep morality out of public school?

What rationale is behind appropriating funds towards a . . . Health curriculum, such as we now have in Kingston High, which teaches "developing your own values." This is direct opposition to my religious beliefs.

Mr. Harding, your real worry should be universal secularizing of the education of the young.

Jesus Christ composed the "Lord's Prayer". It is addressed to "our Father Who art in Heaven."

Irving Berlin wrote "God Bless America". I think they are both great prayers.

The Ninth Amendment to the Constitution states: "The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

This means simply, that the Constitution does not pretend to have listed all the specific rights the people have or had before the Constitution and its Amendments were adopted. The courts must therefore consider such claims of right on their merits instead of arguing "if the Constitution had intended to give these rights to the people, it would have done so."

I don't consider others minorities. I consider all, my brothers and sisters.

Acted With Dignity

Dear Editor:

The Ontario School Board has had to take a lot of guff in the conduct of its hearings against Superintendent Marlow and it has behaved with dignity and extraordinary courage in its efforts to dispell the unhealthy academic smog overhanging our district.

Despite the repeated anonymous telephoned threats of bodily injury to themselves and their families and violence to their households if they pursued the hearings and attacks in public and in the press, they continued to labor without compromise to get at the truth.

The time is long overdue when we members of the Ontario School District raised our voices in their defense. We urge all concerned citizens to sit down now and write the Commissioner of Education Ewald Nyquist, at the department of education, Albany, New York, to examine the evidence of this case carefully and with impartiality so that a proper disposition can be made as soon as possible.

More Important Things

Dear Editor

A West Hurley Father....

There was a vote on the West Hurley Recreational Park and it was voted NO!! So why all the crying about something that's been decided against.

Let's start thinking about more important things like creating more jobs in the area. Most people are struggling to meet their monthly bills, food, clothing, etc. After all you have the reservoir for fishing and boating and the mountains for camping. Also there are numerous State trails for hiking.

We as parents should make our own recreation with our children. Because the fact is most children would love to have their parents take an active interest in them and participate with them in family fun and recreation. Instead of buying children all the expensive toys - 10 speed bikes, mini bikes, snowmobiles etc.; why not give a little of your time to your children?

What it all boils down to is make your own fun!

Let's learn again how to use the God given talents to think of ideas to have fun.

Sincerely,
HERMINIO RIVERA

April Fool Fun

Dear Editor

My compliments on your April 1 issue. I truly enjoyed the many tongue-in-cheek (I hope) articles. It's always a pleasure to receive pleasure whilst reading a newspaper these days.

By the way, I was going to write you sooner but I've been busy thinking of organizing a Procrastinator's Club in the vicinity. I've just never gotten around to it. Maybe tomorrow!! Keep up the good job, please.

As the Mails Bog Down

WASHINGTON — The Postal Service has told Congress and the White House to go blow it out the other ear. Either more money will be forthcoming or the mailman will stop coming. There will be no economies, no increased efficiency, no effort to live within any budget save that which the Postal Service draws up for itself.

We have had this sort of thing before. The Pentagon does it. The Washington Post's Mike Causey has written of the time that the National Park Service forced Congress to put aside thoughts of a budget cut by closing the elevator in the Washington Monument. But the Postal Service is another matter.

Historically, no part of the Federal government has been so closely associated with Congress as the old Post Office Department. For the best part of two centuries it was a congressional patronage preserve, an extension of every member of Congress' personal political organization.

No more. Control has so completely slipped away that not long ago a group of congressmen went to Federal court to try and stop the closing of hundreds of rural post offices. The resort to the courts is an inadvertent confession of absolute powerlessness.

This isn't the first time members of Congress have had to go looking for outside help to get the executive branch to do its bidding. During the Nixon years the courts were used to force the Administration to stop impounding moneys appropriated by Congress and to spend them as the law required. When Nixon was driven from power, we were told that the unconstitutional poltergeist had been exorcised and checks and balances between the branches had been restored.

It appears now that impounding has continued and that, in general, congressional powers of oversight have grown irrevocably feeble. In the case of the Postal Service the Ford White House can't be blamed. The Administration has tried to resist the Postal Service's demands as much as Congress has. Neither has been able to do much.

The bureaucratic class has a life and a power base of its own. Neither the White House nor Congress can assemble the force necessary to intrude on a structure like the Postal Service to reorganize it so that it will perform its tasks at something like a reasonable level of costs.

Outside of a very unsatisfactory, occasional recourse to the courts, Congress is left with nothing more than the threat of committing an act of legislative violence. It can abolish the Postal Service or at least abolish its monopoly in hopes that it can discipline its own legislative creation with private enterprise competition.

That threat, like the power of the purse, is so strong it scares the members of Congress more than it does the agencies and departments it might be used against. Congress has no practical way to legislate against the simplest abuses it daily cries to the heavens in anger over. A man like William Proxmire has made a career of surprising bureaucrats misusing government limousines, but what does it accomplish save to make the Wisconsin senator popular with the millions who understand as well as he that Washington's offices are filled with loafers, wastrels and petty thieves.

Congress might be described as a kennel of watchdogs of the Treasury, but these ferocious Fidos keep digging up the same corrupt, bureaucratic bones over and over again. To what purpose? So that we can watch a worthless, super-grads, civil service shlepper wiggle for 90 seconds on the nightly news?

Clearly Congress hasn't got the power to compel the sort of reorganization that would at least force these hateful wimps who man the agencies of government to devise new ways to steal from and exploit the working and producing part of the population. Could Congress regain that power? Theoretically yes, but practically no.

Even to recapture some influence over the Postal Service would require disbanding the public corporation Congress set up just a few years ago to run the mails. Public corporations, which characteristically develop the double-shelled, institutional protections of both the CIA and General Motors, can't be controlled by anyone from the outside. But Congress also lacks the power to see that its will is done in more old-fashioned parts of the government like Commerce and Labor.

To reassert itself in any significant manner could not be done without bringing the budget-making function back from 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue to Capitol Hill. When Congress gave up its power to put the Federal budget together from start, it gave up the most important part of its powers of initiation and organization. That process began in the First World War. The Bureau of the Budget, now expanded to the even more powerful Office of Management and Budget by Nixon, was established in the Harding Administration. How can Congress find the force or the political support to push over such old institutional stones?

Rather, the direction is for Congress to continue to weaken itself. President Ford has wisely said he's going to veto the bureaucracy didn't have enough leverage on Capitol Hill now.

For the near future you can expect the mail service to get worse, but be consoled. We still have Senator Bill to pull bureaucrats out of the back seats of those chauffeured limousines.

The Cautious Lover

WASHINGTON — The late Howard Hughes, once one of Hollywood's most publicized playboys, consorted with women of rare beauty and international reputation. Yet he was really a cautious lover, secretly shy, who conducted elaborate surveillance of his women before making romantic advances.

The incredible details have been hidden for a quarter of a century behind the tight screen he drew around himself. We have partially unmasked the rich recluse as part of a larger investigation into his tangled financial-military-CIA ties.

We discovered, astonishingly, that in the '40s and '50s he turned his social life into a multimillion-dollar operation. He would go after a woman with the same methods he might seek to take over a corporation.

At least 100 women who struck his fancy were brought under electronic and physical surveillance. Among them some of the world's most glamorous women, including Elizabeth Taylor, Sophia Loren, Ava Gardner and Janet Leigh.

The billionaire hired a private detective named Gerald Chouinard to spy on the lovelies. Because Hughes was hard of hearing, he couldn't get Chouinard's name straight. So the detective finally adopted the name Mike Conrad.

For 18 years, Conrad handled secret projects for Hughes, including the romantic espionage. The billionaire followed the surveillance reports closely. Once, he suggested Conrad could keep a closer watch on actress Elizabeth Taylor in her second-floor Hollywood apartment by setting up an observation post on a telephone pole across the street.

Another time, Hughes was eager to date actress Janet Leigh and had her followed wherever she went. The surveillance reports enabled Hughes to surprise her with opportune visits. It happened so often, she told us, that she finally realized it "wasn't a coincidence anymore."

Finally, she asked Hughes outright why he didn't "just ask me out." Hughes promptly asked and she accepted, with the provision that her parents go along. The four had a pleasant dinner at the Sportsmen's Lodge.

Not until later did she learn about the surveillance when Hughes "showed me the reports."

A number of famous actresses had Hughes' watchdogs on their trail. He arranged for Ava Gardner to be followed to a bullfight in Tijuana: Anne Bancroft was tailed for a brief period; Hughes even planted a spy aboard a fishing yacht to observe Jean Peters and her husband Stuart Cramer on their honeymoon. Later, the actress divorced Cramer and married Hughes.

The tall, lean, heavy-lidded billionaire would also take a sudden fancy to an unknown girl whom he might spot in a car or whose picture he might see in a magazine. More than once, he ordered his investigators to trace the license plates of a car carrying a pretty girl. Once, he searched for a girl who appeared in cap and gown on a Life magazine cover.

Perhaps Hughes' most extravagant romantic escapade occurred following a

Miss Universe contest. He was captivated by so many of the beauties that he actually set up a special company, called Black Gold Productions, to arrange dates with him for a dozen finalists.

He kept a photographer on 24-hour call to photograph the women who stirred his interest. Once, the photographer flew all the way to Italy to shoot pictures of Sophia Loren. Hughes always wanted close-ups of the girls without makeup. Then the negatives would be printed untouched and would be rushed to the waiting Hughes.

If he liked what he saw, he might offer the girl a movie contract. Sometimes, he had a career in mind for her; other times, he had more personal designs.

She would be flown to Hollywood with her family, her belongings and sometimes her furniture. While waiting to meet Hughes, she would be rushed through a round of acting, singing and dancing lessons and beauty appointments.

Each woman had a chauffeur-driven car to whisk her around Hollywood and to escort her to lavish dinners at the best night spots. All the while, Conrad and his investigators would check out the women carefully. They were usually instructed to locate any boy friends and get rid of them.

When Hughes got around to it, sometimes after several months had passed, he would call the girl. Sometimes he would profess to be in another city, although he might be just down the corridor.

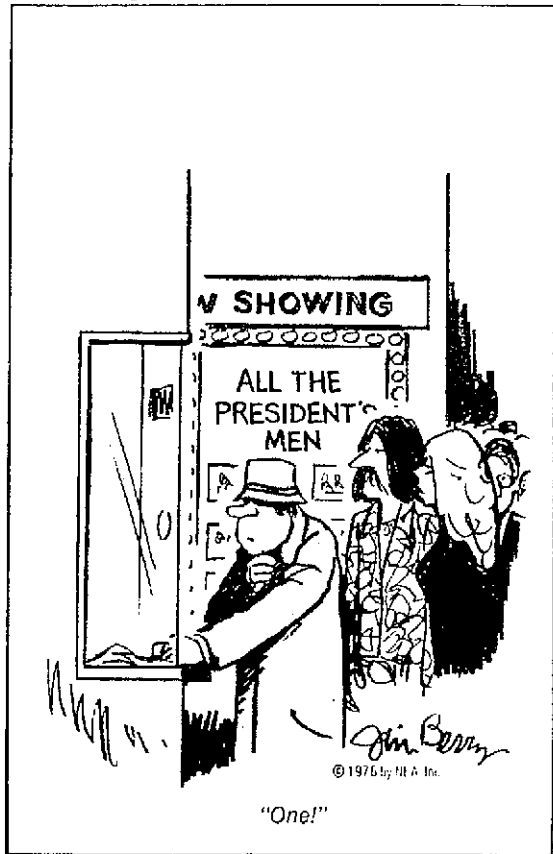

He would promise a visit but would not appear. This would be followed by other calls until the girl's anticipation would build up.

He used other little tricks to win over a romantic prospect. On occasion, for example, he would buy her a dog and arrange for the dog to be stolen. Then he would find the dog and triumphantly return it to her.

But slowly, Hughes began to shun the women he once pursued. The last decade of his life was spent, ironically, as a celibate.

Footnote: Our associate Bob Owens tracked down Mike Conrad in Thousand Oaks, Calif. The detective refused to discuss his work for Hughes but confirmed the incidents we had dug out. Conrad also confirmed that Hughes had spent about $2 million to spy on beautiful women.

Letter to Four Daughters

Dearest Girls: This is hello and farewell. A kiss on the wind. Mother and I will be traveling in a week. We'll be home in May. As usual, I will make copies of this and send them to the four of you, although the reason why escapes me. We seldom get a letter back.

All of you got a passing grade in writing home for money. Or to relate a problem. I am convinced that all children should be born at the age of 21, working.

You know I love all of you, deeply, devotedly, forever. What I resent is that all of you had to grow up and flee the nest. Once, when Grandma Bishop was celebrating her 50th wedding anniversary, she sighed and said, "I wish you were all two-years old again." Too late. I understand what she meant.

Like here is predictable. I write a column; write a scene of an autobiography; hack my way around a golf course; take mommy to dinner and a movie. We return home asking each other what the story was.

We read in bed. It's a hell of a honeymoon. In the morning, we watch Mike Douglas. In the afternoon, it's Merv Griffin. Charlie Chan plays with his rubber cruller on the rug. I could tell you more, but I doubt if you could stand the excitement.

Kathi came home on spring break from Florida Atlantic University. She gets her bachelor's degree in June. She is more beautiful than ever - really - and is one of those students who flogs herself to perfection. When she gets less than an A-minus, little bubbles of foam appear on her lips and she mumbles naughty words about the faculty.

Gayle spent a week in the hospital, trying to track down an abdominal pain, or is it abominable? The pain has subsided but she can't afford the hospital bill. She'd like to have her pain back.

Karen and Paul have bought a house. It's somewhere in Palm Beach County near where they teach. The proper time to buy a house is when you're young and can't afford it. The mortgage is the size of the anchor on the Andrea Doria. But, what the heck? They're criminally happy and dine in candlelight on bologna skin sandwiches.

Love is a narcotic. Virginia Lee and Charley have managed to raise eight children. I understand that the twins, now 17, saved their baby-sitter money and bought a horse. I count him as three more mouths to feed.

Charley is still working for Lilly Tulip. Ginny, in spite of all the kiddies, is selling real estate for 21st Century. Get your flu shots - none of you can afford to be sick.

Oh - travel. I forgot. One or two of you may recall that I wrote a book called "The Birth of the United States." It's out. Mom and I have invitations to appear on the Mike Douglas Show, Merv Griffin and some others. This spells jet set.

The Declaration of Independence, and how it came to be written, is historically important. The words and deeds of each of the 55 men who met behind locked doors in Philadelphia is worth more than an assortment of fireworks on July 4th. As always, I learned as I researched.

Mother spends her days shopping, her evenings cooking. She cannot resist a genuine bargain, and almost bought a $1,500 Chinese rickshaw for $500.

Her closet has been full of clothes for 10 years. Idly, I wondered how she managed to fit the new "bargains" inside. I went to the utility room for a hammer. Skirts, dresses, gowns and coats hang from the rafters. They look new to me. She says they are all "old."

Well, so am I. She keeps an empty hanger for me. The cooking is a problem because she now cooks for two. A roast beef looks gray on the third day. We never have a loin of pork or a ham unless we expect visitors.

She still bakes. If a piece of orange cake is left over, the dog gets a shot at it. She has trained Charlie Chan to eat sliced tomatoes and marinated cucumbers. He now thinks he's a people.

There. I have caught up on my correspondence. I admonish you girls to study these words of wisdom. Remember, if you write you're right.

A book full of Xs for each of you. Dad..

Failure of 'Soft Approach'

The flap over Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's alleged statements to Admiral Elmo Zumwalt that the U.S. has become "second best" to the Soviet Union may be re-awakening the country to the unpleasant reality that the Communists intend to encircle us by promoting one nibbling action after another. But Admiral Zumwalt, who I believe is speaking the truth about his conversations with Kissinger, has a long way to go in his patriotic proselytizing if he hopes to convince Congress that all is not well with the defenses of the Republic.

So many of our Senators and Representatives are the victims of the illusion that the Soviet Union can be persuaded to work for "peace through law" that only the most dramatic voter pressure can possibly change things on Capitol Hill. How, for example, can people be brought to counter the soft defeatist propaganda that is put forth by the unofficial organization called Members of Congress for Peace Through Law? This group, which is "steered" by Senators Edward Brooke, Edmund Muskie, Mark Hatfield, Charles Mathias Jr. and Philip Hart among others, is for so many things that sound reasonable on their face that it is like coming out against mom and apple pie to challenge them.

The Peace Through Law advocates want to work for a world reduction of armaments. They want a comprehensive nuclear test ban treaty. They want arms control impact statements on major new strategic weapons systems. They would like to save billions on Pentagon expenditures. They want to negotiate a new Panama Canal treaty that will make the best of all possible worlds, providing safety in transit, cheap inter-ocean fares, and a recognition of Panamanian sovereignty that will not take away from U.S. responsibility to keep things running.

The trouble with this soft approach to world problems is that Communists are only interested in turning it against us. The Peace Through Law Senators and Representatives have apparently never read Stalin and Lenin on the "colonial question." From the very beginning the Communists have pushed an ambitious program of filling in the vacuum caused by the West European and American "retreat from empire." "Neutrality" is only understood in Moscow as a ruse. The idea is to encircle the capitalist West with a whole other world that is committed to socialist cooperation with the Marxist drive for hegemony.

We can have peace, but it won't come through the spread of "law." It will be by surrendering every last bit of territory right up to the continental limits of the U.S. The worst of it is that the Members of Congress for Peace Through Law would leave us bereft of the arms necessary to defend our own continental freedom.

Look at the amendments that various Peace Through Law advocates have tried to attach to defense budget authorizations. Senator George McGovern has tried to cut all appropriations for the B-1 bomber. Senator Edward Kennedy has attempted to eliminate funds for 80 spare Minutemen II intercontinental ballistic missiles. Senator Mike Gravel doesn't want to provide money for any further anti-ballistic missile development, he wants to cut 200,000 of the 300,000 U.S. troops abroad, and he would like to ban the formation of three new U.S. Army combat divisions. Senator William Hathaway has proposed the elimination of funds for the sea-launched cruise missile.

In the House Representative

Robert Leggett wants to cut back on the Trident submarine program, and Representative Les Aspin hopes to put an across-the-board ceiling on defense spending in general.

Most of the Peace Through Law amendments have not gone through. This country hasn't been totally deprived of its senses. But the failure of key legislators to find out what the Marxist exploitation of the "colonial question" is all about keeps us from pursuing a policy of nerving up our allies abroad and awakening our citizens at home to the tough realities they face.

Admiral Zumwalt's formula for redemption is simple: Let's start telling the truth about the way things are. His quarrel with Henry Kissinger is not that our Secretary of State is pessimistic. Kissinger's real failure is that he has never chosen to tell Congress or the people the reasons for his pessimism. If we don't know why we are Number Two, we will never get back to a position of equality, let alone recovering the only safe status of being Number One.

Sizing Up All The Customers

WASHINGTON — There was an intriguing article in a recent issue of Cue magazine about Joseph Ferrari, manager of the posh Palm Court in the Plaza Hotel, who is one of New York's most skilled sizer-uppers.

Joseph, as everyone calls him, says that when a customer walks in he can tell in two or three seconds "where he comes from, what he wants to be, what he pretends to be, whether he is with his wife or girlfriend. From a few items I can tell the status, origin, idiosyncrasies and the image people want to project."

When I came down here I asked my friend, Paul DeLase, maitre d' at the famed Sans Souci restaurant, whether he could size up people like his counterpart in New York.

"But of course!" Paul replied. "Except that here the people tend to be somewhat more exotic."

"Exotic?" I exclaimed. "In Washington?"

"Certainly," Paul said. "Take for example that table over there by the wall. The man facing us obviously works for the CIA. He is well-dressed, but the boutonniere in his lapel is a fake. That flower is undoubtedly a bug, attached by a wire on the inside of his jacket to a recording device, which appears as a slight bulge in his left pocket.

"Fantastic! Any more?" "I noticed when he sat down that he was fumbling for his pipe, forgetting for an instant that it wasn't there. Since most CIA men smoke pipes, they are careful not to do it in public for fear it will give them away."

"I'm impressed. Who are those other people with him?" "Let's see. The man with his back to the wall has a round, well-ted face, horn-rimmed glasses, cigar, loud tie, loud jacket, loud voice, and he's ordering a second double martini. His wrist watch is bigged, incidentally. I could tell from his walk when he came in that he was once a construction worker. So I Spanish accent. Unusual would say that he is a public relations man for a labor organization, probably the building trades union."

"Interesting combination."

Who is the third man?" "Mmmmmmm. He's obviously wearing a wig. Dark glasses. False moustache, slightly crooked. He's even got fake teeth — a cheap set, probably bought in a novelty store. See how one part of his upper lip keeps getting caught whenever he smiles? It's a terrible disguise. I'd say he was a foreign spy, possibly Bulgarian. That hearing aid is undoubtedly a bugging device."

"But what would those three...?" "At that moment a beautiful woman came in, pointed to the very table we were discussing, and was seated by Paul. "This is becoming fascinating!" I said. "What can you tell me about her?"

"Expensive perfume," Paul said. "Probably Chanel No. 5. Almost regal posture. An Yves Saint Laurent dress. Her bugging device is buried in the cleavage, by the way. Slight construction worker. So I Spanish accent. Unusual would say that he is a public relations man for a labor organization, probably the building trades union."

"How do you know all that?" "I noticed when I seated her," Paul replied modestly. "What do you make of it?" "Only one thing. She is a very successful circus trapeze artist."

I gave a low whistle. "Paul, that's amazing! But why would a CIA man, a labor union flack, a Bulgarian spy, and a trapeze artist all be lunching together?" "I haven't any idea," Paul answered with a shrug. "To find that out you would have

Ford Considers His Mate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford is in no rush to indicate his choice of a vice presidential running mate.

"I have to get nominated myself first," he teasingly responds when asked the question, which is often.

If he has his way, Ford probably will not make a firm decision until after he has nailed the top spot on the Republican ticket himself and after he has surveyed the political scene. Like any politician, Ford will pragmatically weigh one factor — who can do the most for him in the vote-getting field.

He also undoubtedly will be taking into consideration whether he needs a heavy hitter who is popular in the South, or whether he has been pushed to the right too much himself in the contest with conservative challenger Ronald Reagan and needs some political bolstering on the moderate or liberal side.

The vice presidency has often been a plum for the incumbent to dangle. The classic case is Franklin D. Roosevelt who promised the vice presidential nomination to many, particularly in 1944, and got a lot of people mad at him. In the end, the Democratic pros talked him into choosing a relatively nationally unknown — Sen. Harry S. Truman of Missouri.

President Lyndon B. Johnson also played games with the vice presidency in 1964, leading many to believe they were the front runners, while Johnson-Humphrey signs were being painted in the basement of convention hall in Atlantic City, N.J. at LBJ's behest.

When he finally told Hubert H. Humphrey that he was the one, he reminded him, "You're only going to be a messenger boy around here."

Ford has ticked off a number of names of men who would be attractive running mates. They include Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, Sens. Howard Baker, Tenn., Edward M. Brooke, Mass., Charles E. Percy, Ill., William Brock, Tenn., Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and former Texas Gov. John B. Connally among others.

Ford also has mentioned one woman, Housing Secretary Carlo Hills, for the No. 2 spot, but no one would make any bets on that.

And Vice President Nelson A. Rockefeller has ruled himself out of the running with Ford's acquiescence.

Some of Ford's Texas pundits are speculating that Connally has tried to strike a deal with Ford for the vice presidency. Connally is playing it cool and says he is remaining "neutral" in the crucial Texas primary where he could swing heavy weight with Texas conservatives.

It appears certain that Ford will not select an unknown, but rather a national figure who would enhance his ticket.

The day may come when vice presidential hopefuls have to run on their merits in primary bids themselves. But old politics still being what it is, vice presidents still are the choice of the presidential candidate, and what it gets down to in many ways is that one person selects the future President.

Since 1945, three vice presidents have acceded to the presidency because of death, assassination and resignation. But few presidential candidates seem to take into consideration that their running mates may wind up in the White House and therefore should be highly qualified to assume that awesome position.

New Era in Israeli-Arab Relations

JERUSALEM (UPI) — The Arabs of the West Bank have made it clear they want an end to Israel's military occupation and the creation of a Palestinian state.

The decisive victories by Palestinian nationalists in Monday's municipal elections across the occupied territory signaled the start of a new era in relations between Israel and the 650,000 Arabs of the West Bank.

It may be the start of an era of confrontation between occupier and occupied or it may be the beginning of a far-reaching dialogue between Israel and the Arabs who lost their lands when the Jewish state was born 28 years ago.

Some sources close to the Israeli government expressed concern that the militant gains in the balloting may ignite the explosive West Bank — scene of more than two months of anti-Israeli unrest.

But other knowledgeable Israelis said the emergence of a nationalist leadership in most major towns of the region may provide a bridge for a dialogue between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The informants said the new nationalist leaders may be able to convince Israel to ease its opposition to the birth of a Palestinian state and get the PLO to modify its refusal to recognize the Jewish state.

"It won't happen overnight," one of the sources said. "It may take a long time, maybe even 10 years or more. But the elections add a new ingredient to the whole problem and I wouldn't be surprised if it leads to a new solution."

The Jerusalem Post recently said it was better for Israel to meet "relatively extreme Palestinian nationalists across municipal executive desks rather than in terrorist confrontations."

Both Israel and the PLO said they could live with the new leadership on the West Bank — although Israel's response indicated a grudging acceptance of the inevitable. In an apparent awareness of the new times at hand, the Israeli government kept troops out of West Bank towns during the voting and let local Arab policemen keep order.

Some Arab leaders had blamed the presence of Israeli troops for the deaths of six youths during a violence-marred strike two weeks ago to protest the takeover of Arab lands in the northern Galilee region.

The first possible source of confrontation appeared to be over Israel's insistence that the new leaders limit their roles to municipal affairs and the victors commitment to the creation of a Palestinian state.

Peres warned that any person who tried to use his municipal office for political purposes "would be making a mistake and will not be able to be a good mayor."

But Dr. Hatem Abou Ghazaleh, a Nablus physician who won a council seat with a pro-PLO campaign, vowed to fight any Israeli attempt at "legitimizing the occupation" of the West Bank, captured from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War.

Rehab Work May Disturb Water Service

KINGSTON — Water service to residents and businesses of the uptown Kingston area may be disrupted at times during the next three months because of on-going rehabilitation work on a major 16-inch water main that serves that area.

The work involves installation of seven new 16-inch valves underneath portions of Clinton Avenue from Liberty to Greenkill Avenues, on Greenkill Avenue from Clinton to Washington Avenues and on Washington Avenue from Greenkill to Lucas Avenues. According to Edwin T. Radel, administrative assistant of the Kingston Water Board, every effort will be made to minimize the impact of the water main shutdowns. He said the water will be shut off minutes before workmen begin to remove a section of the main, and then will be turned on immediately after the new valve is installed.

Radel said the entire procedure should take no more than an hour and a half under ideal circumstances; a maximum of three hours if the workmen encounter problems. Residents of that area, therefore, would be without water service for a maximum of three hours for one day only.

The work, said Radel, will be performed during daylight working hours whenever possible, so that residents will not be without water during dinner or evening hours.

Not all of the residents of the uptown area will be affected by the shutdowns, said Radel, because the water main itself actually serves only a few people. Those individuals or businesses that will be affected will be notified in advance.

Perhaps even more significantly, the main that is being repaired supplies the uptown fire hydrants with water for fire-fighting purposes. When portions of the line are shut down this summer, there will be no hydrant water available for fire emergencies.

Radel said that is the major reason why the work will be performed as quickly as possible. He said the city police and fire departments will be notified in advance when any portion of the water main is disrupted.

The rehabilitation work represents the first major project undertaken with funds from Community Development. In addition to the installation of new valves, the entire main will be cleared of sediments that have built up over the years, and a cement mortar lining will be applied to prevent future sediment buildup. The overall effect of the project will be vastly improved water pressure for that area of the city.

By necessity, the work will involve several large excavations on Washington, Clinton and Greenkill Avenues. To avoid unnecessary traffic problems, the Water Department has requested residents to bypass that area whenever possible.

The work is being performed by Spiniello Construction Co. under a contract awarded by the Common Council. The heavy construction work began earlier this week.

EDMUND OSTERHOUDT HOUSE IN GLASCO BUILT IN 1819

DAR Booklet Features Saugerties Homes

Down through the years a great deal has been written about stone houses in Old Hurley, New Paltz and Stone Ridge. Few realize that more than 60 stone houses of assorted ages are still "home" to families in the Saugerties Township. As many as eight generations have been sheltered by some of these historic structures.

Saugerties had its first settler in 1663 when legend has it, the "Little Sawyer" bought land from the Indians and started a saw-mill near the Hudson River on the lower Sawkill Creek. Other settlers followed, some even before the American Revolution, built their homes and laid a foundation for life in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Life

The houses of native bluestone and limestone still stand their and fireplaces of cobblestones taken from creekbeds still intact. It took a great deal of work to gather information about the Township's stone houses. It was a project undertaken by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution, Saugerties Chapter.

In celebration of America's Bicentennial, DAR members voted to preserve local history by publishing a booklet about the stone houses complete with pictures and text. Chairman was Mrs. Chester B. Glunt, DAR historian. On the book committee were Mrs. Carroll Nieffer, regent, Mrs. David C. DeForest, vice regent, Mrs. Lewis Gaylord, sketches, Mrs. John Lowther, Mrs. Albert Tice, Mrs. Herbert Hommel and David C. DeForest of the Christian Myer Society, photographer.

Gov. Thomas Dongan was granted 197 acres of land in 1686 in what is now West Camp. It was deeded to John and Thomas Faulerton in 1690 and later sold to the Philipse family. In 1742 a house was built on the site by Jory William Dederick and in 1951 was sold to John Dimmler. Today the beautiful structure, which once was listed as a post office and blacksmith shop, is owned by Donald Hanzl. It is still called the "Dederick House."

Lanigan House, which is now the home of Joseph Muscarella on Glasco Turnpike, was built about 1700. Originally, the house was a fort and still has a ladder leading to the loft. There is even an old cemetery on the property. The Edmund Osterhoudt House in Glasco was built in 1819 on the Flatbush Road (Route 32). Owned now by Hal Purdy, it still represents the hardiness of early settlers.

Mynderse Schoonmaker House, owned today by the Edwin B. Bond family, is located on Spaulding Lane. This stone house was originally built on land received by Mynderse Schoonmaker as a grant from Queen Ann in the early 1700's. The Schoonmaker family continued to live in the house until the 1850's when the southern portion of the lane was purchased by Charles Spaulding, consisting of a tract of land extending east to the Hudson River, south to Glasco and west to what is now Route 9W. Cornelia Vanderpool purchased the northern portion.

The former Schoentag's Colonial Tavern, now owned by David and Beatrice Bright, used to be an old meeting place; the Cornelius Persen House in Katsbaan built during the early 1700's used to be the meeting place for Patriots during the Revolutionary War; property now known as "Stroomzeit," is located on the Hudson at Malden where Major Dan Wolven resided before the Revolution. The British burned his house but it was later rebuilt. It is said that Benedict Arnold also stayed there.

Old Stone Houses of Saugerties are richly steeped in history and played an important part in this area's development. Some of them have been designated as Historic Landmarks by the Ulster County Landmarks Commission. A copy of the DAR Bicentennial issue, "The Old Stone Houses of Saugerties Township" may be obtained by writing to: Ruth Glunt, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, Saugerties Chapter, Saugerties, N.Y. Cost is $2.75, if mailed, $2.50 if purchased in a book store.

Arts Councils Exchange Ideas

New Paltz — Three county arts councils exchanged information and ideas at a special meeting here recently. Representatives attended from Ulster, Dutchess and Sullivan Counties.

Patricia Yaeger, reporting for the Ulster County Council for the Arts, outlined the scope and services of the local organization. Carol Premezzi announced Ulster's annual meeting on April 24 at Su SUNY in New Paltz is open to all interested persons and the all-day meeting will feature workshops on grants, dance and theatre workshops with emphasis upon prop and costume problems and many other features of value to those concerned with advancing arts activities in this area as well as works by individual artists.

James Jacobs from the Sullivan County Council on the Arts reported on a Summer Festival sponsored by the Sullivan County Council with which the Council is closely allied. The Mid-Hudson Opera Group is planning to produce a native Indian work and asks assistance from other Councils.

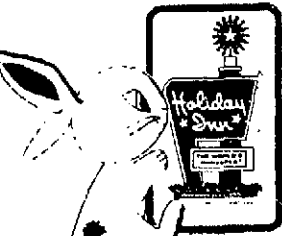

John Berg of the Dutchess Arts Council reported he is trying to establish new priorities in which the arts will have a higher position with political and service groups in their county. Mrs. Evelyn Stevenson, president, has met with several groups such as the Junior League and League of Women Voters who have expressed interest in cooperating with the work of the Dutchess Arts Council.

The next meeting of the tri-county group will be called by the Sullivan Arts Council.

Quilt Display at UCCC

STONE RIDGE — An exhibition titled "Image of the American Quilt" will be presented by the UCCC Department of Visual Arts May 2-28. Highlight of this exhibition of 75 quilts will be an Ulster County Bicentennial Quilt honoring one of New York State's 10 original counties.

On display in the College Visual Arts Gallery, the Ulster County Bicentennial Quilt incorporates 42 pictorial blocks, each of which depicts places and events of historic or scenic interest and represents 350 years of growth and development within the county. Forty-two women of diverse backgrounds, ranging in age from 20 to 79, planned, designed and worked together creating a "community" quilt in the manner of an old-time "Quilting Bee" reflecting a community of spirit so vital to the nation's Bicentennial celebration.

This project was conceived and coordinated by Ruth Culver, who teaches Quilting in the Continuing Education Program at Ulster County Community College.

Additional quilts will be exhibited also: a historic Centennial Quilt, a Star of Bethlehem, an Applique Album Quilt and a Crazy Quilt. There will be several appliqued quilts and dozens of patchwork quilts all of which are of antique vintage. Among the remaining quilts on display, will be several new patchwork and unusual new contemporary design quilts.

The exhibit will feature also a "Story Book Quilt" with 20 blocks, each made by a different person, including three men.

An opening reception to meet the artists will be held Sunday, May 2 from 2-4 p.m. in the Visual Arts Gallery. The gallery, located in Vanderlyn Hall at Ulster County Community College, is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and on selected weekends.

During the show, a new "Presentation" quilt will be set up for visitors who will be invited to try their hand at quilting.

Walkathon for World Hunger Set for May 1 at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ — The Second Annual Walkathon for World Hunger will be held Saturday, May 1 at 10 a.m. The event will start off from the parking lot at SUNY and all proceeds will be earmarked for the United Nations World Food Program (Food and Agriculture Organization).

Last year more than 100 walkers, bicyclists and joggers completed the 21 mile loop and more than $3,200 was raised by the Walkathon.

From all indications, this year's hike promises to be even bigger in numbers. Registration will take place at the starting point from 10 a.m. to 12 p.m. and sponsor sheets should be completed prior to May 1st.

The UN Food Program works with local people in the most acute famine-stricken nations and only at the request of their governments. Most of the money is given to food network building. This would include rural development projects such as irrigation and farming methods and nutritional feeding programs for children rather than direct food allocations. When UN teams leave, local people take over and continue to implement the programs. The aim is to enable native people to overcome hunger by means which they determine beneficial with a view toward long-range effects on economic, social and cultural development.

Walkathon sheets with complete instructions may be obtained at the Student Christian Center, churches, community locations or on campus.

A World Hunger table is set up twice a week on campus, Tuesday, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., Humanities, and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Student Union Building.

PAW Offers 'Special' For Easter Weekend

WOODSTOCK —To delight area youngsters and adults on this Easter weekend, Performing Arts of Woodstock is offering a special holiday attraction in "Reynard the Fox." Easter vacation performances will be staged on Saturdays, April 17 and 24 at both 3 and 7:30 p.m. and on Sundays, April 18 and 25 at 3 p.m. matinees. All performances will be in Woodstock Town Hall.

Translated from the French play by Marie-Louise Roelants, "Reynard the Fox" is being directed by Michael Cruickshank, who has acted with Rochester's Blackfriars Inc., written and directed nine one-act plays of his own, and staged many adult classics.

The founder of a children's theatre in Brockport, he produced his own script, "The Magic Stone," there; later restaged it for summer stock in Naples, where he directed for three years before coming to Woodstock in 1975. He has since appeared in the acting cast of several Performing Arts productions and directed a children's show at the Joan Ysengrin, the Wolf; and Paul Washington as Reynard the Fox. Completing the cast are Scott Gagnon as Reverend Epinard, the Hedgehog; Bryce Mainieri as Noble, the Lion; and Hillary Weinig as Lendore, the Marriot.

Special costumes have been designed by Elaine Kugler and Adna Karns, and PAW veterans are in charge of staging, lights, sound and backstage crew.

Weekend

Gordon Theatre of the Woodstock Playhouse. For "Reynard the Fox," Cruickshank has both designed the sets and directed the cast.

It is a cast that includes seven young people: Hillard MacDonald as Tielin, the Crow; Michelle Norden as Brun, the Bear; Ken White as

"Reynard the Fox" could well launch a children's wing to round out the theatre fare it offers as a year-round resident company, says PAW. Ticket reservations and additional information can be obtained by calling Edith LeFever through her Woodstock telephone directory listing. Seats will also be available at the door of Woodstock Town Hall on the afternoons and evenings of performances.

Gala Weekend In Rosendale

ROSENDALE — A gala Bicentennial Weekend is being planned for June 12 and 13 in Rosendale with a parade scheduled for the 13th at 3 o'clock.

Jim McNamara and Dick Glazer are general co-chairmen of the celebration committee.

Committee chairmanships made to date: George Goodwin, dance; Harriet Mulligan, fund raising; Ed Connelly, parade; George Mollenhauer and Sam Janeczek, finance; Jim Distasio, trophies; Ray Temple, parade route and decorations; Loretta Doolittle and Ruth Ghear, publicity; Peach Williams, security.

Helen and John Banach are in charge of the fair which will include tables for antiques, arts, crafts, flea market and food.

Participants in the parade are encouraged to have floats depicting an American Heritage theme. Trophies will be awarded.

'The Gazebo' Is Coach House May Production

KINGSTON — A combination of mirth and murder sparks "The Gazebo," the next attraction of Coach House Players. The melodramatic farce takes over the stage of J. Watson Bailey School on May 6, 7 and 8 at 8:30 p.m.

"Gazebo" sends a television mystery writer spinning through a ludicrous series of murderous events. In the curky belief that his ability to spin homicidal webs so skillfully for the homescreen qualifies him to commit a perfect murder, he plots to do away with an unsavory gent who's trying to blackmail his wife. And accomplishes just that through an elaborate check-list of clues he must conceal. But perfection eludes him and he forgets one thing.

The crime is committed in the dark, the body is sealed away in the foundations of a new gazebo...but the wrong man may have been done in by the moonlight of the moon. In the rib-tickling romp that follows, the sale of the gazebo by the wife threatens to expose the corpus delicti.

Wendell Scherer, a Coach House veteran, will star as the TV writer who learns it's easier to write about murder than commit murder most foul. Kathy Eberhardt will play his decorative spouse, who remains unaware of his nefarious deed. Currently directing "The Gazebo" in rehearsal is George Quartell.

Heart Attack! How Others Can Help

As we grow older we have our blood pressure checked, try to eat foods with fewer calories and less cholesterol, exercise moderately and do other things which might delay a heart attack so that we can live longer. But people do have heart attacks. If we know what to do at the scene, will it keep a stricken victim alive those few precious minutes until a doctor or rescue squad arrives?

This important question hit home when my wife and I learned that a small oxygen tank and mask are locked up in a cabinet in each of the laundry rooms on the 15 floors of the highrise building where we live.

After reading the instructions on the tank and seeing a demonstration of how to administer oxygen should someone have a sudden heart seizure, we thought we knew everything and were well prepared if that emergency should face us.

That is, until we watched a local Public Broadcasting System television program one night as three doctors demonstrated what to do for a person in those first few minutes of a heart attack. We learned application of oxygen was useless if the stricken person wasn't breathing.

We think we now know how to use heavy pressure on the chest portion of the body and mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to first get the victim breathing regularly and then use the oxygen mask. We want to know more and want our neighbors also to know and are arranging for a life-saving demonstration for the other condominium owners in our building. Such demonstrations can be arranged through a local Heart Fund Association, the Red Cross, a medical society, a doctor of the local fire department, which usually operates the emergency rescue ambulance.

Although my wife and I are in comparatively good health, people in our age group possibly are more susceptible to coronary seizures. We realized there were important things to put in order in case one of us was suddenly hit by a heart attack.

The key to the oxygen equipment cabinet now hangs on a nail in the guest closet which is closest to the entrance door to our apartment. We know the first thing to do is call our local fire department to speed the rescue ambulance to our home. But how did we list this phone number? Under H for Hallandale, where we live; F for fire department; E for emergency? And since we have three phone extensions but only one personal address-phone book, it probably wouldn't be near the phone extension we would be using in an emergency.

We hope we're now much better prepared. Taped to the inside of the closet doors in the rooms where we have the phone extensions, written in large numbers and letters, are the phone numbers for the fire department rescue squad, our family physician and the hospital with which he is associated, a friend in our building who is a practicing physician in another field of medicine, and a close friend living five miles away, who retired from a cardiology practice and continues with coronary research in South Florida.

All of us can hope and pray that we won't have a sudden heart attack and the rescue ambulance won't be delayed in a heavy traffic jam. Our community has one main street, usually heavy with traffic most of the day and night and plans are underway to equip motorcycle sidecars with the necessary equipment to enable a paramedic to ride the sidewalks when he can't cut through the maze of traffic.

A physician friend visiting a nearby condominium rushed to the side of a man who had had a heart seizure and was immediately joined by six other men, all in the older age bracket. They had taken life-saving instructions from the local Red Cross and were qualified enough to have kept the stricken man alive until the ambulance rescue squad arrived.

Rather than just lying around in the sun they had banded together to form their own life-saving rescue team for the hundreds of neighbors in their large apartment complex. And this should be a good, encouraging example for others to get together to lend a helping hand in saving a life. It's the best example of the "Good Neighbor Policy" we know.

Sore Throat Can Be Treated

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am very worried about my 3-year-old son. He has a very bad sore throat. I took him to the doctor and he told me he has quinsy.

I would appreciate it if you would explain what that is and what causes it. The doctor told me my son inherited it from me. As a child I had frequent sore throats and weak tonsils. I try to take the best care of my children's health as I can.

My son became sick on Monday and on Tuesday he was a little worse. He said his throat did not hurt. Then Wednesday morning he tried to eat his breakfast and he couldn't swallow, so I took him right over to the doctor. How can a child get that sick so fast and not complain? I feel very helpless and bewildered. I asked the doctor and he just said it was a bad sore throat and that he hadn't seen such a case in years.

DEAR READER — The term quinsy is used for the development of an abscess around the tonsil as a complication of a severe sore throat, usually a strep throat. The tissue around the tonsil area is fairly loose and an abscess can form and become quite large. It may produce severe swelling of the neck. Certainly it's enough to cause difficulty for a child in swallowing.

The usual nature of quinsy is to cause a sudden change in illness just as you described. The child may be getting along very well with an ordinary sore throat and then have a sudden marked swelling of the throat, difficulty in swallowing, fever and evidence of severe illness. Just keep in mind that it is simply an abscess and it is caused by an infection. It can be treated and it is not that dangerous today because of the treatments which are available.

This was once a dreaded and fairly frequent complication of strep throat but since strep throats are largely controlled today with antibiotics it is seldom seen. That's why your true that some people seem to be more resistant to infections than others but the exact reasons for this are not always clear.

For more information on sore throats and colds send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 3-1, The Cold, Flu Group. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

THERE IS a wide variety of questions, comments and other things in my mailbox. Recently I received a printed statement from one of the readers which was short, simple and full of wisdom. It read as follows, "Don't be afraid to ask stupid questions. They're a lot easier to handle than stupid mistakes."

I'm inclined to agree and such a philosophy is certainly important where health is concerned. A simple question can sometimes solve important problems that have far reaching effects on one's life and health.

Unlucky the One Who Dines Alone

For a long time, single travelers and single diners have been screaming about discrimination.

I've never had to put up with the extra charges of making a trip as a single, but I've certainly experienced the inequality of eating alone.

I am led beyond the "PLEASE WAIT FOR HOSTESS TO SEAT YOU" sign, down past the "NOT RESPONSIBLE FOR LOST ARTICLES" racks, beyond the "KEEP CLEAR OF SWINGING DOOR" and into a twilight zone that is void of laughter, voices, or for that matter any other human sounds. There, at a table the size of a coaster, I am seated between a sign that reads, "DAMES" and "EMPLOYEES ONLY."

This would be amusing were it not for the fact that one evening I actually had a woman emerge from "DAMES."

drop a dime in my saucer and say, "You're almost out of soap, dear."

There are a lot of myths surrounding the single diner that I'd like to get out of the way today:

Single diners eat to get it over with and just love to sit at a counter and stare at six three-day-old cream pies in a fly-specked mirror. False.

The person who eats alone usually does so between Mondays and Thursdays. Those who come on weekends do so to make trouble. False.

The lone diner likes nothing better than to be coupled with a perfect stranger with whom she has nothing in common who keeps staring at her like she hired the matchmaker from "Fiddler on the Roof." False.

If a restaurant gets a reputation for sitting single people at the window, in full view of other people, it could mean in a few years you'll be having single people bussed into your neighborhood. False.

Maybe it's my imagination, but people react condescendingly to a person who dines alone. One man approached my table one night and said in a loud voice (like I only read lips), "Is anyone sitting in this chair?"

I looked at the empty chair a full minute, then said,

Old or New, Yankee Stadium Is Still Greatest

By Ira Fausfeld

NEW YORK—It is still Yankee Stadium.

Oh, the poles are gone and so is most of the world famous hanging facade—save for that bit adorning the bleacher-length scoreboard. And the fences are shorter and higher and the seats are fewer.

But when you sit and watch a ballgame this summer in Yankee Stadium—the hallowed yard in the Bronx which reopened Thursday—you'll feel like it's the old park all over again.

"I think it's the prettiest ballpark I've ever seen," was the way Mickey Mantle described it.

"It really hasn't changed that much," he continued, sitting at a table in the Yankee clubhouse after the New Yorkers had successfully inaugurated their home with a come-from-behind 11-4 victory over Minnesota before 52,613 delighted fans. "They've got the hairdryers and mirrors and lights in each locker stall and the facade is gone and the fences are in a little. But it isn't that much different."

What did he think when he trotted onto the new field for the first time during impressive pre-game ceremonies honoring famous Yankee Stadium personalities of the past?

"Whenever I go out there and people are cheering for me like they did it's kinda hard to think. It just chills you," Mickey said softly. "One thing I remember doing was looking up at where the facade used to be in the upper deck in right field. I don't think anyone will ever hit one over that."

Mantle's blast off Bill Fischer during

the mid-60's, a skyrocket which hit the top of the stadium and was still rising, was considered the closest thing to a fair ball ever being hit out of Yankee Stadium.

Mickey did look longingly at the shorter outfield fences. The deepest part of the park—the famed "Death Valley"—is just 430 feet compared to the old 471. And the dead center marker is just 417 feet away.

"I would have been better off in this park," Mantle said. "I hit all my long drives to center field."

It didn't take the baseball world long to see the difference between the old and new "Death Valley." The first ball hit in the new stadium Thursday was a two-run homer by Minnesota's Dan Ford, a healthy blast over the 430 sign, but a long out, or at worst a double or triple, in the old stadium.

What makes the new stadium so similar to the old is its basic shape. Although the dimensions are different, it does not take on the cookie-cutter mold of most new parks. Rather, the characteristic design of the stadium enables the long-time Yankee fan to feel right at home.

The monuments no longer are in dead center field, but instead are behind the shortened fence in left center. The Yankee bullpen borders the visitors' pen in center. Auxiliary scoreboards now hang off the first and third base mezzanines rather than from the bleacher walls. Only the right field bleachers are for fans. And the main scoreboard is a three-paneled job, the center of which will eventually be capable of showing replays (it was out of order Thursday).

The historic re-opening went off as scheduled, despite a protest outside the park by members of a South Bronx organization angered over the stadium's alleged $100 million price tag (to be paid by the financially-plagued city), and despite a walkout by stadium ticket takers.

The Yankees brought back some of the great names of the past to help them celebrate the day. Yankee stars Mantle, Joe DiMaggio, Yogi Berra, Billy Martin, Elston Howard, Whitey Ford, Don Larsen, and Bobby Richardson were there—the latter to deliver the invocation. From the football world came Giant greats Kyle Rote and Frank Gifford and from the Baltimore Colts, winners of the historic sudden death game at the stadium, were coach Web Ewbank and line man Jim Parker.

The Notre Dame-Army football series

was marked by quarterbacks Johnny Lujack and Arnold Tucker. Joe Louis represented boxing.

And from the distant past, members of the 1923 Yankee team that opened the original stadium Oscar Ruettinger, Hinkley Haines, Joe Dugan, Waite Hoyt and Whitey Witt were on hand.

Special honored guests were Mrs. Babe Ruth and Mrs. Lou Gehrig, former Postmaster James Farley, long-time Yankee clubhouse man Pete Sheehy, restaurateur Toots Shor, and the Voice of the Yankees Mel Allen.

Also present were Govs. Carey and Byrne.

It was a day baseball fans in New York had been awaiting eagerly and they weren't disappointed. The weather was perfect, the stadium was beautiful and the Yankees won going away.

Yankee Stadium is back in business.

A Day of Confusion At the Ball Park

NEW YORK—Yankee Stadium notebook

There was the characteristic amount of confusion surrounding any opening day when Yankee Stadium was re-inaugurated Thursday.

No one seemed to know where anything was. Reporters bounced into each other looking for the route from the field to the press box and then down again to the clubhouse. Vendors couldn't find their way out once the game had ended. Special policemen didn't know where to get dressed.

If you're planning on going to Yankee Stadium this season, leave early and figure on getting home late. Traffic is a mess and finding the parking lots isn't easy. After the game, exiting and then getting on the highways is a super chore. No help is in sight until the surrounding access roads are completed. That shouldn't be in time for this season . . .

"Did you find your way around," Yogi Berra asked. "You sorta need a road map, don't you?"

We asked one back at Yogi. What does Billy Martin have him doing on the bench? "Loafin'," he grinned . . .

"I don't think Ford's homer would have gone out in the old park, but he sure hit the bleep out of the ball," said Elston Howard, referring to Dan Ford's 430 foot-plus HR in the first inning. "When I was playing that was just a routine out."

view seats. Members of the press were dismayed to find home plate blocked off by a two foot ledge from those sitting in the first row of the press box. Phil Rizzuto did most of his announcing standing up.

The press didn't have it easy before the game either. Many of us, including some of the better known New York City TV people, cooled our heels for upwards of two hours waiting for press credentials to be issued. That plus a crowd of fans looking for the celebrities to enter the park, caused quite a traffic jam in front of the press gate.

Biggest roar from those watching the big-wigs enter, by the way, was reserved for none other than Howard Cosell . . .

The opening day attendance of 52,613 was largest for a Yankee home opener since 54,826 paid on April 19, 1946.

Players on the Yankee roster today who were with the club when the old stadium closed its doors on September 30, 1973 are Sparky Lyle, Dave Pagan, Rick Dempsey, Thurman Munson, Graig Nettles, Fred Stanley, Otto Velez, Roy White, and the disabled Ron Blomberg.

Blomberg undergoes surgery today to repair bicep tendonitis. Dr. Frank Jobe will hold the knife at Ceaninella Valley Hospital in Inglewood, Calif.

The Yankees say good seats are still available for the final two games of the series with Minnesota, Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m.

Yogi Berra, Joe Louis, Mickey Mantle and Joe DiMaggio Are the Center of Attraction.

Dave Kingman Continues Torrid Hitting

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dave Kingman continued his torrid hitting streak Thursday when he drove in five runs with a pair of homers—including a three-run ninth inning blast—to power the New York Mets to a 10-8 victory over the Chicago Cubs, breaking a three-game losing streak.

Kingman's game-winning hit followed singles to Del Unser and John Milner and climaxed a five run comeback. It was his third homer in two games against Chicago and his fourth of the season.

Kingman's first homer came after a walk to Milner in the second inning.

Skip Lockwood, the fourth Met pitcher, hurled 2 2-3 innings to even his record at 11, while Tom Seaver suffered the loss, his initial decision.

The Cubs took a 7-2 lead after the third inning when they scored three in the second and four in the third.

Steve Swisher doubled one run in the second and Dave Rosello followed with a two-run homer, the third of his career.

Chicago added four runs in the third when Thornton singled in two runs following a single by Rick Monday and walks to Bill Madlock and Morales. Trillo then drove in Morales with a single. An error and sacrifice fly by Swisher accounted for the seventh run.

But the Mets pecked away and tied the game in the seventh at 7-7 when Del Unser doubled and scored on John Stearns' single.

Milner's single, two walks and a pinch single by Joe Torre brought in a run in the fourth and three came in the sixth on Bud Harrelson's double, singles by Benny Avala and Wayne Garrett, a walk to Felix Millan and Ed Kranepool's two-run single.

The Cubs had grabbed a one-run lead in the seventh when pinch hitter Joe Wallis' forced Dave Rosello at second base as Manny Trillo scored the go-ahead run.

Elsewhere in the American League, the Chicago White Sox ambushed Boston 8-4 and California whipped Kansas City 5-1.

Over in the National League, Pittsburgh routed St. Louis 9-3, Montreal downed Philadelphia 8-5, the New York Mets outsluged the Chicago Cubs 10-8 and Atlanta drubbed Cincinnati 10-5.

White Sox 8, Red Sox 4

Buddy Bradford slammed out a homer, two doubles and a single and drove in three runs to pace a 13-hit White Sox attack. Brian Downing also drove in a pair of runs for Chicago, one on a solo homer in the second. Bart Johnson, with the aid of four innings of shutout relief from Clay Carroll, gained the win.

Angels 5, Royals 1

Nolan Ryan, showing no ill effects from his off-season shoulder surgery, scattered four hits and struck out nine to gain his first win of the season for the Angels. Bruce Bochte knocked in two runs for California with a third inning single.

Pirates 9, Cardinals 3

Al Oliver and Willie Stargell drove home four seventh inning runs with back-to-back homers off Cardinals' relief ace Al Hrabesky. Oliver's homer was a three-run shot and sealed the fourth straight Pirates' win.

Expos 8, Phillies 5

Tim Lincecum's two-run double highlighted a six-run Expos' fourth inning and Mike Jorgensen added a two-run homer as Montreal dealt the Phillies' Jim Kaat his first National League loss. Woody Fryman hurled 5 2-3 innings for the win.

Braves 10, Reds 5

Off-season acquisitions Ken Henderson and Lee Lacy drove in three runs apiece in helping the Braves hand the Reds their first loss of the season. Henderson had three hits and singled home two first inning runs, while Lacy singled home two runs in the fourth.

In other NBA playoff games, Detroit nipped Milwaukee 125-123, Cleveland shaded Washington, 89-70 and Phoenix beat Seattle 116-111. In the ABA playoffs Denver stopped Kentucky 110-107.

Pistons 126, Bucks 123

Detroit blew a 14-point lead but held on to beat Milwaukee as George Trapp, who scored 11 of his 13 points in the fourth quarter, made a key block on a layup by Gary Brokaw with 32 seconds left to preserve the Pistons' lead.

Cavaliers 80, Bullets 79

Suns 116, Sonics 111

Phoenix strung together five free throws in the last 19 seconds to overcome an incredible performance by Seattle's Fred Brown, who threw in 45 points. The Suns victory evened their best-of-seven NBA playoff series at one game each.

Nuggets 110, Colonels 107

Chuck Williams hit a free throw with three seconds left and notched 21 points to pace Denver past Kentucky in the first game of their ABA semifinal playoff series. Kentucky's Louie Dampier hit a 28-foot desperation shot that would have tied the game but officials ruled it came after the final buzzer.

Bob Eastwood: A Gallery?

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., (UPI) — Bob Eastwood might draw a gallery today to the first time in his little-reported pro career because he jumped ahead of the big names in the $80,000 Tallahassee Open golf tournament Thursday to lead the first round by one shot.

While most of the spectators made up "Arnold's Army" to watch Arnold Palmer shoot a 71 in the opening round, Eastwood carried a pair of 33-stroke nines out of the hilly Killbuck Country Club course for a sparkling 6-under-par 66.

The only "name" player close to him is South African Bob Charles, who fired a 68 to tie with six others for third position in the field, which will be trimmed to the low 70 and ties after today's second round.

Tied for second with 67s in the first round were a pair of comparative unknowns, Lon Hinkle and Lyn Lott. Hinkle said it was his best tournament start in the four years he has been on the tour, nine weeks of which was lost recently to a recovery from a broken finger.

Among some of the more publicized players, John Mahaffey, who lost the U.S. Open last summer to Lou Graham in a playoff, shot a 69, and Bob Murphy landed in the same 71-shooting group as Palmer. Larry Ziegler became a victim of Killbuck's slick greens and carded a 77.

When Two Joes Met

NEW YORK (UPI) — He almost went unnoticed, alone at the back of the press box, dressed in an immaculate business suit, a hand on the guardrail.

Then a huge black man walked over and laid a muscular arm on his shoulder.

The two men exchanged smiles, and Joe Louis, the former heavyweight champion, sat down next to his friend, Joe DiMaggio.

Except once, when young Willie Randolph, the Yankees' new second baseman, let a throw from his catcher go into center field.

Then DiMaggio, who began his career with the Yankees two years after Babe Ruth ended his, allowed his lips to tighten and turned down the corners of his mouth.

A half hour before, he had loped gracefully onto the field to the roars of 53,862 fans.

Fathers nudged their unbelieving sons, who knew DiMaggio only from coffee commercials, and tried to explain how no one had ever played the game like this gray-haired man.

It was the first chance for Yankee fans from both generations to see the new

Those Last Three Holes

By UPI

CARLSBAD, Calif., (UPI) — "Man, those last three holes," a damp Hubert Green sighed. "It was like a light hurricane in your face."

"It was very wet and the course really played long. My hands were so cold I was glad to get in."

That's the kind of weather the elite field of 22 faced Thursday in the first round of the $225,000 Tournament of Champions sponsored by Mutuel of New York.

Green, a skinny 6-1, 165-pounder who was the tour's 1971 Rookie of the Year, managed to put together a 3-under-par 69 in the wind and rain for a two-shot lead over defending champion Al Geiberger, Australian Bruce Crampton and veteran Don January.

The 6,855-yard La Costa Country Club course is one of the tour's toughest layouts even when the weather is nice. But Thursday's unseasonably sour conditions—the worst weather in the eight-year history of the T of C since it moved here from Las Vegas, Nev.—kept all but four players from breaking par.

"But it's still better than playing in the sunshine at Tallahassee," cracked Green, referring to the Tallahassee Open where the rest of the tour is playing this week.

"At the Masters last week, I tried to hit the ball high off the tee. I hit it low here and didn't miss a fairway all day. It wasn't a very enjoyable round, though. It was a lot of work."

Ray Floyd, who breezed to an eight-shot victory at the Masters last weekend, had the worst round of the day, a 6-over 78.

Green, 29, didn't play that well last week at Augusta. He was in contention after two rounds with a 71-66, but finished with a 78-77 for 19th place.

However, he notched three straight victories in March, the first man to win three in a row since Johnny Miller did in 1974.

Green began this week as the tour's No. 2 money-winner with $134,556 behind Hale Irwin's $136,174.

In six years on the tour, Green has 11 victories and $661,964 in career earnings. But he's not ready to make any claims about anything yet.

"Well, I'm better than most 10 handicappers," he said. "But I don't consider myself in the same category with Ben Hogan and Byron Nelson. They're great players."

"To me, a great player and Hubert Green aren't in the same category. A lot of people may think I fit in there somewhere, but I don't."

Green's round included five birdies and two bogeys. One of the bogeys came on the 560-yard 17th hole right into the teeth of the wind, where he used his driver on his first two shots. His third, a one iron, went astray into the water.

"I don't know what kind of weather this is," said Geiberger, who had an eagle and two birdies on his first six holes. "The course is in beautiful shape, but the rain and the wind made it pretty difficult." "It was very cold out there. In fact, the gallery had all the clothes on you'd expect to see at the Bing Crosby."

Major Rules Changes Next Season in ABC

KINGSTON—Major changes in American Bowling Congress regulations were outlined to members of the Kingston Bowling Association's Board of Directors this week by Robert Lynch, Eastern Field Representative of the ABC.

The new rules deal with such subjects as hardness of bowling ball surfaces, bowling lanes equipment not meeting ABC standards, appeal procedures in local leagues and transfer of bowlers on team rosters within a league.

Lynch stressed that next season a bowling ball can be declared illegal in tournaments or for high score purposes if it does not meet the requirement of being "not less than 72 durometer D". Pro shops will have to be equipped with the necessary testing equipment.

The hardness of the bowling ball surface has become a subject of surveillance following the illegal practice of chemically "soaking" balls a couple of seasons ago to hold the lanes better.

ABC Rule 4 deals with the procedure to be taken by individual bowlers and leagues to resolve the issues of bowling establishments not properly functioning or meeting ABC standards, Lynch said.

Leagues that cannot resolve with the proprietor or management the question of equipment may now take their grievance to the local association, which in turn may report

it to the ABC if no resolution is reached.

Under such circumstances, the ABC will investigate the complaint and submit a written request for compliance. If the request is not executed, and a second complaint is forthcoming in writing to the ABC, the certification of the lanes will be lifted, Lynch said.

The ABC has also moved to settle once and for all the sticky problem of bowlers transferring from one team to another within the same league. The transfer will have to be approved by the captains of both teams involved and at least two thirds of the league's board of directors. In the past, Lynch pointed out, many leagues adopted rules which did not permit a bowler to return to the previous team during that season. ABC has declared the latter part of the rule illegal.

The ABC has also ruled that in the future all 20 pins on any set of lanes must be uniform in weight and experience.

New Fish Regulations Set for Esopus Creek

OLIVE—New fishing regulations designed to improve the brown trout fishery in a section of the Esopus Creek have been announced by the Region III office of the Department of Environmental Conservation.

Beginning April 30, anglers fishing the section of the Esopus Creek between the Five Arch Bridge and the Ashokan Reservoir in the Town of Olive will be required to use artificial lures or flies, and will be permitted to keep only three trout per day, 12 inches or longer.

The regulations, according to the DEC, are being implemented on a three-year experimental basis to determine if they do, in fact, improve the brown trout fishery in that section of the stream. The Department intends to monitor the effect of the regulations on the fishery through an angler census and annual stream surveys.

The program part of a comprehensive study project proposed for entire Ashokan Reservoir-Esopus Creek system designed to address its management needs.

Additional information can be obtained from Michael Gann, acting regional fisheries manager for Region III at New Paltz.

Talk Football

MONTICELLO—Monticello school district voters will have the opportunity to vote on a proposition that would restore football to a school system that has been without it since the 1930s when the district holds its annual balloting May 12.

If the voters give their approval—they will have to approve both the proposition calling for the sport's return and the proposed $8.1 million 1976-77 budget, which has the $20,000 needed to get the program started—the district will work into football over a six-year period.

The plan is to begin the program at the seventh-grade level, advancing it a grade level each year; the purpose is to make sure that when Monticello finally begins its varsity program, the athletes will have had the same amount of instruction and experience as the competition.

John McAville contributed 21 points and 19 rebounds, Ray Lindhurst was top man for Scrimmage with 23 points and 12 rebounds, Steve Perso rained 21 points, Ron Thomas 17 and A. J. Murphy 13.

McCune Holds PBA Lead

AKRON, Ohio (UPI)—Don McCune of Munster, Ind., held on while other previous leaders faltered in the first match-play round of the Professional Bowlers Association $125,000 Firestone Tournament of Champions Thursday night.

McCune pushed his 32-game total pinfall to 7,184, 25 pins better than Billy Hardwick of Louisville, Ky., now in second with 7,159.

Rounding out the top five were Jim Godman of Lorain, Ohio, 7,144; George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., 7,106; and Mark Roth of Staten Island, N.Y., 7,090.

McCune has spilled 7,001 actual pins and picked up 120 bonus pins for winning four of his eight match games.

McCune, consistently among the leaders for the last three rounds, still was cautious about his chances as only 180 pins separate the top 15 bowlers.

"When the field is this close," he said, "even if you shoot a big score and lose, you won't lose ground. Of course, it's nicer to win with the big scores."

Hardwick charged all the way from 17th to second by winning seven of his eight match games.

Godman, the leader entering match play, and Pappas, who had been third, stayed among the leaders by splitting their matches like McCune.

KHS Girls Win Opener

HYDE PARK—Kelly Pirro, with relief help from Coleen Hughes, pitched Kingston High an opening 16-14 victory over Roosevelt High in the DCSL girls volleyball league.

Roosevelt built up a 10-5 lead before Kingston exploded for 11 runs in the fifth and sixth innings, then held off Roosevelt after four runs were scored in the bottom of seventh. Hughes got the third out with the tying run on second in the last inning.

Kingston collected 19 hits, three by Kelly Pirro, who knocked in four runs for the Tigers. Ertha Burris slammed a homer and five Kingston players collected two hits apiece. Monica Cruise, the centerfielder, accounted for four of the nine Roosevelt hits. "Roosevelt's strong showing proves that the DCSL softball league is going to be tough this year," said Coach Pat Burke of Kingston. "They weren't touted too highly but surprised us." Lori Eaton played a fine all-round game for the winners.

Tigers In Tennis Sweep

KINGSTON—Kevin Boyd defeated Lee Jacobson 11-9 in the No. 1 singles and Kingston High went on to zip Spackskill High 5-0 in a DCSL tennis match.

Joe Argulewicz and Jim Contino won the No. 2 and No. 3 singles, respectively by identical 10-7 and Contino beat May Carter 10-7.

In the doubles, Red Smith and Garth Galyon teamed for a 10-7 triumph over Jeff Waldman and Kathe Blumberg and Matt Klein and Jeff Van Demark stopped Mark Enrich and Jackie Corrigan 10-5.

"Those Spackskill girls were tremendous," said Coach John Hunter of the Tigers. "They have to be about the best in this part of the country."

In the No. 1 singles, Boyd fell behind 5-1 before pulling his game together.

Rig Sinks, 16 Missing

PORT ARANSAS, Tex. (UPI) — An oil rig under tow in the Gulf of Mexico capsized and sank in heavy seas and gale winds today.

Twenty persons were rescued and taken to Port O'Connor, Tex., but another 16 were missing.

Coast Guard spokesman Stan Christman in New Orleans said a survival capsule on the oil rig had capsized.

"The rig sank to the bottom of the Gulf," he said. "The survival capsule capsized and is on its back."

Christman said the missing men could be inside the capsule, but authorities would not know until they could get the capsule upright. He said the capsule would not necessarily take on water.

"We don't know if they all got in there," said Christman. "We don't know if they slammed the hatch tight."

Christman said waves of 12 to 16 feet were delaying rescue attempts, but he said two Coast Guard divers and a Navy diver would go in as soon as possible. He said the high seas were caused by thunderstorms in the area where the rig sank 30 miles east of Port Aransas.

The 20 rescued were taken aboard Coast Guard vessels and transported to Port O'Connor, Tex., and to a hospital in nearby Port Lavaca, Tex. A Coast Guard spokesman at Port O'Connor said there were some apparently minor injuries.

Christman said several Navy and Coast Guard helicopters were circling in the area where the rig went down about 30 miles east of Port Aransas.

He said the rig, the Ocean Express, had a crew of 36 and at least 20 were pulled from the water shortly after the rig went down. He said the rig was owned by OBOCO of New Orleans and was leased to Marathon Oil Co. of Rockport, Tex.

Army Bases Invaded by 'Squirrels'

MONTEREY, Calif. (UPI) — Squirrels have invaded two big military bases and the Army has been unable to mount a counter-offensive.

The squirrels have burrowed their way into earth-fill dams, under an airstrip and into ammunition storage buildings at Fort Hunter-Liggett and Camp Roberts.

The two World War II vintage bases are used by the National Guard Army Reserve and for police training.

The Army once used poison bait against the squirrels, but in 1971 a presidential order stopped the practice for ecology reasons.

Agriculture Department officials said Thursday the squirrels have burrowed a maze of dwellings through every one of the two posts' 118,000 acres. In fact, the digging has caused the airstrip to collapse and the dams are becoming sieves.

The Army and other federal agencies are seeking a new weapon for the expected counter-attack.

Won't Seek Reelection

BOICEVILLE—Howard Lewis has announced that he will not seek reelection to the Ontario School Board because of increasing professional commitments.

Lewis, named recently to write a new newspaper column for Consumers Union, stated in a news release: "This professional advancement is a mixed blessing, since coming on top of a book project it leaves me without enough time to remain on the board. I've found board service an immensely rewarding experience, and I only wish I were able to continue."

He commented that he has enjoyed working with the board's "independent-minded members."

He Really Didn't Want the Money

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — Wilbur John Hunter really didn't want the $1,800 he robbed from the Landmark Bank of Orlando. According to his lawyer, all Hunter wanted was food and shelter, so he waited in the bank lobby to be arrested.

It was the second time in less than a month that Hunter, 52, Spring Lake Heights, N.J., committed a robbery and then waited to be arrested, police said.

Hunter's court-appointed attorney, James E. Shepherd, said that when his client sought help from several social service agencies in Daytona Beach earlier this year, "they told him he was too old or too young, not a drug addict, not an alcoholic..." and couldn't qualify.

Shepherd said Hunter apparently wandered without shelter, food or money after his earlier release April 8. He said Hunter told him he slept in the woods Monday night.

Police said the note given the bank teller Tuesday demanded money but made no threat. When police arrived, the suspect was sitting meekly in the bank lobby.

Hunter, held under $25,000 bond, was ordered to undergo a psychiatric examination before his April 22 preliminary hearing.

These Shows Deserve a Look

NEW YORK (UPI) — Documentaries lately have come up with ratings that rank them with poison ivy and gold-enrod in public popularity, but a pair of ABC News Closeups may get better treatment.

April 17 from 10-11 p.m., Eastern time, the topic will be "Medicine and Money," and much of what it says will be a bitter pill of some parts of the medical profession to swallow. The lay audience may be more interested than in some recent documentaries, however, because its subject matter has distinct relevance today.

It's all very well to talk about doctor-patient relationships that conjure up kindly old doc treating his patients with equal parts antibiotics and tender loving care.

In point of fact, ABC's Frank Reynolds points out early in his narration, medicine is "the biggest industry in the nation with a price tag approaching $120 billion."

Private medical insurance and open-end government spending on Medicare and Medicaid have encouraged spectacular increases in the cost of medical care — in some instances without accompanying increase in the quality of patient care.

Medicine is a money-making business in this country, and some reformers have called for an end to the free-for-service method of payment as one way of bringing profits into line.

The California experience with private industry prepaid health plans seemed to support the idea, but the state's encounter with prepayment plans in which the government foots the bill provides a warning to look before making any legislative leaps in that direction.

Then there's gun control, the subject of an April 20 "Pro and Con" approach to be aired 10-11 p.m., Eastern time.

The network wasn't going to get into the kind of hassle CBS found itself in last fall after an unflattering documentary on hunting. The gun control show has been broken up into two parts — "The Case for Control," with Howard K. Smith as correspondent, and "The Gun Control Hoax," with John Seash correspondent presenting the anti-gun control picture.

Perhaps it's cynical to say so, but it seems as likely as Christmas in July that anyone's mind is going to be changed by this hour after years of national wrangling on the subject.

If you oppose gun control legislation, you'll agree with Scali when he says, "Criminals can always get guns. What reduces gun crimes is fully enforcing the laws against persons who commit such crimes."

If you favor gun control laws, you'll nod your head when Smith says, "No one is a criminal until he commits the crime. And it is the experience of other nations that with fewer handguns available, there are fewer guns in the wrong hands."

Heard it all before?

CB Pals Come to His Aid

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The "Old Milwaukee Hustler" is going to get a little help Saturday from his friends, including "Blue Satellite" and "Big Banana." The outcome should be a lot of enjoyment for some children.

The "Old Milwaukee Hustler" is the Rev. Herbert Huebschmann, pastor the last 16 years of the Friedens United Church of Christ here. "Blue Satellite" and "Big Banana" are two of his citizens' band radio buddies, who have come to his aid.

Huebschmann's church is 106 years old but is lacking in the staid conservatism such an old institution might be expected to have. It has given over part of its facilities for a day-care center and sponsors other programs to meet the needs of area residents, many of them elderly.

The CB story started in January when the church, with the help of the city, received a load of playground equipment valued at about $8,000. Huebschmann said, "One piece just came in today." Huebschmann said Wednesday, "but most of it came in after the first of the year. Swings, buckaboots, slides, a choo-choo train chamber — it's just beautiful, strong play equipment."

The equipment came to the community church from the city through a federal program but there were no funds to put it up.

That's where "Blue Satellite" and "Big Banana," among others, came in.

Huebschmann said he has been a CB radio operator for more than a year, about the time a heart attack led him into it, and that he has developed a lot of friends over the airwaves.

"I talked about it on the air and those guys said, 'Don't worry about it. What do you mean, don't worry?' I said, 'is the way Huebschmann relates the conversations."

The gist of it is that on Saturday a bunch of his CB buddies are coming to his church to erect the equipment.

Ullman Back To Bergman

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Liza Ullmann was run through the Hollywood glamor mill four years ago but happily returned to her Norwegian roots, unwilling or unable to play the role of a sex goddess.

Ullmann came to Hollywood as one of Europe's great stars, a veteran of a half dozen films with Ingmar Bergman, the critics' darling.

The blonde Scandinavian was miscast in the calamitous musical version of "Lost Horizon" and "Forty Carats" which bombed completely. Another American-made film, "Zandru's Bride" with Gene Hackman was a disaster.

Now Liza is back where she belongs — with Bergman. Together they made such hits as "Cries and Whispers," "Hour of the Wolf" and "Scenes From a Marriage." Liza has done seven pictures for Bergman, winning awards for almost all her performances in them.

If Bergman and Ullmann work on a delicate basis, it is understandable. They were lovers for five years. Liza bore the director a daughter, Linn.

Although romance has dwindled, the spark of creativity continues to flourish between the two. They recently completed "Face to Face," another ponderous drama which is certain to win Liza an Oscar nomination.

In Hollywood to create interest in the Paramount release, Liza was glowing with good health, beauty and excitement.

"This is the most personal film I've made with Ingmar," she said, "because it is his fears and anxieties that the woman on the screen — Jenny — must live with."

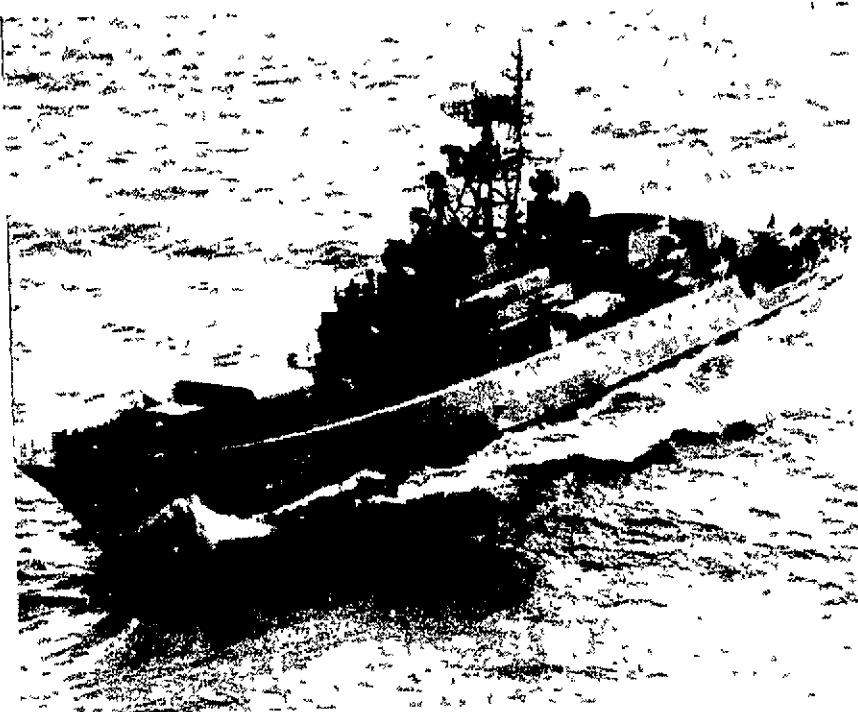

He understands women better than any director and uses us instead of men to say what he feels. He thinks actresses are braver and don't try to hide as much as male performers.

Ingmar uses me very freely to express himself because we have known each other so well for 11 years. He is able to pull more from me than any other director. The reason is that he writes the script and gives me wonderful material.

Despite Liza's personal and professional independence, she admits there still exists a Pygmalion-Galatea relationship between herself and Bergman.

"There always will be that feeling between us," she said.

It proves to me that two people can grow together and be good on their own as well. We are able to use each other to do our best, a creative pro-

SATURDAY, APRIL 17
Your birthday today: This year your creative ability is put to use. You encounter obstacles unless you set up more positive working habits. New contacts diverge into inexplicable ties of varying intensities; existing relationships are strained. Today's natives thrive on confrontations with those of opposing beliefs.

Aries (March 21-April 19): You can opt to play it straight, stick with established plans or risk everything on a deceptively attractive gamble. Avoid buying high-priced items.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Let financial situations ride. Devote time to emotional satisfaction, romantic ventures and good music. Pursue competitive hobbies and light sports, but don't overdo.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Think about what you're saying. Ideas develop into unrealistic projects that are more than you can manage or afford.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can sell almost anything. Just be sure that you're willing to deliver. Take an extra round of precaution by paying more attention to details.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Present a stronger public image of yourself. Write down today's thoughts for future reference. Expenses become unmanageable if you're careless. Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Telling the story as it may be hard, but it's worth the embarrassment and critical comment. Once spelled out, there's no room for misunderstanding.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Let previous decisions stand. You have problems at work because of lack of cooperation or someone's absence. Take time to meditate.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Promise only what can be done without extensive changes. Apparent bargains prove to be expensive. Stick to your regular shopping list.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Today's greatest benefits are intangible. Take time to appreciate how well you are doing. Hold the line against errors.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Confidential deals among friends soon backfire. Don't let suggestions or impatience lead you into matters you're not sure of. Work alone.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Leadership must be gently exercised. Try to set an example; don't gossip and work as hard as you expect others to work.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): An act of generosity probably won't be recognized, but eventually will prove useful. Be selective; don't offer your help to the first takers.

CARS: (Q) I am 16 and the boy I like is 18. My friend is 15 and the boy she likes is 16. Both boys work so we don't get to see them that much. When we do get to see them we hardly get to say a word because all they talk about is cars! How can we talk to them and find out if they like us?—In Suspense in Pennsylvania

(A.) If you were in France and wanted to talk to boys you would have to learn French. Your boy friends don't speak French—they speak English. But they also speak another language called "cars." If you are smart you will start learning that language. It isn't difficult. Your library at school or your public library will have books that will help you.

Also, you can ask your boy friends questions about cars. They will listen to the questions and answer them. Learn these answers. Really learn to talk cars.

When the boys find you can talk their language they will be more interested in you and will find it easier to talk to you about other things.

NOT STEADY: (Q) My parents think that going with somebody means going steady. I've tried to explain to them that going with is not the same as going steady, but they won't listen. Could you please help me? I'm 12 and a boy. They think I'm too young to go with anybody.—Not Much Fun in New York

(A.) If you like a girl and spend some time with her at school, and maybe talk to her occasionally on the telephone and visit her at home once in a while, you can say you are going with her.

But that is a long way from going steady, in the sense that many 16- or 17-year-old boys and girls go steady. Keep impressing this fact on your parents. Also impress upon them the fact that a 12-year-old needs friends just as all people do.

East played low and it was up to Pete to decide whether or not to take the trump finesse. The game was match point duplicate and if Pete lost that finesse, West would probably give his partner a club ruff and Pete would be held to his contract. On the other hand if Pete did not take the finesse and it would have wound up making five instead of six.

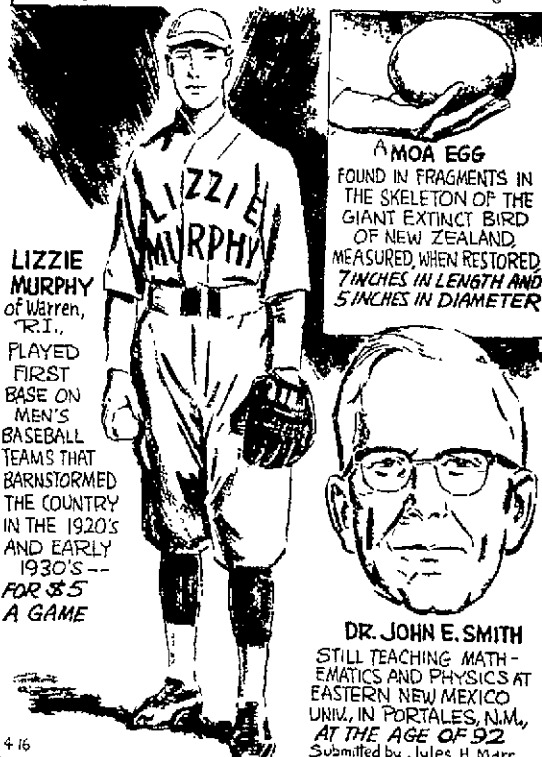

What did Pete do? He rose with the ace and wound up making five hearts.

Did he refuse the finesse because he was a pessimist? No. He refused it because he wanted it to be wrong. Pete had really underbid his hand. Surely some slam try was indicated after that heart raise. Therefore, Pete reasoned that a lot of pairs would be in a slam which would depend on the heart finesse. Pete would get some points if the finesse were wrong and very few if it were right.

Pessimistic Pete won the first trick with dummy's king of clubs. East played the queen and Pete promptly called for the queen of hearts.

Spada Says Refuse Service Not Interrupted

KINGSTON — Michael Spada of Spada Sanitation, Inc. has disputed a report in Wednesday's Freeman that his firm did not collect refuse from its clients in the City of Kingston earlier this week because of the closing of a landfill in the Town of Plattekill.

"We never stopped picking up our garbage," said Spada, "our service was not interrupted."

Spada said that the refuse his firm picked up in the city was dumped at the Town of Ulster landfill. Under the new arrangement between private haulers and the city, that refuse will now be taken to the city landfill at Kingston Point.

"The garbage that we pick up in the Town of Ulster will be taken to the Ulster landfill," said Spada, "the garbage that we pick up in the city, will be taken to the city landfill."

At present, Spada deals with private individuals in the city to haul their refuse. The firm, however, has been awarded a long-term contract to dispose of residential garbage generated in the city, but that contract has not yet been signed.

Some garbage began piling up in the city early this week because some private haulers — such as Hertel Enterprises, a division of Dutchess Sanitation — didn't have any place to take it since a temporary restraining order signed Friday barred further dumping at the Plattekill landfill site.

City officials indicated Wednesday that none of the private haulers were picking up garbage in the city. Hertel officials have confirmed that they did not collect any garbage Monday or Tuesday. Spada, however, has denied that his firm halted its collection service.

While Ulster Waits, Nassau Gets Boost

ALBANY —While Ulster County is seeking state legislation which would allow it to raise its sales tax one per cent, financially struggling Nassau County received a boost this week when the State Senate passed a bill allowing it to raise its tax too.

The measure passed 42 to 14 and was sent to the Assembly where observers said the real battle would be waged between GOP and Democratic leaders.

Meanwhile Ulster County Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, 101st Dist., declined to say whether he would propose the legislation for Ulster or not. He said he wanted to see the resolution passed here and make sure it provided that the sales tax be directly applied to the reduction of real property taxes.

The Ulster Legislature's measure, which passed 24 to 9, called for precisely that.

The increased sales tax in Nassau County was seen as "the only alternative" to plug that county's $10.8 million gap in the county's $952 million budget.

Ulster County presently has a $17 million gap in its $52.6 million budget.

Nassau County's State Sen.

Ralph Marino, R-Syosset, said the added levy, which coupled with the state's four per cent sales tax would take eight cents out of each retail dollar.

However, Democrats led by Sen. Karen Burstein of Queens

claimed the $22 million revenue expected from the additional tax would be used as a war chest for GOP County

Executive Ralph Caso, who must run for re-election next year.

Democrats, noting that the added revenue would be twice the anticipated budget deficit, had asked Caso for some commitment to reduce property taxes by $11 million.

Marino said the sales tax was the only alternative open to the county, with other budget balancing actions including the layoff of another 2,000 county employees or a 64 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation increase in the property tax.

Ms. Burstein charged that Caso was using garbage in the streets tactics to push through the tax increase. She noted that Nassau "is already the highest taxed county in the states" and said that the county, with a population of about 1.4 million, has 57,263 county employees.

Councilman Wants Probe Of New York City Water Grab

ESOPUS — Town of Esopus Councilman Thomas Johnson has called for an immediate investigation into what he terms "an apparent low-profile water grab" by New York City.

Johnson was apparently referring to a project envisioned by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers which would utilize a high-flow skimming station to withdraw water from the Hudson River for distribution throughout the New York metropolitan area. According to the Corps' existing proposal, the water withdrawal chamber would be located either in the Town of Esopus or the Town of Rhinebeck.

Johnson has called for "determined action by area residents to prevent the Hudson Valley from being drained of its essential future water supplies." He specifically praised Ulster County Planning Director Herbert Hekler for the caution he has expressed concerning the project.

"The last bungled attempt at water planning which ended in disaster was made in 1905," said Johnson, "and now, 70 years later we face another disaster in the form of an unquenchable thirst for our water reserves."

"We are fast reaching a point of no return. New York City officials must be made to realize that the Town of Esopus and the County of Ulster will not tolerate any attempt to siphon away our future water resources."

Corps officials have emphasized that the project is still in the planning stages, and that no decision has been made by any government agency to actually undertake the project. The Corps is now undertaking more detailed studies to determine which aspects of the proposal will best meet the region's future water supplies.

Seek Compromise On Education Law

NEW YORK (UPI) — State legislators and school officials hope to achieve a compromise on the Slavitsky-Goodman law that might avert a court challenge to the controversial measure.

The statute, which became law when the state legislature overrode Gov. Hugh L. Carey's veto early Wednesday, requires the city to restore some $150 million to the Board of Education budget.

Mayor Abraham Beame has vowed a court fight against the law, which he said would force officials to cut $150 million from other agencies and eliminate "substantial thousands" of jobs.

The mayor, visibly angry, told reporters he was informed by the city's corporation counsel the new law was "unconstitutional, invalid and unenforceable" and should be resisted.

"We anticipated there would be meetings following passage of the law that would be principally concerned toward the development of amendments," Dr. Robert Christen, vice president of the Board of Education, said Thursday.

Christen, who participated in an unsuccessful weekend effort to forestall the veto override, said, "Certainly, by a week from Monday, people will be working to design changes in the law which will meet essential needs."

Bad Timing For Susan

BOSTON (UPI) — The Patricia Hearst case came at a bad time for Susan Saxe.

Lawyers for Ms. Saxe express concern Miss Hearst's trial and conviction 3,600 miles away may color jurors' thinking in the upcoming Saxe trial.

"It's unfortunate the way the news media connects things," Nancy Gertner, a lawyer for Ms. Saxe, said Thursday. "It's a problem. They're so very, very far apart in time."

Ms. Saxe, 27, faces trial May 17 on murder and bank robbery charges for alleged participation in a $26,000 bank robbery in 1970 that left a policeman dead.

With the trial approaching, lawyers for the honors graduate of Brandeis University and Albany, N.Y. native try to broaden the public profile of a woman who has described herself as "a lesbian, a feminist and an Amazon."

Shortly after the murder, then-Boston Police Commissioner Edmund L. McNamara said it was the work of "revolutionary-type individuals."

Her trial judge already has called pretrial publicity "prejudicial."

"She is just not the way she is portrayed," Ms. Gertner said. "I'll be talking to her, she'll whip out a tape measure and, when I see her the next time, she has made a dress for me."

For her alleged participation in a holdup with a band of self-styled revolutionaries, Ms. Saxe faces mandatory penalties stiffer than those imposed on the man convicted of pulling the trigger, her lawyer said.

Chief Justice Walter H. McLaughlin of Suffolk Superior Court already has rejected Ms. Saxe's efforts to overturn Massachusetts felony-murder rule, which automatically accuses a participant in a felony with any murder occurring during the commission of the crime.

"People don't realize she is not accused of the actual murder," Ms. Gertner said.
